5,000 Greet Heroic Nats After Double Yank Defeat

Capital Fans Fairly Mob League Leaders as They Return.

Policemen Needed To Curb Welcome

By Shirley Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

Washington's conquering baseball heroes made a triumphant reentry into the Capital last night, their ears ringing with the plaudits of 5,000 worshipful fans gathered at Union Station to pour their adulation upon the ball players who have fired local fandom to a frenzy of pennant visions.

Five thousand necks craned through the bars of the station concourse for points of vantage to glimpse the debarking squad of players, 5,000 throats set up a din, the name of each player ringing out as he came into view.

What a Welcome!

Spontaneity was the keynote of the reception. But their return, unadvertised, had been a matter of public interest from the moment of the last put-out at Yankee Stadium yesterday when they applied the finishing touches that set the Yankees back on their heels with a double defeat by 1-run margins of 6-5 and 3-2, to bound into the American League lead by two and a half games before a record turnout of 77,365 New York fans.

Last night reenacted those wild, joyous scenes of that August night of 1924, when Bucky Harris, then the boy pilot of the Nats of nine years ago, returned also from a triumphant Western trip and a New York conquest to usher his team back into the Capital with a league leadership that it never relinquished.

But Joe Is Missing!

But last night there was no boy manager to hear the joyous tumult of a grateful local fandom. Joe Cronin, the new miracle man of baseball, who took a second-place club trailing by six games and provided the spark that truly set it on fire, was not among those to return triumphant to the home hearth. He was winging his way to Chicago, there to participate with Pitcher Alvin Crowder in the All-Star major league game of Thursday, a signal tribute to the ability of the Washington manager and shortstop.

But the rest were there. Heinie Manush was the first to heave into sight of the wild, eager, crowd. Big bustling Heinie, the hero of the Western trip. They dragged Manush to the microphone. His words were lost in the cheers. But he said something about a pennant and his babies at home.

Parade of Glory!

One by one they filed past the mike. Walter Stewart, Jack Russell, the two pitching heroes of the Yankee Stadium double-header. Goslin, Sewell, Bluege, Myer, Boken, Schulte and Kuhel. The crowd, restrained only by the station bars from piling pell mell upon them, could only yell their feelings. Police escorted the players to their cabs, but not without a continual back-slapping from the closest of the fans.

That was the return of the conquerors. The team that four weeks ago was engaged in a battle for

Boy and Fireworks Annoy Big Store

Pittsburgh, July 4 (A.P.).—A small boy, whose name was not learned, scratched a "son-of-a-gun" against a counter in J. Halpern & Co.'s wholesale fireworks establishment.

He disappeared out the door as the first pinwheel let go.

Fuses caught. Whole cases of firecrackers exploded with sustained din. Roman candles and skyrockets performed their intended functions, causing 120 persons to flee for their lives.

Heat finally started the sprinkler system and checked the blaze. Firemen did the rest.

Lynchburg, Va., July 4 (A.P.).—Virginia Republicans today launched their 1933 campaign by naming Henry A. Wise and Fred McWane to head the ticket on a platform bristling with demands for changes in the State government and with the Anderson liquor-control plan as its central plank.

Mr. Wise, an Eastern Shore Republican, who stumped the State for Congress last fall, was named to oppose Harry F. Byrd for the United States Senate, and Mr. Mcwane, a Lynchburg business man, to do battle with the successful gubernatorial candidate in the three-cornered Democratic primary.

Howell Royal, of Tazewell, lawyer and former member of the State Senate, will oppose his former colleague in the upper House, Lieut. Gov. James H. Price, unopposed for the Democratic nomination. The fourth man on the Republican ticket is a newcomer in State politics, Clarence R. Ahalt, of Arlington County, who will cross swords with the Democratic war horse, Attorney General John R. Saunders.

The platform of the four candidates calls for immediate legislation of beer, an immediate vote on repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and, in the event of repeal, installation in Virginia of the platform for liquor control advanced by Henry W. Anderson of Richmond, in his separate report as a member of the Wickersham committee.

Features of the plan include: Keeping the Government out of the liquor business; private handling of the manufacture and distribution under State regulation and control limitation of profit in the handling, payment of revenue above expenses and a fair profit on capital invested into the State Treasury, equitable division of such revenues between the State and localities, and local option and retention of prohibition.

Chief among the other features of the platform was a plank calling for a sales tax and through such revenue the exemption up to $2,500 from taxation of homes and farms on home-owners occupied by the owner.

Only one contest arose in the nominating session, Mr. Royal defeating Richard B. English, of Alexandria, for the nomination for lieutenant governor, 831 to 753, after which the nomination was made unanimous.

Henry W. Anderson, permanent chairman of the convention, launched the convention into its program today with an address in which he assailed the Democratic party in Virginia and the national party for what he said was a flagrant disregard of its campaign policies.

The convention adopted a change in its party plan to give equal representation to women as well as equal, rights, thereby virtually doubling the membership of the various committees. Other changes proposed were referred to a special committee of five men and five women to be appointed by the chairman and instructed to report to the next convention.

French Line Revamping Approved by Deputies

Paris, July 4 (U.P.).—The Chamber of Deputies today approved a plan for the reorganization of the French Line, without a record vote.

Florida Calls Troops in Jail Riot; Five Flee

Camp Sweat Boxes Burned by Convicts; Posses Capture Two.

Brooksville, Fla., July 4 (U.P.).—National Guardsmen were called from Tampa tonight to quell a 24-hour riot at a State prison camp at Tooke Lake, 12 miles from here.

Disorder broke out among the 60 prisoners last night when 5 of the convicts escaped. Two of the fugitives were captured today by a posse headed by Sheriff Neil F. Long.

Meanwhile, the remaining prisoners continued the mutiny. It was reported here they had burned several sweat boxes and other equipment of the prison camp late today and were rapidly getting beyond control when the National Guardsmen were called.

On request of Sheriff Long, Adjt. Gen. Vivian Collins at St. Augustine ordered Maj. T. B. Sparkman and a detachment of 20 men of the 116th Field Artillery to the prison camp from Tampa.

Latest reports from the camp, where there is no telephone, said the troops arrived about 7 p. m. and restored order, although three of the fugitive convicts were still at large. Sheriff Long and all available officers were still at the camp late tonight.

Tegucigalpa Swept By Disastrous Fire

Business Houses Razed as Hurricane and Quake Hit Honduras.

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, July 4 (A.P.).—Tegucigalpa was visited last night by a hurricane, a rainstorm and an earthquake, and early today by a disastrous fire.

Five houses were destroyed and two landslides were caused with injury to three persons by the earthquake which came as the storm was at its height.

A theater and half a dozen commercial houses were burned in today's blaze. Dispatches from the interior reported heavy rains and strong winds in the northern district with damage to agriculture. The rivers have swollen alarmingly.

Woman Leaps to Death While Ship Band Plays

Kansas City, July 4 (A.P.).—While the orchestra played and many of the 400 passengers were gliding through a sunrise dance, a young woman plunged from the steamer Idlewild today and disappeared in the murky depths of the Missouri River. A boat was lowered and a futile search made.

A man who gave his name as S. M. Sage was quoted by members of the crew as saying he was the escort of the woman, but knew her only as "Hermella."

Storm Delays Boyd; To Start Hop Today

Capt. J. Errol Boyd, who had planned a nonstop flight from Port au Prince to Washington yesterday, stayed in Haiti until a severe tropical storm had passed off his proposed course. Dispatches indicated the storm was well on its way toward the mouth of the Mississippi, and Boyd is expected to start his flight this morning.

He believes 18 or 19 hours of flying will bring him here, in which case he will land at Washington-Hoover Field at 8 or 9 o'clock tonight.

Bombs Burst In Salute as Fourth Ends

Crowds See Fireworks Glorifying Day at Monument.

Senator King Is Orator; Martial Music Adds to Celebration.

A yellowed parchment document lay safe in a glass case last night in a long, dim room at the Library of Congress while the evening outside was filled with thunderous salutes and sky-festooning rockets as Independence Day made its 157th mark on the Nation's history.

A mile away a great multitude packed the green slopes that dip from the Washington Monument. It was the greatest crowd that ever attended a Fourth of July celebration in the Capital, park police said, even surpassing the 150,000 estimated attendance of last year.

The document was the Declaration of Independence and the rockets that sputtered into the sky were in exultation at the anniversary of the famous proclamation's signing.

Senator King Is Orator.

Judge Robert E. Mattingly read the valorous words to the assemblage on tthe Monument slopes. He was followed by Senator William H. King, of Utah, who delivered the oration of the evening, an impressive appeal for renewed faith in American principles.

Later the massed colors of the veterans and patriotic societies of the District were presented before the multitude as the Victory Post, American Legion, Drum and Bugle Corps drummed and blared. Then Boy Scouts filed through the dusk, holding blue and red flares in their hands as the Marine Band sounded a pulse-quickening march.

Brilliant Fireworks.

All through the ceremonies, searchlights stroked the great shaft of the Monument with iridescent rays that at times played over the crowds who sat on the greensward.

Just before the flag ceremony, Miss Grace Colliflower, champion orator of the District, delivered an address on Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration of Independence. Clad in a crimson gown, the youthful orator drew enthusiastic applause after her oration.

Then began the fireworks. A scaffolding suddenly blazed forth in myriad colors with the greeting: "Welcome. 1933. The New Deal Year. Good Luck." Then ensued an hour of dazzling fireworks.

The big civic celebration, arranged by the Citizens Committee of One Hundred, of course led the day's observances and attracted tens of thousands to the base of the Monument.

The day began with the sporadic crackle of firecrackers, set off by Johnny and Jimmy, who had prepared days in advance for the momentous occasion and whose patriotic ardor was undimmed by regulations prohibiting "devilcrackers," "thunderbolts," and cap pistols.

Parade In Takoma Park.

Takoma Park staged the most auspicious of the Community Celebrations, beginning with a parade in which marched the United States Army Band and sundry other military and civic organizations.

Later there was a marathon race to Tacoma Park and thousands waited to see the tired runners stagger across the finish line. Athletic contests, band concerts, speechmaking and fireworks filled out Takoma's celebration.

Out in Northeast section, the Burroughs Citizens Association sponsored a celebration at the Taft Recreation Center; Wesley Heights held their own observance, as did a score of other neighborhoods in lesser degree.

New England Hit by Gale; Many Periled

5 Missing on Craft Off Jersey Coast; Tropic Storm Nears Texas.

Nantucket, Mass., July 4 (A.P.).—A northeast storm, one of the worst summer storms on record, swept across this island today, casting numerous craft on shore and jeopardizing the lives of scores of yachtsmen and fishermen.

Three men and a woman were taken from the schooner yacht Malolo of Providence, R. I., after her two masts had been carried away as she lay at anchor. Shortly after passing fishermen took the four persons aboard, the schooner was swept up on the beach. Those aboard were F. T. Moses, of Providence; Miss Sheila Hartwell, of Bronxville, N. Y.; H. T. Moses, of New York, and Capt. H. M. Foss, of New Bedford.

Other Craft Periled.

The Manana, of Greenport, N. Y., a 60-footer, was washed up on South Beach with her captain and steward aboard. She also was considerably damaged.

A half dozen other yachts were dragging anchor in harbors and about fifteen small fishing boats were tossed up on the strand.

The Steamer New Bedford, in from New Bedford, reported extremely rough weather. Beulah Fisher, of Nantucket, a passenger, received a crushed hand and arm when a door slammed against her and she was removed to a hospital when the steamer docked.

Saved in Skiff.

Block Island, R. I., July 4 (U.P.). Two women and two men were rescued in a tiny skiff today by Coast Guards, who reached them 4 miles off Block Island in a rough sea after they had been forced to abandon the yacht Sea Wolf.

The Sea Wolf, a 36-foot cabin cruiser, was en route from the island to Newport when a pounding sea split its seams. As planks gave way the engine was flooded and the boat started to sink. The party took to a small skiff. Coast Guards at the new Shoreham station sighted them and put out in a lifeboat, reaching the skiff shortly after the Sea Wolf sank.

Londonderry, Northern Ireland, July 4 (A.P.).—Aviation Minister Italo Balbo announced tonight that his Italian seaplane squadron would take off at 10 a. m. tomorrow (4 a. m. Eastern standard time) for Reykjavik, Iceland.

He reached this decision after receiving reports of good weather in the Iceland region. Conditions were rapidly improving to the northward and the outlook was brighter than at any time since the squadron's arrival here Sunday from Amsterdam.

The departure had been postponed today on advice of Premier Mussolini of Italy.

Denver Death Plot Fails as Police Fire Upon Suspect in Hedge.

Denver, July 4 (A.P.).—An extortionist escaped today under the pistol fire of detectives who accompanied Timothy A. Pedley, 57, Denver investment broker, to the place he was instructed to deliver $30,000 under penalty of death.

When Pedley reached the appointed place, a man jumped from behind a hedge and called to him to "toss out the money." Then seeing detectives in a car behind Pedley, the man fled while the officers fired several volleys at him.

Bernard Eisner, 20, was under arrest for questioning in the case, but Capt. of Detectives William Armstrong said he was seeking a man "well up in years, of good education

Idle New Yorker Nabbed as He Crawls to Get '$50,000' Packet.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 4 (A.P.).—Falling into a trap set by police and State troopers in an effort to catch the person who had sent letters demanding $50,000 under threat of death to Norman P. Clement, Gustave Michan, 23, of Lackawanna, N. Y., until recently of Chicago, was arrested near the Buffalo city line early today. Clement is a prominent Buffalo capitalist and charity worker.

The capture came after police, in Clement's big sedan, tossed a packet into the bushes at a spot directed in the letter. Troopers, lying in hiding near the rendezvous, reported that shortly after the dummy package had been tossed from the car,

Keep Conference Going, Roosevelt Cables Aids; Gold Bloc Is Skeptical

U. S. Delegates Silent on Future Course of Negotiations.

Yellow Metal Nations Demand Closing of "Rumor Hotbed."

London (Wednesday), July 5 (A. P.).—News from Washington that President Roosevelt had cabled the American delegation to exert every effort to keep the World Economic Conference going aroused the greatest interest in conference circles early today, but gold bloc members were frankly skeptical of success.

The President's message followed up the one he sent the conference Monday, when he rejected a joint stabilization declaration, thereby arousing intense bitterness that led to moves seeking adjournment.

What steps might now be taken by the United States to keep the conference in progress were described as decidedly obscure, unless it is prepared to change its position and accept some new agreement to protect gold standard countries.

Another consideration was whether the Americans could submit an entirely new agenda eliminating all reference to currency stabilization and at the same time convincing the gold bloc, led by France, that such a program would be worth discussing.

U. S. Delegates Silent.

Meanwhile, some gold bloc quarters asserted it was most important that the conference be ended immediately, inasmuch as it had become "a hotbed of rumor" and was having a decidedly adverse financial repercussion on the continent.

Unless the United States could propose some means of protecting gold standard countries from such influences, important gold quarters felt, it would be impossible for the parley to continue.

The gold bloc position was that the conference was only throwing an unfavorable light on the gold bloc position, which some said, both inspired and aided currency speculation.

Furthermore, they felt, any decisions on tariffs and other economic subjects would be highly academic while fluctuating currencies over-

Conference Teetering.

London, July 4 (A.P.).—The World Monetary and Economic Conference teetered on the brink of collapse today, but the steering committee declined to push it over pending further word from President Roosevelt.

Ending of the conference in view of the intense bitterness aroused by the President's stabilization message yesterday was proposed in a small steering committee meeting this morning.

The large committee was called this evening to make a final recommendation of adjournment to the full conference but on the motion of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, head of the American delegation, the large group was adjourned until 10 a. m. (5 a. m. Eastern standard time) Thursday.

Hull Blocks Adjourning.

"I moved that we adjourn the steering committee until tomorrow morning," said Mr. Hull after the meeting, "but Mr. Chamberlain (Neville Chamberlain, British Chancellor of the Exchequer) got up and suggested one more day, so

Gift Bibles Are Sent Economic Delegates

London, July 4 (U.P.).—Bibles were sent to all delegates at the World Economic Conference today by the Scripture Gift Mission.

The gifts were accompanied by a note suggesting the Holy Book contained the "teachings necessary for international peace and prosperity."

London Asks Nurses In Trousers to Quit

London, July 4 (A.P.).—Two nurses at the Royal Infirmary at Leicester have been asked to resign because they appeared on the streets in flannel trousers.

They were off duty but persisted after being warned such a practice was not in harmony with the dignity of their profession.

Gold Bloc Parley Delegates to Quit

London, July 4 (A.P.).—The world monetary and economic conference was regarded in authoritative gold bloc quarters tonight as completely dead.

The official attitude as expressed by Georges Bonnet, French finance minister, who has been leading the gold group, was that the best thing to do was to quit now and that there was little chances of acceptance of anything President Roosevelt might propose to keep the conference afloat.

The heads of three gold bloc delegations ordered railway tickets for Thursday night and the experts were ordered to pack their bags.

King Demands Auditing of Milk Accounts

Senator to Place Checkers on Distributors Who Serve District.

The course of the inquiry into milk prices into the District took a new tangent last night when Senator William H. King, chairman of the District Committee, announced that the books of leading distributors will be examined by a corps of auditors.

The accountants will be ordered by Senator King to make a survey of the records of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association and the holdings of the National Dairy Products Corporation, which controls more than 50 per cent of the milk consumed in Washington.

"We are going to ask that the records be opened to us," said Senator King, "and if they refuse, we will subpena the records."

The corps of accountants has been assembled in the past few weeks by Elwood R. Seal, special counsel to the milk investigating committee which was appointed after a series of articles in The Post disclosed the high prices charged in Washington for milk and cream as compared with other cities.

The Post also disclosed that more than 50 per cent of the mlik distributed here is controlled by National Dairies.

The aim of the pending inquiry is to determine whether there is a milk trust in operation in the District or whether there is a combination which is pegging milk prices.

With this in mind, the accountants will search for evidence which would tend to link one distributor with another. They also will try to determine whether there is any alliance between the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association and the holdings of the National Dairy Products Corporation.

It has not been decided by Senator King and Mr. Seal, whether the

Borah Recovering After Operation

Baltimore, July 4 (A.P.).—Physicians at the Johns Hopkins Hospital said today Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, was recuperating nicely from his recent operation.

He was described as being "very comfortable" today and had no temperature. According to Dr. Lloyd Lewis, an attending physician, the senator probably could leave the hospital next week, but would remain longer for a complete rest.

Senator Borah's case has been described by physicians as "a textbook case" because of the excellent manner in which he stood the operation and has responded to treatment.

Two Britons Released By Soviet Reach Berlin

Berlin, July 4 (A.P.).—Looking fit and well, two British electricians recently freed from prison sentences in Soviet Russia arrived here today on the Warsaw express from Moscow.

The pair, William L. MacDonald and L. C. Thornton, were met by their former chief in Russia, Allan Monkhouse, who was banished with two other colleagues by a Soviet court which found them guilty of espionage and sabotage.

Back From Vacation, Executive Dispatches Instructions.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt last night cabled fresh instructions to the American delegation at the London Economic Conference to put forth every effort to keep the parley going.

Returning to the White House at 9:30 p. m. from his two weeks' vacation cruise, Mr. Roosevelt took up immediately the latest reports from the troubled economic parley. He decided to send a message to the American conferees and the new instructions were coded and dispatched through the Navy Department. It was said authoritatively that Mr. Roosevelt had every confidence that the conference would not break up and that the American delegation would act to keep it in progress.

The text of the Roosevelt cable was not disclosed and it was reiterated that any news regarding the conference must come from London.

President Still Confident.

The President's confidence in a continuation of the struggling conference became known even as the most pessimistic of reports were coming out of London, many of them predicting early adjournment of the parley as a result of the refusal of the United States to consider immediate monetary stabilization.

The President held no conference upon his return to the White House by motor from Annapolis. He has personally directed the course of the United States delegation throughout the last two weeks by cable while alone on his vacation cruise.

Greeted Along Route.

Riding in an open car, Mr. Roosevelt was greeted by Fourth of July celebrators all along the route from Annapolis and on the streets of Washington.

The sailors of the destroyer Ellis, which brought him ashore at Annapolis, manned the rails and gave three cheers to the President as he pulled away in his automobile. He responded with a wave of his straw hat.

The drive from Annapolis was made at a leisurely rate. Maryland motorcycle police and Washington police opened a way for him through the maze of holiday traffic.

Lunches With Family.

Annapolis, Md., July 4 (A.P.).—President Roosevelt concluded his vacation at sea today on the cool, quiet waters of Chesapeake Bay, observing the anniversary of American independence at a family luncheon aboard the cruiser Indianapolis.

Refreshed and tanned by his two weeks on the ocean, Mr. Roosevelt arranged for a departure after sundown tonight for the Capital to take over the campaign for national recovery.

He noted attentively the reports from the deadlocked London Economic Conference throughout the day and appeared hopeful of progress there, but his chief interest, nevertheless, was in the national back-to-work movement he has ordered to begin this month.

Straus Defends America From Critics Abroad

U. S. Envoy to Paris Says Economic Policies Are Not Understood.

Paris, July 4 (A.P.).—European criticism of America was rejected tonight as unfair by Jesse I. Straus, United States Ambassador, speaking at the American Chamber of Commerce Fourth of July dinner. President Lebrun attended.

The ambassador made a vigorous defense of the American economic policy, said Europe did not understand the United States and suggested a better spirit of appreciation of President Roosevelt's efforts.

"When we read in the daily press," he declared, "of some nations, whose friendship we desire and who should be our friends, that we are grasping, that we are selfish and that we are pursuing a course unfavorable to world peace and the solution of world problems, I think it time for us to argue the unfairness of such pronouncements."

He asserted that many European economists regard the United States as a "vast economic laboratory," but reminded his hearers that the success of the experiment would benefit the world.

London, July 4 (A.P.).—Approximately 1,000 Americans today attended the traditional Fourth of July garden party at the United States Embassy.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, chief of the American delegation at the world economic conference, and James M. Cox, head of the monetary commission of the parley, visited the party for a few minutes. Herbert Bayard Swope, who accompanied Raymond Moley, Assistant United States Secretary of State, to England, also attended for a short time.

Robert W. Bingham, United States Ambassador, who has been ill, was sufficiently recovered to personally receive the guests with his wife and daughter.

Havana, July 4 (A.P.).—Sumner Welles, United States Ambassador, was the honor guest today at the annual Fourth of July luncheon of the American Club.

At Santiago, ceremonies were held during the morning at the historic Hill of San Juan, site of a Spanish-American War engagement. A naval detachment from the U. S. base at Guantanamo attended.

Madrid, July 4 (A.P.).—A group of 150 Americans gathered at the embassy at an informal tea today honoring the new United States Ambassador, Claude G. Bowers, and commemorating Independence Day.

The gala affair was pronounced one of the most successful in years. There were many expressions of praise for the Ambassador's work in cementing Spanish-American relationship, but no formal addresses were made.

King Urges Audit Of Milk Accounts accountants will be sent into the offices for their examination or the books will be subpenaed.

Surplus Milk Figures.

The auditors will attempt to establish whether milk bought by the distributors and paid for as surplus milk, or milk used for making cream and other dairy products, is actually used for that purpose. There have been complaints made that surplus milk has been retailed in bottle form. This milk, known as basic milk, nets a higher price to the producer.

The dairies to be investigated are the Chestnut Farms Dairies, Chevy Chase Dairies (both National Dairy holdings) and the Thompson Dairy (an independent). The examiners will try to learn whether the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association has an adequate check on the distribution of the milk sold by it to the dealers.

The auditing corps will be composed of three experts from the General Accounting Office and three from the District auditor's office. Mr. Seal will aid Senator King in directing their investigation.

The hearings are expected to get under way when Senator McCarran, of Nevada, returns to Washington. He is sitting on the committee with Senator King.

A list of witnesses also has been prepared and subpenas will be sent out as soon as the date for the hearing is definitely determined.

Forestry Disorder Measures Taken

Virginia Camp Fight Leads Officers to Ask State Aid for Future.

Richmond, Va., July 4 (A.P.).—Charles City County authorities have requested the State division of motor vehicles and the attorney general's office to cooperate in preventing disorders in the vicinity of Civilian Conservation Camp No. 396 at Roxbury, it was learned today.

The request followed a fist fight Sunday night in which Ernest E. Cox, 36, a veteran from Norton, was beaten so badly that he was sent to the Army Hospital at Fort Monroe yesterday for treatment.

M. D. Lampkin, sheriff, and Alfred Taylor, Commonwealth's attorney, of the county, asked for a motor vehicle patrol on the roads near the camp and joined with Capt. C. B. Shields, in command of the camp, in requesting the attorney general's office to curb liquor distribution in the neighborhood.

Russell Boardman Gets Final Airplane Ride

Hartford, July 4 (A.P.).—The final airplane flight of Russel Boardman, transatlantic flier, who was killed Saturday, ended late today at Rentschler Field, East Hartford.

The body of the noted Massachusetts sportsman and flier, fatally injured at Indianapolis while flying in the New York to Los Angeles Air Derby, was flown here by his brother, Earl Boardman. The body was taken to a Hartford undertaking establishment. The funeral will be held Thursday at 3 p. m.

Holiday Death Toll in Nation Mounts to 89

Only 4 Die From Fireworks But Auto Crashes Take Lives of 53.

(Associated Press.)

Death echoed over the Nation yesterday in the wake of the roar of jubilation to celebrate Independence Day.

Preliminary surveys of the several States showed a death toll of 89 which was steadily mounting toward 100. Thousands of persons were injured and property damage was great.

Automobiles, as usual on holidays, accounted for the greatest number of deaths. More than 50 persons were killed in car mishaps. Fireworks accounted for only four deaths. Seventeen persons were drowned and 15 met death from other causes—airplane crashes, shootings, and unusual accidents.

Scores of children and grownups nursed burns from firecrackers, sparklers, and other fireworks. Hospitals in the major cities treated them and gave them serums to prevent tetanus.

Peculiarly, Chicago, the play center of the Nation as the result of the Century of Progress, escaped with but three automobile fatalities despite traffic-clogged streets that poured massive crowds into the world's fair ground.

were with Mr. Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt and several friends arrived at noon and set out for the Indianapolis aboard a submarine chaser to have luncheon with the President.

The choppy seas, which yesterday almost prevented a Cabinet meeting, had quieted today and Mrs. Roosevelt started on the 4-mile run to the Indianapolis in gay spirits and a wave to the crowd of holiday visitors at the wharf.

Just before Mrs. Roosevelt and her guests boarded the submarine chaser the guns of the Indianapolis boomed the national salute of 48 guns at noon in observance of the Fourth of July.

With Mrs. Roosevelt were Miss Marguerite Lehand, personal secretary to the President; Miss Malvina Thompson, her personal secretary, and Miss Lorena Hickok, of New York.

Plans Other Cruises.

Luncheon was served in the admiral's quarters on the Indianapolis, which have been occupied by the President. The Indianapolis, newest of the warships of the American fleet, is to be the cruiser flagship and there is every likelihood that Mr. Roosevelt will use this trim fighting vessel for later trips he has in mind to Cuba, Puero Rico, Panama and the Pacific Coast.

In addition to the roars of the national salute, the President was reminded throughout the day of the holiday by frequent bursts of fireworks on shore.

Annapolis, one of America's oldest towns and the home of the Naval Academy, was the mecca for hundreds of holiday tourists, who lined the docks to take a look through field glasses at the Indianapolis, anchored out in the bay.

Will Go To Chicago.

A little later the President plans to go for a week or ten days to the family home at Hyde Park, N. Y., and a visit to the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago also is on his calendar for the summer.

Some of his friends believe he may go to Puerto Rico late this fall. He told Gov. Gore he hoped to visit that island then. He hopes to go to the Pacific next summer, but everything depends on the situation at that time.

Mrs. Roosevelt left the Indianapolis late in the afternoon to return to Washington to fly to New York to say good-by to her son, Franklin, jr., who starts tomorrow on a trip to Europe.

British Rulers, Wed 40 Years, Will Celebrate

17 Years Later George V Became King; Modest Observance Planned.

London, July 4 (A.P.).—Royal anniversaries come and go in England with little more than quiet family observances, but one of especial note will be marked Thursday.

Queen Victoria was on the throne when the sailor prince, who little more than a year before had become heir-apparent on the death of his elder brother, the Duke of Clarence, was married in the Chapel Royal to Princess Mary of Teck.

They had been engaged just two months, the news that they had become affianced being announced on May 6—a date marking a double anniversary, for just 17 years later the sailor prince became King George V.

The marriage day was not proclaimed a public holiday, but huge throngs nevertheless crowded the route of the wedding procession from Buckingham Palace to St. James and finally to the railway station, where the couple embarked for Sandringham, the country estate in Norfolk, where the royal family spends its happiest holidays.

Publicly there is no special observance of any of the royal anniversaries, but certain it is that greetings will come in from all over the world and there will be more than the ordinary zest to the toast drunk by the royal household.

The approach of the anniversary finds the king and queen filling a multitude of public engagements the presence of the king particularly heartening his subjects, who felt some concern over his recent attack of rheumatism.

Gold Bloc Doubts Success of Parley

we adjourned until Thursday morning."

The Secretary of State replied, "Yes, that's our position," when asked directly if the Americans were opposed to adjournment.

"We really don't know what to expect," he added when inquiry was made if he expected further instructions from Washington. "We moved adjournment of the steering committee to give all parties more time to consider the matter."

By midday important quarters in virtually all delegations, including the American, felt nothing could save the great world parley, but during the afternoon a vigorous movement was started in the United States group to get the large steering committee meeting postponed before it could act on adjournment.

Colijn Offers Motion.

At the earlier meeting of the small steering committee, representatives of the European gold bloc nations proposed adjournment in view of the President's refusal of stabilization demands. A deadlock resulted when American and British opposition arose.

Dr. Hendryk Colijn, Dutch premier, was understood to have offered the motion, acting on behalf of France, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Switzerland.

Many delegates left this evening's meeting in gloomy frame of mind, expressing the opinion that it was a coup de grace merely to put it over to Thursday.

Hoarding Law Indictment Is Seen as Next

If Suspects' List Fails to Hasten Flow, Last Step May Be Taken.

The steadily decreasing return of gold from hoarding under pressure by Government agents suggests to many observers that Attorney General Cummings may be forced shortly to use other tools to dig the metal out of family socks and safe deposit boxes.

Luckily for Government policy, he has two more tools to try before starting actual prosecution of hoarders. Prosecution carries with it the danger that the hoarding law may be declared unconstitutional, which would end the gold-return campaign abruptly.

The two remaining weapons are publication of suspected hoarders' names and a Federal indictment for hoarding. The first is a weak one and may not work. An actual indictment for hoarding, however, would probably increase the stream of returned gold at once.

Psychological Campaign Used.

So far, the Attorney General had directed his campaign against the mind of the hoarder himself. Agents of the Department of Justice have visited many of those named by the Treasury as having drawn gold. The agents have demanded the gold, but no action has been taken against the 195 persons who refused to return it. The next two weapons likely to be used are also psychological.

The Attorney General apparently hopes that publication of a few names of hoarders will frighten the others into returning their gold. This may be true if the names are published. Whether or not the names will be printed is another matter. Even though an official Government list of suspects is furnished, it is a serious matter to publish the name of a man accused of a crime unless he is formally accused by being arrested or indicted.

Maryland Situation Cited.

A similar situation arose in Maryland after the banking holiday in that State. The State Legislature obtained from the bank commissioner a list of persons who had drawn more than $10,000 from banks just prior to the holiday. The list was made public. Press associations carried it to papers in the State, but not all papers used it. The list of hoarders may meet the same end.

The indictment method of procedure would not carry any chance of nullification of the hoarding law unless prosecution were started. The indictment by a Federal grand jury would frighten hoarders into returning their gold, it is thought. It need not be pressed and could be finally nolle prossed, after it had accomplished its purpose.

Any arrest for gold hoarding, whether on indictment or on a warrant, could immediately lead to a test of the constitutionality of the law. Lawyers for the prisoner could ask for a writ of habeas corpus, under which the validity of the law would have to be passed on by the court at once.

150 Warships Boom 21-Gun Coast Salute

San Pedro, Calif., July 4 (A.P.).—From Puget Sound to San Diego 150 United States warships at some 30 ports along the Pacific Coast today boomed out a thunderous birthday salute to the Nation.

Every ship was in holiday attire, with multicolored signal bunting stretched from forepeak to masthead and down to taffrail. Battle flags waved from the trucks. The warships joined simultaneously in a 21-gun salute to the Union.

Pedley's home was guarded by special detectives today. Pedley formerly was an official of the Midwest Refining Co. He and Mrs. Pedley came to Denver in 1911 from Owensborough, Ky.

Rome, July 4 (U.P.).—Rosa Ponselle, Metropolitan Opera star, made Crown Prince Umberto toss away his cigarette at a command performance at Naples today.

"Ha, ha," laughed the singer in the midst of her performance, "who's smoking?"

"Your highness," said the singer, "I have one obsession—it is against smoking when I am singing."

The prince crushed out his cigarette with his heel. He later said he found her frankness so amusing that he related the tale to friends at a court dinner tendered Mlle. Ponselle.

"With a voice like yours," said the prince, "you belong in Naples. Stay with us."

The singer had an audience with Premier Benito Mussolini tonight.

"You are the man of the century," she told Il Duce.

Michan crawled cautiously to the spot. As soon as he opened the bundle the troopers closed in.

Clement received two threats, the first last week. Police laid their trap at that time, but the writer failed to put in an appearance, presumably because several automobiles were parked in the vicinity. This week a second note was received and the authorities again acted.

According to police the prisoner confessed he had sent the notes, but declared he had no intention of harming Clement if his threats were ignored.

Police said Michan told them he picked out Clement as a likely prospect after reading about his activities as a leader in the joint charities and community fund drive in Buffalo.

M'chan, out of work, said he had lived in Chicago until the death of his mother last July. He went to Lackawanna after a relative there offered to give him a home.

Yale Professor Lauds Stand of U. S. on Money

(Associated Press.)

A strong indorsement of President Roosevelt's refusal to agree to currency stabilization at this time was voiced yesterday by James Harvey Rogers, professor of economics at Yale. He contended in an interview that it would be futile to fix exchange rates before the countries decide on what they will do with domestic prices.

Rogers, an authority on inflation and international currency questions, was among the many consulted by the administration early in the preconference negotiations with foreign powers.

Although he would not discuss it for publication, he and other economists here who have been following the international currency muddle were slow to believe that the Londno Conference would break down. The prevailing idea, however, was that the European battle for the gold standard was not likely to be successful.

Some students of the situation were counting definitely on the British dominions to prevent Great Britain from siding with the gold bloc nations, and maintained that gold standards could not be kept without her assistance.

Even though a recess should ensue, they believe it possible for the nations to get together finally in a program of price raising, off the gold standard.

Prof. Rogers said he believed the conference could yield a vital benefit to the United States if the nations were to agree on a program of raising prices to a fixed limit.

So far, he pointed out, this country has not set a definite mark to which it intends to raise prices, and "Once inflation takes hold, as it probably will do very soon in this country, powerful and interested groups are sure to bring much pressure to continue and increase it.

"An international agreement now to raise prices by 30 per cent, for example, but by no more, would certainly prove a powerful motive for arresting an unhealthy rise."

Without such a check, he said, "We are faced with many dangers which most of the European countries in the postwar years were unable to combat."

Former U. S. Banker Jailed in Paris Forgery

Paris, July 4 (U.P.).—Alberto Badesi, a naturalized American and former New York banker, was sentenced in the Seine assizes today to five years' imprisonment on conviction of charges of cashing thousands of American Express dollar travelers' checks. He was described as the ringleader of an international ring of forgers which had been hunted for two years.

barge S. G. Wilder with five men aboard, which became separated from the tug Brooks Scanlon, of Jacksonville, Fla., off the New Jersey coast in a storm Monday night.

Four men and a woman were taken off the barge H. Turner, which broke away from the Brooks Scanlon with the S. G. Wilder. The Mystic Line freighter A. L. Kent picked them up after notifying the Coast Guard of the barge's plight. The crew of the S. G. Wilder declined assistance at that time.

The Brooks Scanlon towed a third barge, the Thurlow, to Chesapeake Bay and then set out to find the S. G. Wilder. It became disabled, however, and a Coast Guard boat convoyed it back to Chesapeake Bay.

Chief Steward Brown of the Coast Guard boat Galatea, which assisted the tug, had his left hand severed at the wrist while maneuvering to stand by.

Storm Warning.

"Northeast storm warning ordered 9 p. m., Block Island, R. I., to Eastport, Me. Disturbance central about 100 miles south, southeast of Nantucket, Mass., apparently moving northward."

"Tropical disturbance central about 25:20 north, 89 west, moving west-northwestward about 11 miles per hour. It is increasing in intensity, being attended by shifting gales over a large area and by winds of hurricane force near center. Little change in direction of movement indicated next 24 hours. Caution advised vessels in and near path."

Houston, Tex., July 4 (A.P.).—A tropical hurricane that ripped across western Cuba yesterday was believed headed tonight for the Texas-Louisiana coast, according to reports received by the weather bureau here.

The Humble Oil and Refining Co. offices here announced a message from the master of the tanker Cerro Azul, which gave its location as 25 degrees 25 minutes north and 88 degrees 15 minutes west, in which the captain was quoted as saying the tanker was rolling in a heavy sea and whipped by a 70-mile-an-hour wind.

"Wind in northwest, 70 miles per hour. Barometer 29.39. Extremely heavy seas," the message read.

Based on the Cerro Azul report the ship was about 50 miles southwest of the storm center. C. E. Norwuest, meteorologist here, estimated the storm was 500 miles southeast of Galveston bar.

Two Hurt on Ship.

Miami, Fla., July 4 (A.P.).—The Clyde Line steamer Mohawk, out of Galveston, struck the fringe of a tropical storm in the Gulf of Mexico last night and two musicians aboard were injured slightly when a freak wave broke over the bow, the ship's master reported upon arrival here today.

The musicians did not require medical assistance and officers of the line here said they did not know the names of the two men. The Mohawk cleared tonight for New York.

Pinar del Rio, Cuba, July 4 (U. P.).—The death list of Sunday night's hurricane which swept Pinar del Rio Province stood at nine tonight, with two members of a fishing boat crew from La Coloma missing. It was believed there were several unreported fatalities in the northern part of the province.

Fate, Tex., July 4 (A.P.).—Five persons were injured, none believed seriously, late today by two tornadoes which struck here.

The injured are Mrs. H. F. Peek, struck in the head with a timber blown into her home. John Pullens and Cecil Lancaster, cut by glass from the windshield of an automobile in which they were riding. The windshield was broken by a street light reflector torn from its base by the wind. An unidentified negress. Henry Hale, cut by glass.

Speedy Price Raising Is Plan Of Roosevelt

President Is Scheduled for Action to Spur Recovery Project.

By J. Bernard McDonnell

A general heading-up of the national industrial recovery program is expected to be undertaken by President Roosevelt as one of the first tasks following the three-week vacation from which he returned to the National Capital last night.

Although not apparent on the surface of the ballyhoo incident to the activities of the various individual new Federal agencies engaged in the effort to inspirit the economic life of the Nation, one of the most important questions the President will have to decide revolves about prices.

A General Policy.

With prices of various commodities rising rapidly the President will have to lay down a general policy for the guidance of the recovery agencies commanded by his various lieutenants. How far price levels shall be inspired to further increases has been a question which administration officials have avoided.

This is particularly true in connection with agricultural products. Both cotton and wheat prices have advanced rapidly, but agricultural recovery officials have announced their purpose to go ahead with their plans for imposing heavy processing taxes with which to pay agriculturists rewards for cutting down their production.

The rapid advance in prices of commodities, ranging from wheat to clothes and razor blades and ready-to-eat foodstuffs, in the opinion of some economists engaged in the recovery work, is bringing the whole plan face to face with the warning issued by Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, retired, national industrial recovery administrator.

Warning by Johnson.

Gen. Johnson warned that too rapid advance in prices would defeat the efforts toward economic recovery because it would dissipate effectiveness of efforts to increase purchasing power because it would eat up the benefits of higher wages and increased employment before these could get a chance to "bite in" effectively.

What is to be done about licensing of industries, deciding what constitutes a fair profit, what constitutes a reasonable output, are questions which have not been pushed to anything like settlement. As a matter of fact these questions have been pushed behind the scenes in public discussions.

Gen. Johnson has sought to build up a public mind which would prompt just about every industry in the country to come to the Government with individual codes proposing shorter working hours and higher wages. So far only one code, that of the cotton textile industry, has been dealt with. The cotton code is expected to be submitted to the President this week with certain unspecified suggestions by Gen. Johnson and his advisory boards and experts.

Textile Code Up.

The next code to be taken up is expected to be that of the complicated and widespread women's wear industry. The textile code provides for minimum wages of $12 in the South and $13 in the North, with a maximum work week of 40 hours in both sections. Labor has asked that the working hours be reduced. Gen. Johnson has not seemed sympathetic toward further reduction in working hours in the cotton industry, but has been emphatic in his declarations that that code shall not serve as a wage or work-week precedent for other industries. Frankly, the recovery administrator does not want to go so far that he will displease employers and forestall submission of other codes by industries.

What is to be done about the expenditure of the $3,300,000,000 public works fund must also be decided by the President. Those who are fearful of a run-away price-raising boom are anxious that the Government do nothing to help the thing along. Others believe that unless the Government carries out its announced plans to help recovery along the new-born boom will die of malnutrition and the situation will be worse than before and revival of public confidence will be very difficult.

What the public thinks about the situation may be gleaned from the boom in prices on the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges, as well as on the grain markets and reports of increasing reluctance on the part of agriculturlists to cut down their acreage in view of the rising prices, despite the Government promises of compensation.

Vets Reveal How U. S. Cuts Hit Disabled

Rerating of 338,000 Soldiers Causes Check on Appropriations.

(Editor's Note: This is another of a series of articles prepared by staff writers of The Associated Press to explain in simple terms the important laws enacted at the last session of Congress.)

Upon cutting expenditures for veterans the Roosevelt Administration has depended largely to reduce the cost of Government, but Congress amended the legislation and lessened the severity of the cuts first ordered. Here in brief is the net result:

The appropriation for veterans during the fiscal year begun this month is $581,988,000. Last year it was $927,949,000.

Between 400,000 and 500,000 former service men, among them 387,000 World War veterans who have become partially disabled since the war and can not attribute their condition to service, have received their last Government checks. Last year the latter group drew $83,000,000.

Funds Hard Hit.

The Veterans' Administration is undertaking to rerate 338,000 disabled veterans whose condition is attributable to war duty. The funds to pay them have been cut from $203,689,000 in 1933, to an estimated $118,272,000 for 1934. Of this group 150,000 cases are "presumptive," meaning there is no evidence that war caused their troubles but laws have given them the right to claim so. Special reviewing boards will be set up to decide in each case whether the claim is to remain in force or whether the man shall be dropped from the roll.

In rerating those definitely of the service-connected class and the remaining presumptives, new schedules of disability percentage and payment go into effect. A man judged 10 per cent disabled will get $9 a month or up, depending on conditions. If 100 per cent disabled, from $90 up, the ratings running in multiples of ten. Previously they ran 10, 25, 50, 75 and 100 per cent. For the service-connected the rerating is to be effective from July 1, and will be accomplished as quickly as possible. They are expected to be reduced an average of 18 per cent.

Presumptive Cases.

As for presumptive cases, until October 31, or until an earlier board decision, each man will be cut 25 per cent. After determination, those remaining on the rolls are expected to get, on the average, 18 per cent less than up to this year.

All World War and Spanish-American War veterans who are totally disabled, regardless of service origin, will receive base pay of $30 a month.

Roughly 75,000 Spanish War veterans have been taken off the rolls. Of the 123,000 remaining, most will receive $15 a month instead of $20 to $60.

No change is made in compensation to widows, orphans and dependent parents of deceased veterans, but three-quarters of a million is to be saved by sifting out cases in which fraud or mistakes entered. A flat 10 per cent cut is in force for pensioners remaining from the earlier wars, Civil, Mexican, &c.

Heretofore, any former soldier falling ill could go to a Government hospital. That is no longer possible. The veterans' hospitals will care only for those suffering disabilities which originated in service plus all they can of the others who are destitute.

The 6,014 emergency retired officers receiving payments aggregating $11,000,000 in 1933 will be reduced this month to approximately 2,500 for whom $3,000,000 is allotted.

Fair Parachute Leap Results in Tragedy

Chicago, July 4 (A.P.).—Rescue boats plied Lake Michigan tonight in a search for Joseph Wilson, parachute jumper, who was believed to have fallen to his death from an airplane when his parachute failed to open.

Attired in an "Uncle Sam" costume, Wilson jumped from a plane 2,000 feet above the world's fair grounds intending to make a delayed drop, but his parachute failed to open and he fell into the lake as thousands of spectators watched.

Lightning Kills Mountain Climber.

Denver, July 4 (A.P.).—On an outing today, Roger A. McDougall, 24, State Highway employe, climbed to the Summit of Mount Evans, 14,000 feet elevation. Turning back from the highest point, he was struck by a lightning bolt and killed instantly.

Adviser of Johnson on Codes Active in World War Finance Emergency.

Now Chicago Insurance Broker; Formerly News Reporter.

By Robert F. Whitney.

So, graphically and mathematically, Dudley Cates, assistant administrator for industry, describes his opinion of the measure.

He sees for industry, not regimentation under a dictatorship, but help to help itself.

Mr. Cates, who knows Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator, from serving with him on the directorates of several corporations, comes to Washington with an extremely varied carreer behind him.

As in the case of almost all of the men who are being called here to carry out the President's great program for rehabilitation of the Nation, he served during the World War emergency.

He was secretary and economic adviser to the Capital Issues Corporation, a subsidiary of the War Finance Corporation.

Later he was asked by Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass to aid in the clearing of the tangled affairs of the War Risk Insurance. There, he served as assistant director for nearly a year.

Cates' job now is advising Gen. Johnson on the industrial phases of the codes through which men are to be put to work. He shares the long hours and difficult labors which the preliminary affairs of the program are calling for.

Industrialists come to his office to seek advice, some "in a stew and full of the phobias about the Government in business," he says.

Cates was born in 1887 at Richmond, Ind. His father and grandfather were country bankers. He attended the Michigan Military Academy, now defunct.

Then, he says, he spent a year on an Idaho ranch, leaving there with the avowed intention of attending the University of California.

The plan went awry. The next year he was a reporter on the Mercury at San Jose, Calif.

Then he reached the University of California. He was a member of the class of 1911, but did not graduate. "I have no degrees," he says.

At the university he edited its daily paper and was initiated into Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity.

At present he is vice president of Marsh & McLennan, insurance brokers of Chicago. He is married and has four children. His home is at Winnetka, Ill.

His father-in-law is William Dudley Foulke, who will be remembered in Washington as the adviser and friend of Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Foulke was a Civil Service Commissioner.

Mr. Cates took an active part in affairs of San Francisco in the early part of his career. He was an editorial writer and reporter on the Call there, and later became interested in public utility and taxation problems, serving as a trustee of the Bureau of Government Research.

23 West Virginia Cities Seek Relief

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 4.—Twenty-three West Virginia cities and towns will apply immediately for public works project funds under the National Recovery Act as the result of action taken at a meeting of the West Virginia League of Municipalities just held in this city.

That number formally affiliated with the league and planned to obtain the necessary funds for the project inasmuch as a new State law permits municipalities to issue bonds for them without an election and these bond proceeds, which will be supplied by the Federal government, will provide the funds needed to obtain the 30 per cent grant under the recovery act.

A. G. Martin, Mayor of Fairmont, is the new head of the league, having been chosen to succeed Dr. W. J. Koelz, of Keyser, who recently retired as mayor of his home city and was ineligible to continue in the position. He, as well as A. Spates Brady, of Elkins, and Dr. S. G. Bird, of Princeton, also retiring mayors, were elected honorary members.

R. P. Devan, Mayor of Charleston, was elected vice president, and Gordon P. Fought, Mayor-Manager of Wheeling; Mayor M. G. Harper of Princeton and Daniel Leonard, Parkersburg City attorney, were chosen directors.

Ickes Honors Washington at Jersey Shrine

Secretary, at Morristown, Pays Moving Tribute to Nation's Father.

Morristown, N. J., July 4 (A.P.). Speaking amid the green-clad slopes of Morristown, where George Washington quartered his ragged troops during two trying winters in the Revolutionary War, Secretary Harold L. Ickes today paid moving tribute to Washington and accepted the deeds to the newly created Morristown Historical National Park on behalf of the Federal Government.

The park combines three separate national shrines, Jockey Hollow, Fort Nonsense and the Headquarters—the old Ford Mansion.

Lloyd W. Smith, of Florham Park, presented the deed for 1,000 acres of land in Jockey Hollow; Mayor Clyde Potts presented deeds to Fort Nonsense and 300 acres in Jockey Hollow on behalf of the City of Morristown.

The camp sites of the First and Second Connecticut Brigade were given by Charles W. McAlpin and the Washington Headquarters by the State of New Jersey and the Washington Association.

President Roosevelt, in a message to Gov. A. Harry Moore, said he had followed "with extreme pleasure the splendid efforts of the citizens of your State as well as others in bringing about the creation of the Morristown Historical National Park, and I sincerely regret that I am unable to accept the gracious invitation to be present at the dedicatory exercises at Morristown, July 4."

Declaring it was the leadership of Washington which provided the colonies with the winning margin over England, Ickes said that "under our system of self-government, with our fluidity of political movement, especially in times of crises such as these, we must have that same firm, strong and far-seeing leadership that made it possible for us to stand here today a free people."

Gore Urges Beer Tax For Mothers' Pension

San Juan, Puerto Rico, July 4 (A.P.).—Gov. Robert H. Gore, inaugurated Saturday as the eleventh American chief executive of Puerto Rico, in a speech today urged that revenues from taxes on beer, wine and other beverages be set aside to establish a pension fund for destitute mothers. The governor's address, part of a Fourth of July celebration, was followed by a parade.

Gen. V. B. Collins and other members of the staff of Gov. Scholts of Florida, who escorted Gov. Gore to the island last week, returned to Miami today by airplane.

Square Deal Pledged To Disabled Veterans

Spartanburg, S. C., July 4 (A.P.). Disabled war veterans may expect a "square deal as well as a new deal" from President Roosevelt, Harry W. Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War, told the South Carolina Department of the American Legion today.

"I also know," Mr. Woodring said, "that the American Legion as a group does not want unwarranted nor undeserved aid from the Federal Government. Our former-service men are receiving a per capita payment, based upon dead and wounded, of $2,668.66, as compared with an average of $53.80 for the other major powers of the World War."

New Hampshire Plane Crash Injures Three

Keene, N. H., July 4 (A.P.).—Three persons were injured, one probably fatally, in an airplane crash near Keene Airport late today.

Carl Demerse, 23, of Marlboro, a passenger, suffered a fractured skull and a crushed chest. Surgeons said he probably would die. Sumner Raymond, 23, of Keene, also a passenger, suffered a loosened collar bone and lacerations to the face, while the pilot, Leo Trembly, 24, of Concord, suffered a head injury and lacerations.

Railroad Line Escapes Bomb Blast in Austria

Landeck, Austria, July 4 (A.P.).—A bomb explosion on the approach to one of the most important railway bridges on the main line of the Vienna-Innsbruck-Zurich Railroad startled the countryside between Piams and Strengen, west of here, at midnight. Two bombs had been placed in a cut a few feet from a bridge over the Trisanna River, which is 400 feet wide.

Only one exploded and that did no damage to the track, but shattered all windows in the nearby Isberg Castle.

U. S. Prepared For Retaliatory Moves Abroad

By Harold J. T. Horan.

The United States has quietly buttressed the national economic position here in view of possible retaliatory moves from abroad against the President's energetic stand on monetary stabilization. Any drive toward the economic nationalism which has been covertly broached by the delegates from the gold bloc at the London Conference will find the United States in an excellent position to maintain its own relative position.

The two latest developments along this line concern the delicate question of national tariffs, which have been put forward by the American delegation at London as a secondary line of approach to the solution of the conference's less litigious problems.

It became known here last night that two significant incidents have occurred in the last week to strengthen the hand of this Government in any struggle for world markets. They are as follows:

First, Acting Secretary of State William Phillips, before he left on his extended vacation, conveyed to several European and South American nations who had participated in the White House exchange of views, the broad hint that nothing further was to be done by this Government on the making of reciprocal tariff treaties "for a while;" and Second, the United States on June 29 last notified the League of Nations of its withdrawal from the Treaty on Importation and Exportation Restrictions and Prohibitions.

This treaty was originally made in 1927 and was signed by 19 nations. The withdrawal of the United States automatically means the conclusion of the agreement as it existed. The underlying reason for the American withdrawal was believed to be the desire of this Government to have its hands free in the event of any tariff struggle or bargaining period between the nations.

What was believed to be still more significant with regard to the future tariff policy of this Government is the exception made in favor of the Canadian, Cuban and Mexican governments in the demarche of Acting Secretary Phillips. While the American State Department was discouraging any activity from other European and South American countries toward the making of reciprocal tariff treaties, informal assurances were given to the northern, southern and Caribbean neighboring States that their reciprocal tariff negotiations would be given every facility. Other countries who feel that they had been left out of the new tariff deal have communicated their sentiments, in many instances, to their respective delegations in London, with the result that the general atmosphere of the conference has not been materially aided thereby.

However, it was indicated here in authoritative circles that the pessimism regarding the fate of the other reciprocal tariff treaties is exaggerated. While it is conceded that there exists a necessity for making the Canadian, Cuban and Mexican tariff agreements at the present time, the other treaties can be just as easily arranged on these models after they have been in operation.

These two most recent instances of a growing economic chauvinism in the United States tend to round out the internal program of the United States as it is envisaged in the National Industrial Recovery Act, the Agricultural Stabilization Act and the $3,300,000,000 public works program. It is taken to mean here in diplomatic circles that the United States is preparing to plow back into the American industrial set-up whatever profits will accrue in the administration of the new economic program, instead of spreading them over newer industrial empires abroad.

The precautions that have been taken by the government in tariff preparedness may never be necessary. If the London Conference succeeds, the tariff questions of every nation will be conciliated in the broad agreements of the conference. However, if the present schism started by the gold bloc widens, as it has every indication of doing, the necessity of a well organized and perfectly coordinated tariff system will be the most necessary safeguard against the intensive competition that will arise in every country.

Twin Star Victor In Culpeper Race

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., July 4.—Twin Star, entry of H. W. Herring and son, Nokesville, galloped home to win the 2½ mile steeple chase at the opening day of the nineteenth annual Culpeper Horse Show here today. Mrs. A. S. Bowman, Culpeper, took two first places with High Lady in the first and "Schley B" in the fourth.

More than 6,000 persons witnessed the show in which more than 250 horses were entered.

In the four flat races, the favorites ran true to predictions in every case except in the third race when Infatuation, J. C. Phillips' entry, headed Armageddon, the favorite, to take first place.

Perfect weather greeted the opening day of the show.

Winchester Nurse Courses Will End

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 4.—Announcement was made today by Dr. Hunter H. McGuire, president of Winchester Memorial Hospital, that beginning on September 1 that institution would discontinue its nursing school, which has been in operation here since the hospital was started, more than 30 years ago.

Dr. McGuire said the board of directors had voted to suspend the nursing school for one year and longer if the experiment proved successful. The main reason for discontinuing the nursing school, the hospital president added, was owing to the high expense necessary in meeting new rules laid down by the American Nursing Society.

Graduate nurses will be employed for regular duty at the hospital in lieu of the student nurses, he explained.

Fiscal Shifts Ease Shock of U. S. Job Cuts

July 1 Changes Are Made on Basis of Switches Among Employes.

By Robert C. Albright.

New Fiscal year personnel adjustments, which temporarily at least cost the jobs of some 4,000 Federal employes in Washington, have absorbed much of the shock of the $25,000,000 reorganization program scheduled to follow on August 10, it was learned last night.

Anticipating the many shifts, realignments and elimination of Federal agencies ordered by the President before Congress adjourned, but legally ineffective for a sixty-day period, departments have allowed for these in making July 1 changes.

Adjustments Incomplete.

Adjustments, however, remained incomplete in most departments as the President returned last night to the active direction of governmental matters at Washington.

One of the first items of departmental policy before the Chief Executive as he takes his desk will be the question of reemploying competent employes losing out as a result of bureau cuts, and the advisability of devising a uniform rotative furlough plan for all of the departments. Influence is being exerted to gain preference for ousted Federal workers in the new emergency set-ups.

Some agencies were known to be holding up final announcement of personnel changes pending the possible intervention by the White House.

A Democratic committee's request that employes "blanketed" into Civil Service during the Harding, Coolidge and Hoover administrations, be required to take an open competitive examination for their jobs, also awaits White House action.

Farley's Opinion.

Postmaster General Farley told the committee, headed by Representative James V. McClintic, (Dem.), Oklahoma, he thought employes unfairly covered into the service be "unblanketed." He will lay this question before the President.

Departments are moving, meanwhile, to carry out reorganizations scheduled to go into effect August 10.

Release of 1,300 employes of the old Bureau of Prohibition anticipated the transfer of investigatory functions of that bureau to the Justice Department, and licensing functions to the Division of Internal Revenue.

Attorney General Cummings told newspapermen much of the retrenchment effected in the Justice Department would not have been possible if it had not been for the President's reorganization orders.

Allow for Mergers.

Agriculture Department officials conceded they were allowing for prospective consolidations and other reorganization changes in releasing more than 600 employes last week.

At least one of the reorganization orders is being held in abeyance, however, due principally to the protest of Senator Joseph T. Robinson (Dem.), Arkansas.

That order called for 25 per cent cuts in agriculture extension activities, land grant colleges and vocational education. The Senate adopted a resolution to stop execution of the order, and indications are it will not be carried out until the House has had an opportunity to act.

Meanwhile the Budget Bureau is going forward with studies looking to a generally more comprehensive reorganization program when Congress returns in January.

Girl Will Direct Post's Refueling

New York, July 4 (A.P.).—Miss Fay Gillis, of Minneapolis, 23-year-old aviatrix, will direct the refueling of Wiley Post's monoplane "Winnie Mae, of Oklahoma," at two Siberian points on his projected world solo flight.

Lee Trenholm, Post's representative, said today Miss Gillis had left Moscow on June 25 for Novo-Sibirsk, where the aviator plans to stop after leaving Berlin. While Post eats and takes a short nap she will supervise replenishment of the gas tanks and any adjustments the plane needs.

Miss Gillis then expects to board the craft with Post, Trenholm said, for the flight to Khabarovsk, where she will direct servicing of the "Winnie Mae" for the long over-water jump to North America.

Post landed at Floyd Bennett Field today, ready to start his solo flight around the world as soon as minor adjustments are made on his compass and the weather becomes favorable.

Machines Termed Education Threat

Creation of Caste System Is Likely to Result, Says Chicago Educator.

Chicago, July 4 (A.P.).—The machine age is jeopardizing American education and threatens to create a caste system, teachers were told today by Charles H. Judd, University of Chicago educator.

More than a half-million students, Judd told the National Education Association, are graduated or drop out of American schools each year and seek work. For two decades, he said, industry and commerce have failed to supply them with jobs.

He urged the teachers to resist attempts to "reduce education to the status of 1870" by showing the public that the fault lies in governmental machinery and "iniquitous taxing systems."

Korean Floods Fatal to 55.

Seoul, Korea, July 4 (A.P.).—The death list from floods in Rakuto Valley reached 55 today, as waters began subsiding. The number of homeless was set at 80,000, Rengo (Japanese) news agency reported, and property damage at 10,000,000 yen (currently $2,700,000).

Beer Revenue In 32 States Is $7,000,000

$725,000 in Philadelphia Leads Cities' Returns Since Legalization.

Chicago, July 4 (A.P.).—Beer produced more than $7,000,000 in revenue since its legalization April 7 for 32 States and the District of Columbia on the basis of incomplete returns today.

That amount was in addition to a much larger sum collected by the Federal Government through an excise tax of $5 a barrel and in various license fees.

Most State returns were fragmentary. In only 18 has the sale of beer been legal since April. Several States made reports for one month only. Eight States, Colorado, Georgia, Minnesota, Missouri, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming, have no State excise tax Missouri collects an inspection fee of 1 cent a gallon. The other Commonwealths in this group depend solely on license fees for revenue.

Laws Vary in States.

Several States have left the collection of license fees entirely to cities and municipalities. Only a handful of such cities have made any returns on revenue so obtained. Missouri and Connecticut, however, have refused cities permission to levy license fees, entire control remaining with the State.

Chicago has yet to pass regulatory ordinances and fix fees.

The sale of beer is illegal in nine States, Alabama, Arkansas, Kansas, Mississippi, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Virginia. Georgia has not legalized the sale of the brew, but several of its cities have legalized it under local option and have been upheld in court action.

Export Manufacture Only.

Utah and Nebraska permit the manufacture of beer for export only. Sale will be permitted in Nebraska after August 10.

Massachusetts, New Mexico, Ohio, Vermont and Washington made no reports on revenue received from beer.

Among the cities reporting on revenue were: Atlanta, Ga., $20,000; Des Moines, Iowa, $34,000; Cedar Rapids, Iowa, $13,100; Dubuque, Iowa $11,000; Sioux City, Iowa, $10,000; Louisville, $30,000; Covington, Ky., $18,750; New Orleans, $50,000; Baltimore, $175,000; Minneapolis, $60,000; St. Paul, Minn., $33,000; Helena, Mont., $87,000; Paterson, N. J., $29,315; Newark, $80,000; Atlantic City, $10,000; Portland, Oreg., $21,142; Philadelphia, $725,000; Scranton, Pa., $88,000; Providence, $25,000.

-:- The Federal Diary -:- By George D. Riley -:-

It is fitting that fireworks should be set off near Commerce so soon after the grand departmental blow-ups. Mr. Roper, we are assured, is the friend of the Civil Service worker.

DISCARDING the adage that "everything comes to him who waits," F. W. Herron, 1610 I street northwest, one of the 613 I. C. C. employes given three months furlough and dismissal notice effective thereafter, asks that all present and former Federal Civil Service workers rally in common cause.

F. W. Herron.

Mr. Herron suggests an informal organization without dues or fees of any kind, "whose purpose shall be to obtain, if possible, definite assurance that all efficient employes shall retain their Civil Service status, and shall be given absolute preference in making all future appointments to governmental positions."

He further says "I have worked out a tentative plan for such an organization which I shall be glad to explain to interested parties." Mr. Herron can be reached at ME-0954.

Those first to rally to this informal call for mutual help will be asked to assist in molding a definite policy, after which a general meeting will be called, the time and place to be announced in The Federal Diary. More than 16 years Mr. Herron has worked in the Bureau of Valuation, I. C. C.

"IF I WERE KING."

THE Federal Diary today announces rules for its de luxe patronage pie-eating contest. You'll eat it and like it:

First, each ambassador should park his yacht. Place it at the disposal of Uncle Sam, who is trying to balance his budget. Let's see. The Eala, Ambassador Bingham's yacht, should be somewhere around Annapolis or Salisbury. A bit obsolete, true, but the Sequoia is running a temperature on up-and-down-the-Potomac outings.

Second, all pie-seekers should bring their own plates, collection plates, if you will. Lapel buttons will bear, "I Have Given, Have You?" It will be insisted that 15 per cent of the annual pay be given over to the Pie Passing Board to defray deficit and build a slush fund. Applicants must know that spoils pie is not subject to the 15 per cent cut Civil Service workers must suffer.

Third, congressmen should be allowed to tear their hair and threaten because their favorites do not get to the dessert course earlier. They are hereby warned that unless they vote right they will not even get crumbs.

My Dear Mr. Riley:

The following appeared in the "Help Wanted" column of the New York Times and the New York American a few days ago:

Retail chain store organization wants experienced buyer, who has contacts with producers, shippers and wholesale dealers. Preference will be given to individuals who have passed United States Civil Service examination for market specialist.

This is far from being the first instance of the recognition by private industry of the value of the examinations of this commission, but it is nonetheless gratifying.

H. E. MORGAN,
Assistant Chief, Editing and Recruiting Division, Civil Service Commission.

That's fine. If the Government would continue to show the same interest in the value of civil service in filling those "temporary" two-year jobs.

WASHINGTON POST file for June 13, 1909, carried a story on the suggestion made by Capt. Evelyn Briggs Baldwin, recent Navy Department employe and noted explorer, inventor and scientist, that Congress awaken to the importance of aviation. Capt. Baldwin thus was another of those few men ahead of his time.

The file for December 9, 1928 contains a story telling of 54 nations to hold a world aeronautic congress here. And like the father of other ideas, Capt. Baldwin failed even to get mention.

It is the case of Capt. Baldwin that The Federal Diary hopes to see weighed and given justice at the White House. The captain, listed in countless "Who's Who" volumes and reference books, has been left to shift for himself. He can be placed in some position that will allow him to spend his remaining days usefully and gainfully to the Government.

He was born in Guernsey County, Ohio, educated in the local schools of that county and in the Ohio State University at Columbus. He taught school for nearly 12 years and during a portion of that time he read law and was admitted to the bar in the State of Missouri in 1899.

Mr. Hunter practiced law for nine years and was with a fraternal insurance society more than 15 years. He entered the Government service June 26, 1918. His associates in the Clearing Division of the Income Tax Unit presented him with a billfold containing $25 upon retirement. The presentation speech was made by T. F. Langley, head of the Clearing Division.

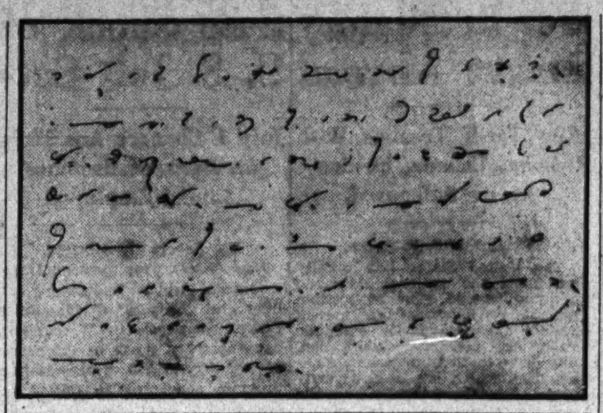
Medicine and Surgery, Navy—Frank C. Warman, jr., has transferred to the office of the Comptroller of Currency, Treasury.

Mrs. Vivian H. Chaffin (*) has transferred to Yards and Docks.



REPLY to C. S. C.

IT appears that it is up to no one to criticize the new deal except constructively, as we are all certainly seriously concerned with improving conditions generally. It appears, however, that it is up to any class to endeavor to protect themselves, provided they are not guilty of practices that are inimical to others.

This seems to be a very unappropriate time for the Civil Service Commission to take a stand that civil service employes should not hold or seek any outside and out of hours employment. Furloughs are announced or in the offing, married folks will have to give up on family job in some instances, the pay cut holds and the prices of things are tending upward.

The textile industry hearings have filled the papers with talk of a minimum weekly wage of from $10 to $17. If the division of work continues unduly there will be only a few industries left, as everyone will be on an absolute minimum basis and the only wants that one will be able to supply will be a moderate amount of the cheaper foods, the absolutely essential clothing and deficient if livable housing.—New Deal.

OUR FIRED CLERKS.

The hot midsummer days are come
The bluest of the year,
When faces of our fired clerks
Are failing to appear.

Some few retired of their free will,
And some were forced to go;
Still others by the "married clause,"
Just passed three months ago.

And now to those remaining here,
"You'll have to work like hell;"
I know not whence the order came,
But sounds just like Chief Bell.

G. A. O. POET.

Quebec Court Told Story of Race Swindle

Railwayman, 73, Says Pair Duped Him of $20,000 in Betting Plot.

Quebec, July 4 (A.P.).—The story of how he was duped out of $20,000, his life's savings, by a group of confidence men here in 1930, was told in Court of Sessions today by John Sheehan, 73-year-old railwayman, of Bradford, Pa., at preliminary inquiry into the case of Joseph Ordus, of New York, alleged member of the gang.

Ordus was brought here yesterday by provincial police, who took him over from the American authorities at Jersey City, where he had just served eighteen months in jail.

Sheehan said he met Ordus here in August, 1930, and also became acquainted with another man named Fisher. The complainant said Ordus was alleged to have won a large sum of money on a race, but that a deposit of $75,000 was required before the money could be obtained. He said that Fisher agreed to put up $55,000 and asked him if he would deposit $20,000 to secure the money which Ordus had won.

Sheehan agreed and while Fisher supposedly went to New York for his share, Sheehan went to Bradford and withdrew his money from a bank there. Returning to Quebec he met Ordus and Fisher and together they drove to an office building. Sheehan handed over the money and was later driven to the railway station by Ordus, who directed him to take a train for Pittsburgh, where he would meet him in the course of a few days.

The hearing is continuing.

New Deal Hit By Shoemaker And Lovelace

Roosevelt Is Assailed by Representative as Dictator.

Shunning polo, motorboat racing and other nearby attractions, a small but attentive audience heard Representative Francis Shoemaker, Farmer-Laborite, of Minnesota, and other speakers excoriate President Roosevelt and the new deal at the Sylvan Theater yesterday afternoon.

Representative Shoemaker, who once served a prison term for expressing himself too freely, declared that "we are now living under the ragged individualism of Roosevelt," and that "we no longer have a democracy but a dictatorship controlled by dictators."

He described recruits in the reforestation movement as "a sapling army." The relief program is merely a breathing space for the capitalists, he asserted.

All the campaign promises of Roosevelt have been broken, Richard Lovelace, of the veterans national rank and file committee, declared. The working people will never win their rights until the capitalistic system is overthrown, he said.

Marion R. Malone, of the Socialist party; Gertrude Krupp, of the Tenants and Unemployed League, and Vivian Will, of the Farm Research, Inc., were the other speakers. Harlan E. Glazier, presided. The meeting was conducted by the District of Columbia committee of the Continental Congress for Economic Reconstruction.

Reach for a Lucky —for always Luckies Please!

My reason for liking Luckies is strictly personal

After all—since I smoke quite a number of cigarettes each day—don't you think it's just as well that I lean in the right direction? Perhaps you'd call my reason for liking "Toasting" the assurance of purity it gives me—for Luckies come in rather close personal contact with me, you know. Just knowing that each puff of Lucky smoke I draw in is pure—it makes the pleasure of fragrant toasted tobacco that much greater. Certainly, purity never hurt anyone! And besides—"Luckies Please!"

Mrs. Ida Smith Chosen as New W.C.T.U. Head

Liquor Foe for 50 Years Is Elected to Succeed Mrs. Ella Boole.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 4 (A.P.). Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, of Des Moines, Iowa, 50 years a worker in its cause, today was elected president of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union succeeding Mrs. Ella A. Boole of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The new president, who yesterday observed her sixty-second birthday, has been preacher, educator, and militant foe of liquor. She started her devotion to temperance at the age of 12 as a Sunday school teacher in a little Iowa village and has been at it ever since.

She is known as one of the most uncompromising of the W. C. T. U. In the days of the saloon in Iowa the national retail liquor dealers once met in an Iowa city. Mrs. Smith published a satirical "welcome" in the local paper which resulted, it was stated then, in the association determing never again to meet in that State.

Mrs. Smith is a familiar figure at every session of the Iowa Legislature and has been a power in national political conventions. She is credited with an important part in placing Charles Curtis on the Republican ticket with Herbert Hoover in 1928.

"Iowa's most distinguished woman," as the governor of that State termed her in 1928, was born in Philadelphia. She moved to Iowa and graduated from the Hamburg High School. Her first husband, James A. Wise, died in 1902. Ten years later she married Malcolm Smith, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, who died in 1915. She has one son, Carl E. Wise, of Los Angeles. For ten years she taught in the Des Moines schools.

Her intimates describe Mrs. Smith as intensely religious. The Church of Christ, of which she is a member, gave her an honorary ordination as minister and she has occupied many pulpits. Two years ago she made an intensive study of the Holy Lands. She can recite several thousand Bible verses.

For the past twenty years Mrs. Smith has been president of the Iowa W. C. T. U. She was vice president of the National Body the last seven years.

Her political affiliation, she says, is "the prohibition party, when there is one; otherwise the Republican party."

Southerners Pass Fourth as Sabbath

Vicksburg, Miss., July 4 (A.P.).—The deep South fried catfish, danced square dances and got ready to lay by its crops today in commemoration of the Nation's independence.

The Fourth of July down here is not an hilarious holiday as it is in the North. Christmas is the big day for noise and frolics in Dixie, and although the Fourth is observed quite noisily in the cities, it is a day of rest and meditation in the hamlets and on the plantations.

The Fourth of July was long a day of mourning in Dixie. Vicksburg fell on this day in 1863. Gettysburg was lost July 3 of the same year. And Sherman was marching on Atlanta in July of 1864. It's passing now, but the custom of considering the Fourth more like a Sabbath than a glorious day is still inviolate in sections of the South.

Youth Drowns in River While on Family Outing

Pearisburg, Va., July 4 (A.P.).—A family outing on the banks of New River near here this afternoon ended in tragedy when Paul Carper, 17, was drowned in the "rapids" in sight of his brothers and sisters.

The family went to the river, about a half mile from their home, for a picnic. Paul and his brothers were swimming when the former got in difficulty in the swift current. His parents were not in sight and his companions were not able to save him. The body had not been recovered early tonight. The youth was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carper, whose home is near Pearisburg.

5th New Biplane Here Makes First Flight

The fifth Condor biplane to be assigned to the high-speed Washington-New York service made its first run yesterday over Eastern Air Transport's line. The plane, recently turned out of the factory in St. Louis, came through Washington on the regular schedule, after having radio installed at the company's Atlanta plant.

Pennsylvania Airlines, connecting Washington with Pittsburgh and Cleveland, will soon install three Ford 15-passenger planes to care for increasing traffic. The planes have been purchased from United Air Transport, and are bigger and faster than the Stinson tri-motors now in use which they will supplement.

Germany Hits Polish Land Reform Schemes

Berlin, July 4 (A.P.).—Germany applied today to The Hague Arbitration Court for a temporary injunction against Poland to prevent enforcement of alleged discriminatory land reform measures against German landowners from that country. The question has been the subject of fruitless negotiations between the two governments and also in the council of the League of Nations.

At Berlin it was explained that the injunction was desired to prevent Germany being faced with an accomplished fact.

Pennsylvania Composer Honored.

Bardstown, Ky., July 4 (A.P.).—A massed chorus of 3,000 voices sang "My Old Kentucky Home" and other melodies of Stephen Collins Foster in tribute to the Pennsylvania composer at My Old Kentucky Home State Park here today. Approximately 8,000 attended the exercises.

Family Spurns Official Rites For Yrigoyen

Refusal of Argentina to Exhibit Ex-Chief's Body Causes Dispute.

Buenos Aires, July 4 (A.P.).—Because the Argentine government refused to permit an exhibition of the body of the deposed President Hipolito Yrigoyen in a public place, his family declined tonight to accept the proffered official funeral honors.

Minister of Interior Melo said later the official honors would take place despite the rejection, declaring "decrees are issued to be enforced."

The cabinet previously had decreed the customary national funeral and ten days' official mourning for the radical party's idolized leader, who died last night, but prefaced the decree with a statement that it was "the government's duty to conform impartially to the established custom regardless of the concepts which may have motivated the public life of the deceased."

The national funeral was set for Thursday noon. The family and the radical party had requested that the remains be exhibited in some public square or in a national cathedral. When this was denied, they decided to keep the body on view in the humble little apartment over a toy shop where Yrigoyen lived in recent years, except for his two periods of imprisonment since his overthrow in the 1930 revolution.

The body of Argentina's "greatest man of the people" lay in state, clad in a monk's white tunic with a rosary clasped in his hands. Thousands of his admirers passed in single file all through last night and today.

When the Government's refusal of a public exhibit became known, the radical party leaders organized a parade to demand reconsideration but mounted troops dispersed the manifestants. This was after the marchers had stopped before the closed doors of the prominent newspaper La Prensa to hoot and jeer that publication because it confined the news of Yrigoyen's death to an obscure place in an inside page.

Sweet Springs Fall Hurts Society Matron

Hot Springs, Va., July 4 (A.P.).—Mrs. L. Brooks Leavitt, prominent New York society matron and sportswoman, today was recuperating from a serious fall which occurred when her horse stumbled on a mountain trail at Sweet Springs, where she was passing the summer.

Mrs. Leavitt was found on the trail and carried to a hospital, where it was learned she had sustained a fracture of the shoulder. Her physician today reported her condition as "satisfactory," but said she probably would not be able to leave the hospital for three weeks.

Germany May Cause Rotary to Withdraw

Montreal, July 4 (A.P.).—John Nelson, of Montreal, newly elected president of Rotary International, announced today that he and several other officers will leave for Germany soon to attempt rectification of a situation which might involve the withdrawal of Rotary from that country.

He explained that recent political developments in Germany had given rise to fears that the Rotary organization might not be allowed to reflect the spirit of the German people and that if such were the case the situation would be corrected. He said members of Rotary International are allowed to subscribe to any form of government they desire.

Saskatchewan Wheat Crop Razed by Storm

Regina, Saskatchewan, July 4 (A. P.).—Raked by a hailstorm that struck about 80 miles northwest of Regina, through the Huronville district, 150,000 acres of Saskatchewan's fine wheat crop has been partly destroyed.

Accompanied by a deluge of rain, the storm broke late yesterday, blowing sheds and granaries about the prairies, killing chickens and thrashing thousands of acres of grain crops into the ground.

Levi Austensen Stricken as He Unfurls Flag

Life came to Levi Austensen on a hardy Norwegian freighter as it tossed in the blue and choppy Pacific outside California's Golden Gate. Yesterday—some 60 years later—death came to him at his nearby Silver Spring home a few moments after he had raised the Stars and Stripes in honor of the birth of the country for which he had fought and bled and adopted as his native land.

Mr. Austensen, father of Philip Austensen, Montgomery County correspondent for The Post, was seized with a heart attack yesterday morning at his home, 8706 Georgia avenue, Silver Spring, Md. He died before medical aid could reach him.

A veteran of the Spanish-American War, Mr. Austensen's first act for many years on the morning of Fourth of July had been to raise the American flag on his front porch. He began to feel ill yesterday when he had performed this devotion.

Wife Died Two Months Ago.

Grief and wory had put an undue burden on Mr. Austensen in recent months. Three months ago his mother died in far away Norway. He had not seen her since he was a lad, and had planned to visit her before she had passed on. Then, two months ago, his wife died. Added to this, Mr. Austensen had worried over the Spanish War veterans' pension cuts, affecting not only himself but many friends in less auspicious circumstances.

Though born at sea on the ship of which his father was master and owner, Mr. Austensen always claimed the vessel's port of registry, Stavanger, Norway, as his place of nativity.

At the age of 16, he came to America and took up residence with relatives in Minnesota. When the war with Spain broke out, he joined the colors. At the battle of El Caney in Cuba, he fell as two bullets struck him simultaneously in the right leg.

During his suffering in a hospital tent, Col. Teddy Roosevelt, Rough Rider commander and President-to-be, often visited him, frequently bringing tobacco gifts.

In later years, Mr. Roosevelt was wont to remark on being visited by Mr. Austensen:

"Well, you know we wouldn't have won that war, if it hadn't been for you and me."

Served State Department.

After the war Mr. Austensen came to Washington and took a position with the State Department. This he occupied for 20 years and then transferred to the Veterans Bureau. He retired about five years ago.

Long active in church work, Mr. Austensen had attended both St. Aloysius and St. Patrick's Churches in Washington before moving to Montgomery County. The Holy Name Society of St. Michael's Catholic Church tonight will hold a service at the Austensen home.

Mr. Austensen is survived by his sons, Philip, Robert Joseph and Norman, and four brothers and a sister, last mentioned living in Norway. He was a charter member of the first Spanish War veterans post in the United States and helped to organize the District group of the Woodmen of the World.

Burial will be tomorrow in Arlington National Cemetery. Tentative funeral service plans call for a requiem mass at St. Michael's Church at 9:15 a. m. tomorrow in Silver Spring, with the Rev. Thomas A. Calnan, pastor, officiating.

Cotton Destroyed In Farmers Dispute

Declining Crop Agreement, Georgia Widow Gets Warning by Mob.

Albany, Ga., July 4 (A.P.).—An acre of cotton was destroyed last night on the Early County plantation of Mrs. H. E. Hightower, who has declined to sign an agreement to plow up a portion of her cotton leads in accordance with the proposed Government allotment plan.

Mrs. Hightower, widow of one of the largest growers in this section, declined to enter into the acreage reduction agreement on the grounds that her farm averages only eight acres of cotton to each of the 170 plows operated.

Authorities said they were without clews.

Livingston, N. J., July 4 (A.P.). The body of a man, believed by police to be a gangster, was found today slumped in the front seat of a stolen automobile. There was a bullet hole through his head. In the pockets were 17 cents, the unused half of a round trip New York-Newark tubes ticket, and a bill from the Hotel Taft.

The bill was bloodstained, but Police Chief William Ashby said the name appeared to be J. Litowski.

Rowland M. Parrott Dies.

Raleigh, N. C., July 4 (U.P.).—Rowland Milton Parrott, 54, past State commander of United Spanish War Veterans, died in a hospital here today. Parrott, a volunteer in active service in Cuba, failed to rally after a paralytic stroke.

Firecracker Kills Philadelphia Boy

Police Hunt Lads Who Hurled Salute Into 4-Year-Old's Face.

Philadelphia, July 4 (A.P.).—Fourth of July was celebrated in the Philadelphia area today at the cost of the life of 4-year-old Joseph Carney, and at least 60 persons burned and maimed.

Boys threw a firecracker in the child's face as he sat on the steps of his home. Police are searching for the boys.

Several of those injured were crippled for life or blinded by premature explosions.

The most serious accident was reported in Woodbury, N. J., where the two sons of Lieut. Clarence W. Chaddock, U. S. N., stationed at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, were injured in a premature explosion of a powder cannon they were loading in front of their home.

The force of the explosion struck Richard Chaddock in the right arm, mangling it so badly it had to be amputated. His brother, William, 14, had his right thumb torn off.

New York Vies With Far West In Bridge Play

Easterners' Team Leading Los Angeles by 1-2 Point at World's Fair.

Chicago, July 4 (A.P.).—Only half a point apart, Los Angeles and New York contract bridge players led at the end of the first day's play in the finals of the World's Fair Contract Bridge Pair Championship today. The tournament was one-third over.

With pairs from Boston and San Francisco failing to appear, formal opening of the tourney saw 22 pairs, representing 15 cities, at tables in Bridge Hall, on the Exposition Grounds.

There is no elimination play, the best score by the match point system at the end of 21 matches, each of four hands, winning the Joe and Ely Culbertson Gold Cup. Seven matches were played today by each team.

The leaders were Milton Adler and Alfred Shernwold, of New York, with 177 points. Next came Clarence A. Strouse, jr., and Philip Ayres, of Los Angeles, with 176½. Jack Kravatz and Robert E. Branigan, of Chicago, with 170, were in third place.

Competition proved unexpectedly keen, said George Reith, executive vice president of the United States Bridge Association, and Andrew J. Mouat, of Chicago, secretary of the American Whist League, in charge of the matches.

The maximum points that might have been scored by any pair was 280, Mr. Mouat said, giving the leaders a percentage of nearly 65, which he said was high for tournament play.

More State Debts.

The program of public works authorized by Congress is having a far-reaching influence upon State budgets. A number of States took drastic steps toward reduction of their expenditures when their legislatures met last winter. Now they are finding that they are out of harmony with the administration in Washington. They must either forgo some of the benefits dispensed from the National Capitol or forsake their economy programs.

At least three States are contemplating special legislative sessions to alter their fiscal policies as a result of events in Washington. A special session in Colorado is expected next month to provide for an election on a $35,000,000 bond issue to finance public works. Officials at Denver are anxious to get their share of the funds available at Washington, and they realize that they must raise money to match the Federal grant.

Kansas, too, finds its economy program out of harmony with the nation-wide effort to stimulate public works. Gov. Landon is expected to call the legislature to meet early in the fall to put Kansas on the list of States bidding for Federal construction funds. New Mexico is also considering a special session to deal with revenue matters because of the changed situation since its lawmakers went home.

A large share of the $3,300,000,000 made available by Congress for public works is offered to the States. The tentative Federal building program calls for only $400,000,000. Liberal inducements are offered to cities and States that are willing to build new sewers, water works, schools, &c. Outright Federal grants will be limited to 30 per cent of the cost of labor and materials going into State and local projects, but these grants may be supplemented by loans from the great public works purse. States may obtain as high as 70 per cent of the total cost of their projects in the form of loans, thus leaving them only an insignificant amount of capital to furnish.

Of course, all projects and plans for financing them must be approved in Washington. The degree of extravagance in which the States are allowed to indulge can thus be governed by the Public Works Board. But the possibility of obtaining easy money from Uncle Sam will be a strong incentive to the States to overestimate their ability to make repayment.

Most of the States are already burdened with large debts. Taxation is high because a considerable percentage of the revenue obtained each year goes into interest on past debts. Now the States are encouraged to undertake fresh obligations at a time when their revenues are depleted and taxation is sorely burdensome. At present the privilege of dipping into Uncle Sam's pocket for funds may afford considerable relief, but the ultimate consequences of this fresh piling up of State debts ought not to be ignored.

In Manchukuo.

Soviet Russia demands ten times as much for its share of the Chinese Eastern Railway as Manchukuo is willing to pay. The Soviet price is 210,000,000 gold rubles, equivalent to $112,000,000, and Manchukuo's offer is 50,000,000 yen, equivalent to $13,500,000. In addition to the railway proper, Soviet Russia asks $20,600,000 for timber and other concessions pertaining to the line.

The negotiators are meeting at Tokyo, and Japanese officials, who are listed as "observers," are believed to be directing the deal in the name of Manchukuo. The Russians ask that Manchukuo pay one-half of the purchase price in cash within two years, and that the balance be paid one-fourth cash and three-fourths in 3 per cent bonds of Manchukuo, guaranteed by Japan, and redeemable in three years. The Soviet also demands that Russian goods bound for Vladivostok via the Chinese Eastern Railway shall be exempt from duty, and that a guarantee shall be given against the abrupt dismissal of thousands of Soviet Russians employed by the railroad.

The wide disparity between the Soviet demand and the Manchukuan offer is believed by outsiders to portend long negotiations and possibly a dangerous disagreement between Japan and Soviet Russia. It is universally assumed in the Orient that Japan intends to oust the Soviet from Manchukuo at any cost. The complete pacification of Manchukuo is a necessary preliminary to more extensive operations by Japan in North China and Inner Mongolia. Throughout China it is assumed that these operations will be undertaken.

Thousands of Chinese farmers are making their way back into Manchukuo. More than 60,000 are said to have crossed the Chinese border this spring, and 200,000 in all are expected to pour in before the year's end. They are welcomed by the Manchukuo government, and liberal terms are granted to settlers. Highway and railroad building has been undertaken on a considerable scale. Japanese immigration into Manchukuo is not large, and comparatively few Japanese farmers are taking up land. From present indications the bulk of the population of Manchukuo will consist of Chinese farmers and laborers.

Near-By Public Works.

About $50,000,000 is to be allotted to public works in Maryland. Gov. Ritchie may call an extra session of the legislature to provide a method whereby counties and towns can be empowered to raise the 70 per cent required under the public works act. Other projects of a self-liquidating character which can provide quick employment for considerable labor forces may be financed entirely by the Public Works administration. Some of these projects in Maryland are of Federal character, notably proposed improvements at Forts Meade and Washington, the Naval Academy, Indian Head, and Curtis Bay. A Bureau of Mines laboratory is planned for College Park.

The most important public enterprise in Southern Maryland is the bridge over the Potomac between Morgantown and Dahlgren. This bridge would greatly facilitate passenger and truck traffic to and from both Washington and Baltimore. It would cost about $3,000,000, of which 70 per cent would be lent on security to the bridge corporation.

The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission has furnished to the public works authorities a list of badly needed sewer extensions whose total estimated cost would be $600,000. The principal item deals with completion of the Northwest Branch trunk sewer to cost $120,000. Water main extensions and school construction projects are also recommended. Active interest in planning public improvements is noted throughout Maryland counties, and it seems probable that long-needed highways, bridges, sewers, schools, water mains, &c., will be provided for the rapidly growing communities tributary to Washington and Baltimore.

The Roll of Accidents.

Reports of accidental death rates in foreign countries are now available for the first time. As compiled by the National Safety Council these figures reflect unfavorably upon the United States, which has the highest accidental death rate in the world with the exception of Chile. The death rate per 100,000 in this country was 78.6 in 1931, while the rate in Chile was 84.9 in 1930. But the rate did not exceed 40 in Irish Free State, Netherlands, Denmark, Hungary, Sweden, Northern Ireland, Italy, England and Wales, Belgium, Norway, Germany or Japan. France's accidental death rate was 54 per 100,000, and Canada's 57.8.

The American accidental death rate in 1932 is believed to have been reduced to 70.5 per 100,000. This remains the highest in the world with the exception of Chile. The Safety Council classifies accidental deaths in the United States under four main heads, the estimate for 1932 standing as follows: Motor vehicles, 29,500; home fatalities, 28,000; public fatalities not involving motor vehicles, 18,000; and occupational fatalities, 15,000. These figures mark a reduction of fatalities in all groups as compared with 1931. Motor vehicle deaths dropped 4,000, home fatalities 1,000, public fatalities 2,000, and occupational fatalities 2,500.

The death rate for accidents other than motor vehicle dropped 42 per cent from 1913 to 1932, while the automobile death rate increased nearly 500 per cent. Occupational fatalities dropped from 45.7 per 100,000 in 1913 to 22.9 per cent in 1932. Of the 15,000 occupational deaths last year, 3,500 occurred in agriculture, 2,000 in manufacturing, 1,800 in mines and quarries, and 1,300 in building construction.

Fatalities in the home last year were nearly double the occupational fatalities. The principal causes of accidental deaths in homes are falls, 43 per cent, while 19 per cent are the result of burns, scalds, and explosions. The more detailed figures are available only for 1931, but they furnish valuable hints for the exercise of caution in the home. Of the deaths from falls, 1,096 occurred on stairs and steps, 711 on floors and rugs, 424 on uneven ground, 221 in bathtubs and showers, 184 on ice, 183 on ladders and scaffolds, and 156 from chairs and tables. Other causes of home accidents resulting in death were cuts on sharp instruments and glass, collisions with inanimate objects, falling objects, handling or carrying objects, caught in windows or doors, burns by stoves, pipes and radiators, stepping on broken glass or nails, using hand tools, gasoline and fireworks explosions, bites by animals, eye accidents, and asphyxiation.

Broadly speaking, there are fewer deaths by accidents in large industrial establishments than in small ones, but all industry shows progress in reducing fatalities, while individual carelessness in automobiles and in the home causes the bulk of accidental deaths.

Old-Age Pensions.

A survey by the American Association for Social Security shows that 25 States now have old-age pension laws. Unusual interest has been manifested in the protection of aged people from want in recent months. Ten States have passed old-age pension laws since the beginning of this year. Many of the legislatures that have not yet acted on the subject have discussed it, and some are engaged in studies that may lead to later action.

Each State is dealing with old-age security in its own way. Various attempts have been made to secure action on old-age pension bills in Congress without success. Social workers in this field are now concentrating their efforts upon the State legislatures. It seems likely that this problem will be left entirely within the hands of the legislatures. Each State may then shape its policy to its local conditions.

The fact that so many States have adopted old-age pension systems this year suggests that they have been considered along with plans for emergency relief. It is probable, therefore, that some of these laws will need reconsideration. The most successful plans to afford security to the aged go beyond the mere granting of doles. Citizens are offered a chance to cooperate with the State in providing for their old age. Some measures have been defeated because of fear that they would encourage shiftlessness by awarding doles to people who make no effort to provide for themselves.

Experience will soon emphasize the deficiency of any system that does not encourage thrift while offering aid to aged and dependent individuals. A survey of the actual provisions of the recent State laws on this subject and a study of the results obtained from the various types of old-age pensions previously in effect would be much more enlightening than the mere fact that 55,472,000 persons live in States where benefits of this kind may be obtained.

Mount Everest Unscaled.

Hugh Ruttledge, leader of the third expedition sent out from Great Britain to conquer Mount Everest, returns with profound discouragement. Four members of the latest expedition attained a height of more than 28,000 feet up the rocky slopes, but about 1,000 feet of impregnable stone and ice rose above them to form the magnificent peak that has never been climbed.

The latest British expedition made a scientific attack upon the famous peak. Experienced climbers toiled up the side of the mountain over a period of many weeks, establishing several bases to support their efforts for a final assault upon the unscaled summit. By gradually approaching the higher altitudes they were able to work more effectively than some previous parties have done. But even after being acclimatized they found it impossible to continue to the top. Smythe was finally turned back by head winds and snow after Shipton, his companion, had succumbed.

After this experience, Mr. Ruttledge concludes that it will be impossible to gain the summit so long as the deep snow remains on the outward slopes of the north face and on the dangerous slopes of the north col. The two men who came nearest to scaling Mount Everest died in the attempt. Nature is stubbornly resisting the attempt of man to conquer the highest pinnacle on the globe.

Mechanics of Safety.

From the New York Sun.

It was a punster savagely bent on sharpening the truth who first said that it takes several thousand nuts to hold an automobile together but only one nut to spread it all over the road. Even this charge does not fix the responsibility of the human element for accidents; the safety experts willingly concede that sometimes the cause of a smashup lies outside human control. In such cases, however, the mechanical element of motoring should not be blamed for all mishaps in which the drivers relied too much on the safety of the car. As the Weekly Underwriter argues, there is often a distinct relation between safety appliances and reckless driving.

"No engineer has yet been able to perfect a device," says this insurance publication, "that will act as a brake on the suicidal tendencies of the average driver's mind once he sets himself behind the wheel." The use of "average" may be an exaggeration; self-preservation rather than suicide is the first law of most motorists. The Underwriter declares, however, that safety devices on the cars of today may foster a false sense of security—which is, perhaps, but another name for lack of vigilance on the motorist's part. "The less attention we are forced to pay toward the operation of the car, the less alert our minds are bound to be."

A traffic engineer of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters analyzed the cause of accidents traceable to the construction, design or maintenance of motor cars. "While it is possible," he said, "to blame the driver for all accidents—to say that he should recognize roadway hazards and drive accordingly, or that he should keep his car in safe condition, or drive more slowly when it is not in good condition—this is not a practical answer." He argued that accident records do not tell the whole truth when they show only 15 per cent of motor accidents are attributable to mechanical failures.

This engineer divided the elements of safety into three: First, the operator should have adequate visibility, steering and deceleration; second, he should be able to keep his wheels on the ground and should not be distracted by the operation of his car; third, he should be able to give visual signals, should receive plenty of fresh air, should be comfortable, should be protected against fire, and in case of accident should be protected by the car body from injury as much as possible.

Granting these factors, which plainly throw some responsibility on car manufacturers, it will still be true that mechanical failures are generally due to neglect on the part of car owners. In countless instances motorists will not spend time and money to keep their cars in perfect running order; they will trust to luck that a worn part will stand strain for another six months or so; they will fail to replace missing or broken parts the lack of which does not prevent driving.

A limousine of pomp and pride,
And out from each fly children two

Four children, almost hand in hand;

Why Should a Villager Buy Milk and Butter If Less Money Will Feed a Cow?

By Robert Quillen

IN thousands of small villages scattered over America there are families that get much of their living from a garden, a cow and a flock of hens.

One of my neighbors has a garden in his back yard where he grows such a variety of vegetables that he can change the menu every day for a week without repeating. He also has a cow and a few chickens, and the only food he buys is flour and meal and a bit of fat pork to cook with the vegetables.

There are millions like him—small-scale farmers—and all of them do their farm-like chores before they go to work in the morning and after their day's work is finished.

That should be a sufficient answer to the oft-repeated assertion that jobless city men could not or would not endure the hardships of farm life.

When men who spent their youth between plow handles give warning that farming is hard and ill-paid work, they are speaking of the farmer who produces as much as he can and sells it for what he can get. Their horrible exmple is a farmer who tills worn-out soil with inadequate machinery and gets up at 4 o'clock in the morning to begin a day of back-breaking labor that continues until merciful darkness brings release.

There are such farmers—more's the pity. But even they have more hours of leisure than any town man who works for wages. Farmers don't work on rainy days, and they take life easy when the crop is "laid by" to ripen for the harvest.

Jobless city men, placed on farms to earn their living, would find no insupportable hardship. Their problem would be to grow enough to eat—nothing more. And one acre of good land—a plot smaller than a city block—will produce more than any ordinary family can eat.

Charity and the State are not solving the problem of the jobless. They are merely postponing it from one day to another. At the end of a month or three months, the family fed by charity is just where it began. Nothing is changed—except that the money provided is gone and the family is more hopelessly desperate or more listlessly resigned to the role of mendicant.

Common sense is scarce in a land where idle men are hungry while the soil that would feed them lies idle.

Once established on a farm, the destitute family's food problem is solved.

Why spend money month after month for temporary repairs when half of the money thus spent would pay for a permanent job?

Political Comment

When Politics Was Taboo.

Baltimore Sun.

Speaking of the danger of political control of the agencies set up to promote business recovery, Mark Sullivan, a careful and conservative commentator on current events, says:

"The movement really hangs by quite a slender thread. Its success, as a whole, and in detail, depends fundamentally on public opinion, and many of the steps about to be taken make large drafts on public tolerance of drastic departures."

Mr. Sullivan is referring, among other things, to the reports that come from Washington of the use to be made of the enormous patronage, now at the disposal of the Democratic party, in the manning of the various bureaus that will be in charge of the recovery program. The public has little faith in the usual defense of spoilsmen that "we can get Democrats who are just as well equipped as Republicans to do the job." Or vice versa. The statement is true; but the trouble is that, when the heads of Government organizations start out with such a notion, experience has demonstrated that they are apt to wind up with the dictum that any Democrat is better than any Republican. What that means is well understood.

If we are to fight a war for economic recovery, something is to be learned from what was done when we were engaged in an actual one. Then, Mr. Sullivan points out, "authority over industry was vested in one man, Bernard M. Baruch," who had "the complete confidence and backing of President Wilson." Politics was taboo, a fact that was largely accountable for the wholehearted public support Mr. Baruch then received.

The "Nira" and Economic Law.

Minneapolis Journal.

It is a commonplace of economics that, while there is a close relationship between prices and wages, they do not naturally move upward or downward together. Wage changes always lag behind price movements. Wages do not fall so readily or quickly; neither do they rise so promptly. Prices, responding sensitively to supply and demand, are far more mobile than wages.

To change the operation of this economic law is the difficult task that Administrator Hugh Johnson has set for himself in putting the Nira (National Industrial Recovery Act) into operation. Since the higher prices of manufactured products that are sure to result will bear on consumers heavily at first, it is highly desirable that their buying power shall be increased by a corresponding rise in wages.

Collapse of War Debt Structure.

Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

How much longer the fact can be dissembled that the great war debt structure erected as the result of the 1925 funding agreements is crumbling before our very eyes, is not as difficult of answer as it used to be. The answer is: Not much longer. The latest transaction with Great Britain is one more wriggle—perhaps the last—to avoid frank bilateral confession that the debt settlements as fixed in 1925 no longer correspond to the imperative realities, and, unless radically revised, can not be executed.

The Once Over

PARENTAL REACTION AS THE CHILDREN LEAVE FOR SUMMER CAMP ON A HOT SATURDAY.

The tots have gone—
The little dears—
To summer camps—
Three rousing cheers!
It's good for them,
And, bear in mind,
It's good for those
They leave behind!

II.

The station's full
Of children's yells;
They'll soon be off
To hills and dells;
'Twill do 'em good
A rest to get,
And will it do
Us good? You bet!

III.

They shriek and shout
Upon the ramps
And wait the train
To summer camps;
The little dears,
They sing and croon;
The little dears
Can't go too soon!

IV.

"Form here!" the man
With badge commands;
The kiddies shriek
And clap their hands;
They'll soon be on
Their merry way—
I pray there will
Be no delay!

V.

They take a train
With laughter shrill—
They take a train—
Toot! Toot! They're off
In "knicks" and skirts;
And am I glad?
They drive me nerts!

VI.

They'll soon be camped
Beneath the blue,
And do I hope
They stay? I do!
The little dears—
Alas! Alack!
The trouble is
They'll soon be back!

THE FINISH.

The Senate committee inquiring into Wall Street affairs may soon have to be abandoned on account of a shortage of flashlight powder.

Maine is now getting beer for the first time in 62 years. It must make it feel pretty foolish to realize that for all those years it thought beer was intoxicating.

Mr. Otto Kahn, invited to remove his coat for personal comfort before the Senate committee, replied, "No thanks, I never take off my coat except when I play golf. It is the habit of a lifetime."

Mr. Kahn was pretty lucky. He got through the hearing without having any circus midgets put in his lap.

OF COURSE THE WEATHER MUST BE GOOD.

Which corner, professor? We stood at Chapel and College for what seemed a month recently and everybody we asked about Einstein said he now ran the College Tailor Shoppe.

Horn Tooters and Radio Owners Could Reduce Nerve-Wrecking Noises if They Would.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why philosophize about the great boon a noiseless street car would be? It is a practical impossibility. R. FIELDER.

OUR STAKE ABROAD

America's stake abroad amounted, at the beginning of the year, to more than $17,000,000,000, equivalent to about $135 for every man, woman and child living in the United States. Regardless of the wisdom of having placed such large sums in foreign securities—or insecurities, as the case may be—and foreign enterprises, such question comes too late.

The United States and the American people are abroad, according to the Magazine of Wall Street, whether they now like it or not—to the extent of $17,000,000,000, and all they can do is to see that what has already been staked is looked after properly, and that whatever funds may be placed abroad in the future will be accorded better safeguards than was true of many transactions in the past.

Congressmen Plan Field Day In New Session

First Regular Roosevelt Gathering Will See Lots of Action.

(Associated Press.)

A dozen committees of the Senate and House are already at work in preparation for the resumption of activities in the fall to round out new legislation for the first regular Roosevelt Congress.

Despite that the extra session swept the administration slate clean of all major bills, leaders are certain there will be plenty of material to start off the January meeting.

Of utmost importance, in the opinion of congressional chieftains, is the Senate's current and long standing inquiry into stock and bond, banking and foreign loan transactions.

New Proposals Loom.

Chairman Fletcher of the banking investigating committee, which resumes hearings Thursday, already has predicted new proposals would be made to plug up leaks in the income tax laws, and possibly strengthen the securities act, provide supervision of stock and bond pools and control of speculation.

Other committees on both sides of the Capitol are scrutinizing, or will do so, the tax question, mail subsidies, the handling of bankruptcy cases by the courts, rackets, labor conditions on the Mississippi flood control project, relief for municipalities which have defaulted on their loans and revision of the civil service laws, recently catapulted into the spotlight by patronage controversies.

By far the judiciary committees of both houses will be the busiest during the adjournment. Each has three subcommittees at work.

Bankruptcy Probe.

The Senate Judiciary subcommittees are investigating the bankruptcy question from both the Federal court administration and insolvent city angles, as well as the delay by the Hoover Justice Department in prosecuting Joseph W. Harriman for alleged falsification of records of the New York bank bearing his name.

The trio of House judiciary subcommittees will investigate the handling of bankruptcy and equity receiverships by the courts in New York and Chicago and impeachment charges against Federal Judge James A. Lowell, of Massachusetts.

Lowell refused to extradite a Negro murder suspect to Virginia for trial, on the ground the Southern State did not draw Negroes for jury duty and therefore the man, in his opinion, could not have a fair trial there. A higher court reversed Lowell.

Senate finance and House ways and means subcommittees are plugging away on proposed changes in the tax laws, while two Senate commerce subcommittees are looking into crime rackets and charges of unfair treatment of Negroes in Mississippi flood control labor camps.

A special Senate committee has an investigator on the job, with public hearings to be held later, to discover frailties in the policy of appropriating for air and ocean mail transportation. A House committee later on will attempt to find out what's wrong, if anything, with Uncle Sam's merit system for employes.

Copeland Praises Roosevelt's Stand

Tells Tammany President Was Not Tricked by Monetary Plea.

New York, July 4 (A.P.).—Senator Royal S. Copeland, addressing the Society of Tammany's Independence Day program, today expressed pride that President Roosevelt had not "been tricked by internationalism to forget the needs of America" in the World Economic Conference.

"For three or four days," said Copeland, "I read with great anxiety what the press had to say about the conference. But what we have read yesterday and today should give every one of us heart."

Copeland's reference to the President's stand on currency stabilization came after he had accused the British government of attempting to "hamstring" American shipping at the London conference.

Former Dry Agent Is Slain Drinking Beer

Omaha, July 4 (A.P.).—Shot three times by an assailant who fired through a window at him as he drank beer with friends last night, Early Haning, former Omaha prohibition agent, died early today at a hospital. He had been living recently at Norton, Kans.

The shooting took place in the basement of the home of Louise Vinciquerra Haning, divorced wife of Haning, who told police he recognized his assailant as Sebastiano Vinciquerra, Louise's first husband. Louise was formerly known to police as "Queen" of Omaha bootleggers.

New Yorker Drowns In River at Roanoke

Roanoke, Va., July 4 (A.P.).—The body of a man identified as Benjamin Howell, 70, was found in Roanoke River, about 300 yards below Memorial bridge at 6:30 p. m. by a fisherman.

He had been dead 24 hours or possibly more, Dr. C. M. Irvin, city coroner said. Death was due to drowning. Mr. Howell had been living here for the past three weeks, having moved here from New Rochelle, N. Y., where he was said to have been engaged in the furniture business.

Reichstag Fire Is Laid to Nazis In New Report

Goering Directed Act, Says Trooper in Tale Told Einstein Group.

London (Wednesday,), July 5 (U. P.).—The Daily Herald today published a story that the burning of the German Reichstag Building last February was engineered by Nazis under the direction of Capt. Hermann Goering, aid to Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

Evidence supporting this sensational revelation was said by the Herald to have been obtained by a committee of investigation headed by Albert Einstein, self-exiled Jewish scientist.

A Nazi storm trooper, who claimed to have been among 30 brownshirts who set the fire, escaped from Germany and gave the committee part of its evidence, according to the story.

The Reichstag fire was the stated reason for some of the Nazi government's most drastic steps in eliminating opposition. Hitlerites attributed the fire to Communists and ruthlessly suppressed the party.

According to the Herald's story, the storm troopers were smuggled into the historic Reichstag structure through a subterranean passage from the president's palace to set the fire.

Concordat Discussed By Pius and Von Papen

Vatican City, July 4 (A.P.).—Pope Pius received Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen of Germany in audience today and discussed with him what guarantees the Nazis are willing to offer for the effective execution of a concordat between the Vatican and the Reich.

Prelates said the projected agreement would remove Vatican support from the German Catholic Center Party, but the vice chancellor's secretary declared it was premature to say a concordat had been reached, although negotiations were continuing.

Wilmington, Del., July 4 (U.P.).—Gen. Francesco De Pinedo, veteran Italian transatlantic aviator, today superintended installation of a robot pilot in the Bellanca monoplane in which he plans to fly from New York to Teheran, Persia, for a new nonstop distance record.

Gen. De Pinedo said he hoped to take off on the projected 6,000-mile flight before the end of this month. He came to the Newcastle factory of the Bellanca Co. with Ugo V. D'Annunzio, his manager, who is a son of Gabriele D'Annunzio, famous Italian poet-soldier.

Russian Ships Seized By Japanese Police

Tokyo, July 4 (A.P.).—Rengo (Japanese) News Agency reported today that Japanese police seized a 4,000-ton Russian steamer and a 100-ton Russian fishing boat off Makkanro, an uninhabited island among the northern Kuriles. This development came at a time when the slaying of three Japanese fishermen, allegedly by Russian secret police, on Kamchatka peninsula, scarcely had been settled.

The police were sent out to investigate reports that Russians were spying in the Kuriles, a group belonging to Japan, Rengo said. More than 30 Russians were arrested.

Ottawa, Ont., July 4 (A.P.).—Justice Willis Van Devanter, of the United States Supreme Court, and Lyman P. Duff, chief justice of Canada, completed today their investigation into the sinking of the Nova Scotian schooner I'm Alone, in the Gulf of Mexico, and will submit their report to the United States and Canadian governments.

The two jurists, sitting as special commissioners on the case since Thursday, have studied evidence regarding the shelling of the alleged rum-runner in waters south of Louisiana in March, 1929. It is believed they arrived at an agreement on a joint report.

Slain Doctor's Organs Taken, Autopsy Shows

Bruise Found After Vault Is Reopened for Postmortem in Ohio.

Ironton, Ohio, July 4 (A.P.).—Authorities holding a postmortem over the body of Dr. J. W. Lowry, found dead in his home here, today said the body had been opened previously, the vital organs removed and the chest and abdominal cavities stuffed with excelsior.

No previous autopsy had been authorized, and officials immediately began a search for the missing organs.

The examination today was conducted at the request of Coroner Harry Jones and Sheriff E. W. Bennett.

Dr. Lowry, wealthy political leader and physician, was found dead in the home where he lived alone about five weeks ago after friends became alarmed at his absence from a conference. The body was in bed, the face covered by a towel, and at the time Dr. G. G. Hunter, the examining physician, said Dr. Lowry had been dead about twelve hours.

Rumors of violence persisted and resulted in reopening of the case. The post-mortem, the examiners said, showed evidence of a bruise behind the left ear. The body was taken from the Lowry mausoleum after authorities forced the door. Relatives possessing keys to the vault are absent from the city.

Though Dr. Lowry was supposedly wealthy, only $3,800 in cash and diamonds valued at $35,000 were found in his safety deposit box. No will has been found.

The plane, a Government amphibian, was too large for Redfern Field, the local airport, so it was berthed in the Frederica River opposite the Sea Island Yacht Club.

Flier Dashes 280 M. P. H. to Win Third Event in Four Days.

Municipal Airport, Los Angeles, July 4 (A.P.).—A meeting of all pilots, timers and other officials connected with the 100-mile closed course event for men fliers, won today by Col. Roscoe Turner, Hollywood, at the national air races was called shortly after completion of the race.

Officials at contest headquarters refused to comment on the reason for the meeting, but reports were heard among some of the pilots a protest was to be considered against Col. Turner.

The statement was made by one pilot, an entrant in the race who declined to permit his name to be used, that he was informed Turner had cut "a couple of pylons" in flying the free-for-all event, premier classic of the closed-course contests.

The victory of the 48-year-old Californian in the 100-mile race was questioned before the contest committee, an unofficial report saying he failed to circle a pylon on the first lap.

Turner, racing neck and neck with Jimmie Wedell, New Orleans pilot-designer, who placed second and won $1,875, bringing his total winnings to $6,375, second to Turner, cut inside the pylon, it was said, but sought on the next lap to make up for the asserted deviation by going completely around it. It was recalled that although he led Wedell the first lap, he fell far behind on the second.

The committee, after considerable discussion, postponed final action until noon tomorrow, leaving Turner on the board as winner.

The 210-pound speed flier, long a figure among the Nation's outstanding racing airmen, flew to first place in the 100-mile free-for-all event at a speed of 241.051 miles per hour and swept down a straightway course at 280.965 miles per hour today to make a clean sweep of the three principal races.

Turner's Winnings Total $9,550.

His victories today marked the first time any flier ever scored victories in these three events of the national air races, and for his efforts he drew down $9,550 in cash prizes, in addition to trophies.

He won $5,050 in the cross-country race, $1,135 in the straightaway and $3,375 in the 100-mile event.

His victory in the 100-mile race was achieved after a spectacular fight through the first five of the ten laps against Wedell, New Orleans pilot-designer, who placed second and won $1,875, bringing his total winnings to $6,375, second to Turner.

Third place in the 100-mile event went to Lee Gehlbach, Detroit, and with it $1,125 in cash. The victory of these three pilots constituted a singular triumph for Wedell, who built all three of the leading ships.

Ranking with the speed exploits of the men was the triumph of Mrs. Mae Haizlip, St. Louis, in the closed course for women, a 50-mile contest in which she walked away from the field, flying the course at 168.216 miles per hour to win $1,350.

Second place went to Mrs. Martie Bowman, Los Angeles, third to Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, Calif., and fourth to Harriet Sumner, also of Los Angeles.

One more event for women will be run off tomorrow, the 3-kilometer dash over a straightaway course for a women's speed record, now in Mrs. Haizlip's possession.

Factor's Wife Collapses as Hunt Goes On Authorities Now Believe Kidnaping Genuine; Son Keeps Vigil.

Her breakdown on the fourth day since Factor, stock market plunger and night club habitue, disappeared did much to convince authorities Factor's disappearance was a genuine abduction.

For the last two days rumors had been prevalent that possibly the "abduction" was staged. Factor is fighting extradition to England on charges of fleecing investors in market operations.

Mrs. Factor was confined to her bed at a hotel and was attended by a physician and nurse.

At a local hotel where Factor maintains a residence, Jerome, 19-year-old son of Factor, who himself was a victim of kidnapers several weeks ago, maintained a policy of watchful waiting.

The son, stating that it was impossible to raise such great sums, expressed confidence his father would be able himself to do the negotiating with his captors.

Two flurries of excitement marked the case today. Eight squads of police rushed to Dupage County to search a barn after a telephone call said Factor would be found there. The search was fruitless. From Mattoon came reports that State police were on a mysterious mission near Effingham, apparently in connection with the Factor case. Police refused to talk.

Factor was abducted early last Saturday.

Chicago Plane Classic Is Won By Livingston

Average 204 M. P. H. to Add $5,000 Purse to His Winnings.

Chicago, July 4 (A.P.).—Johnny Livingston, one of the Nation's foremost stunt and speed fliers, added $5,000 to his winnings in competition today by finishing first in the trophy race of the Fourth of July program of the American Air Races.

Diving close to the ground and hugging the pylons on each of the 21 turns of the 35-mile race around the triangular course, Livingston attained an average speed of 204.54 miles an hour and the fastest time of the races so far of 213.40 miles an hour in the fifth lap. Second and third place winners were announced, respectively, as Art Davis, of East Lansing, Mich., at 202.88 miles an hour, and Harold Neumann, of Moline, Ill., at 170.81.

Yancey Fails to Break Record.

A high spot of the colorful program of stunting and racing was an attempt by Lon Yancey, noted transatlantic pilot, to break his own altitude record of 22,500 feet for an autogiro.

Yancey took a three hour jaunt into the air, but announced on returning to earth he had been unable to force the large "wind mill" propellered plane to a height of more than 19,500 feet.

In another event, Charles Abel, of Chicago, veteran glider pilot, broke his own world's record for consecutive loops in a motorless craft. He looped his ship 17 consecutive times.

Races Continue Today.

The other races of the day—25-mile affairs for prizes of $1,500 and $1,300—were won by Joe Jacobson, of Kansas City, Mo., in a Benny Howard Special, at 155.40 miles an hour, and Doug. Davis, of Atlanta, Ga., at 146.06 miles an hour in a Travelair.

Second to Jacobson in the $1,500 Edelweiss Trophy race was Harvey Mummert, of Hammondsport, N. Y., with Clarence MacArthur, of Tampa, Fla., third.

Attendance was estimated by officials at 40,000. The races will continue tomorrow to complete a four-day program interrupted by rain on Sunday.

Mayors to Get Chicago Man's Finance Plan

Betters Will Air Views at Conference Today on U. S. Relief.

Efforts to work out a financing plan whereby municipalities can obtain maximum benefit from the administration's public works program are to be made in behalf of the cities today by Paul V. Betters, of Chicago, who came to Washington yesterday to represent the United States Conference of Mayors in a series of conversations with Col. Donald H. Sawyer, public works administrator.

With the bonded indebtedness of a large portion of the cities already up to the limits prescribed by State laws, a new method of paying for municipal public works projects must be found before these municipalities can participate on a large scale in the President's $3,300,000,000 program for unemployment relief through construction, Mr. Betters contended.

Betters, who is secretary of the conference of mayors, estimated that about 70 per cent of the public works construction in the recovery program must be accomplished by cities, pointing out that a comparatively small portion of the building can be done in rural communities by States and counties.

A plan whereby the immediate financing of municipal public works will be done by the Federal Government, which in turn will lease the construction to the cities until paid for by tax receipts, may be worked out in the conferences with Col. Sawyer. In those cities, which have not extended their bonded credit to the legal limit, it is expected that 70 per cent of the public works cost will be financed by further bond issues, 30 per cent by direct Federal grant, though no definite statement on this point has been made by officials of the Public Works administration.

If Betters' efforts to liberalize the administration's credit regulations are successful, it is likely that a general conference of municipal executives and administration officials will be held here in the near future.

Sir John Simon's Health May Force Long Rest

Glorious Fourth Had by All; 200,000 Jam Monument

Record Capital Throng Is Worry to Police, But None Is Hurt.

A turnout unequaled in Washington's past celebrations of the "Glorious Fourth" jammed downtown streets last night, to present a problem solved by special police details only after a several hours' hard-fought battle.

Long before dusk slopes of the Monument Grounds were crowded with early comers to watch the annual pyrotechnical display. A short time before the flaring "Good Night," an unofficial estimate of the throng was 200,000 to 225,000 persons.

Parking at Premium.

Parking spaces throughout the downtown area were at a premium. Hundreds of automobiles circled in and around Potomac Park during the fireworks display. The entire force of United States Park police were called to duty.

Skilled in their work from past performances, officers of both the Metropolitan and Park Departments handled the huge crowd in a manner to be lauded.

At the celebration's conclusion a concentrated rush was made for parked machines. For a time it looked as though a serious situation would result from the sudden increase in traffic flow.

All Cars Rerouted.

All cars in the Monument Grounds vicinity were rerouted through Potomac Park. The stream of traffic headed into Southwest Washington, with the result that many streets were impassable for more than an hour.

No casualties were reported from the jammed area. Shortly before midnight police were still attempting to clear the thoroughfares.

The largest crowd in the history of daytime holiday celebrations was reported at the Tidal Basin yesterday afternoon. Boat races attracted the unusual crowd when polo games scheduled in Potomac Park were canceled.

Gibson Is Reported Out Of Danger After Crash

Baker was graduated from Harvard University in 1897 and for the next nine years was a special writer for the Boston Transcript. He later was editor of the Navy, a defunct publication in Washington.

Social Service Plans Occupy Sorority Group

The second day of the annual convention of Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority, being held at Arlington Hall, Arlington County, was devoted to a discussion on social service work by Mrs. Mary M. Breckinridge and Bland Morrow, which was attended by the 160 delegates representing practically all States in the Union. The meeting was presided over by the national president Kathryn Bremer Matson.

A round table discussion of national social service work was held by active and alumnae chapters in the afternoon.

Beginning at 9 o'clock today and continuing until noon a business session will be held, attended by all delegates. A boat trip to Mount Vernon, with a picnic supper, is planned for the afternoon.

Thursday morning will be devoted to a business session. At 2 o'clock there will be a sightseeing trip to places of interest in Washington. In the evening the convention dance will be held in the ballroom.

Friday a business session will be followed by a sightseeing trip in the afternoon. The annual election of officers will be held Saturday afternoon, followed by installation at 2 o'clock. The convention will close with a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, at 7 o'clock.

Oyster Problem Called Statewide

Delegate Hall, of Leesburg, Says Industry Isn't Local After Tour.

Richmond, Va., July 4 (A.P.).—The first of a series of General Assembly "first-hand" information expeditions, to the Tidewater seafood beds, returned here today with Delegate Wilbur Hall, of Leesburg, leader of the group, asserting the "men who live down there on the water, who regard the oyster industry problems as personal or strictly Tidewater, are wrong."

"The oyster industry belongs to the whole State and it should be considered by the General Assembly as such," said the northern Virginia member of the Fisheries Commission.

The group of nine led by Mr. Hall left here Sunday on the Commodore Maury, flagship of the State oyster patrol fleet. Since then they have toured as much of the Tidewater seafood area as a hard southeast blow would permit. Most of the trip was confined to the Eastern Shore section.

"Our trip for the last two days was merely a preliminary," Mr. Hall said. "Several others will be made, and all the groups will include men from up-State just as this group did."

Coldest Fourth in 26 Years Makes Capital Folk Shiver

Residents of Washington experienced yesterday the coldest Independence Day in 26 years. It was in 1907 when last the thermometer dropped as low as 52 degrees on a Fourth of July, but it hit that same low record at 5 p. m. yesterday. Celebrators donned warm sweaters and jackets before starting out in search of their holiday fun.

The temperature rose gradually as the day went on and reached its high point, 79 degrees, at 5 p. m. and the Weather Bureau predicted slightly increasing warmth and mostly cloudy weather for today. The rainstorm that whipped the Atlantic Coast and Chesapeake Bay Monday night was held responsible for the chilly weather.

A clear and beautiful day after the coldness waned was a pleasant relief to the morning's chill.

One of Dozen Carried Into Ocean Is Drowned

New York, July 4 (A.P.).—It was rather chilly for bathing today, but the beaches were thronged and life guards had a busy day. At Rockaway Point a huge comber suddenly crashed upon a breakwater on which a score of persons were lounging.

The Meanderer

Robes for Male Bathers Designed to Add That Sheikish Touch.

Bathing beauty honors may go masculine if many sun-browned young men wrap themselves in the Algerian striped beach sheet a smart Washington bath and beach shop is introducing.

This huge sheik-making arrangement is of sofest chenille cloth, a material worthy of a far Eastern prayer rug. Its stripings are of red, blue and yellow, so dashing in their effect against the bronzed male skin. The bizarre wrap may be a rug for a sun bath. The couple of dollars or so for the bright purchase will seem trivial to the wise man shopper for the value he receives.

No reason at all now for those who have always wanted to install a shower bath to deprive themselves longer of such a supreme comfort. Two screws, a hammer and a handy man will install in a few minutes a new type shower the Meanderer has found. It attaches to the bath tub plumbing, making no new plumbing necessary. This new shower device costs $3.50 in an up-to-date bath shop.

Red bath mats, red towels—navy blue bath mats, black bath mats, deep green bath mats—with towels in corresponding colors—are fashion's latest. The young moderns like them, while their mothers are saying, "Well, I don't know. I've always thought pale colors were prettier in the bath room." But young mothers should vote heavily for the navy blue or black mat and the towel well covered with dark stripes or patterns for the grimy hands of the children.

Chenille bath mats with a silky sheen that are ever so good looking are practical, too, for they are tubable. They will keep their color, even with repeated washings. They are sufficiently attractive to use in bedrooms. Oval rugs of this type in green or in orchid will look well with summer bedroom furnishings. The rugs cost $2 and up. If the rugs in stock do not fit into your decorative scheme of things, your own distinctive desires in bath or bedroom rugs may be ordered.

Waterproof rouge that stays on even in salt water comes to the summer belle from the laboratory of a famous cosmetician. A sunproof beauty powder contains special ingredients to counteract ageing actinic sunrays. These cosmetics and other worth-knowing-about summer helps are in a special summer beauty kit that would make a valuable traveling companion on any hot-weather excursion. They may be bought separately, also.

Shoulders that are wide, trimmed and flat, a sheath-like body and an almost hobble skirt, with fullness about a foot above the ankle are characteristic of a new silhouette for autumn evening gowns, a silhouette just introduced by a world renowned designer. The new line is said to be flattering. The perverse Meanderer can't help getting a private giggle over how some of us long, tall girls will look in the "sheath gown."

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

In Town

By Mary Brook Lucas

The big "Fourth" holidays are over! Beaches, mountain haunts and lakes are now a memory. Jeanne comes back to town in a brown dotted swiss dress and jacket with embroidered white linen collar and cuffs. Practical, cool and very good looking. It is equally attractive in navy blue.

A semiformal gown for late summer is in a sheer chiffon printed with yellow and white daisies. It is ankle length. The black crepe satin model is cut with a high front neckline and extremely low V in back. A separate skirt of chiffon ruffles wraps around the waist and ends in a train.

After the day's shopping tour Jeanne relaxes in the sweetest of cool dressing gowns. The Victorian sleeves, high-bloused waistline and trailing skirt are lovely in tiny rose printed batiste. "That mountain trip didn't help my complexion," she muses. "What I need is a facial and a good rest."

After creams, astringents, eye wash and 30 minutes of complete relaxation, Jeanne emerges pretty as a picture ready for the Supper Club party. Over a youthful white mousseline gown she wears a roman striped taffeta coat with balloon sleeves. A matching taffeta sash is floor length. Notice the star hair clip?

Tomorrow—Midsummer Straws.

The Mode . . . . . Dare

FORGIVE me if I wax waxey about things, won't you. But I have spent weeks 'n' weeks finding out things 'n' things about new man-made materials, and now I have to overflow with the knowledge and the information!

You know the soft loveliness of suede? You know how it flatters, how it enchants, how it thrills with its touch? Well, and who doesn't know how it spots and how it doesn't clean and oh, how it lotsa things that makes it for the few and not for us all!

Well, suede was nature's idea. But man improved it with "sways de swah," so there! And this material . . . washes, with soap and water; or cleans; and it doesn't rain-spot—or if it does you wash the spots all out; and it is like a new-born lamb—I mean suede, again. And it has a silk-like lining which is delightful to the skin, whilst the sway de swah side turns its dull finish and elegant exterior to the public.

The manufacturers of these new man-made materials have sense, too. They give us something that looks as though it surely should be $10 or $12 a yard—for a dollar and very few pennies. So what? We have all the advantages of the beauty of a nature produced covering, with all of the economic and technical advantages of an intelligently handled, man-improved cloth. Sway de swah is a perfect example. You just ask to see it, using this name, and tell me wether I'm right!

As to colors, something in the process of making this material makes the colors soft and dull and altogether delightful. Transparent rubber beach pajamas, and rubber bathing suits can have their brilliant colors, but when it comes to what she wears on the street, Miladi elegante prefers these flattering and soft, subtle colors. They flatter her, that's why.

Well, that's another of those new, man-made materials for which we women should be grateful and thankful!

* * * *

Sway de swah is slightly stiffer than pique, so I made over some sleeves with it, and what a success! Such a success, in fact, that I forthwith got sleeve minded again and started making all sorts of sleeves over—those that had missed the last sleeve-making bee. A couple of very good and expensive dresses had big ruined spots under the arms, too—which might happen to anyone, with these funny weather changes. And was that a problem to figure out! Well, figure it out, we did—and I knew you would have things like that worrying you, too—so I made the leaflet of sleeve makeovers to include sleeves that had been ruined underneath. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this if you would like to see it—the leaflet is instructive and you will be able to save some dresses out of the discard—with it's help.

Au revoir.

Church Crisis Sends British Aid to Berlin

Gloucester Dean Travels to Probe Nazi Link to Protestanism.

Berlin, July 4 (A.P.).—The seriousness of the church situation in Germany was illustrated today by the arrival of the Rev. A. S. Duncan-Jones, Dean of Chichester, on behalf of the Bishop of Gloucester, to investigate whether German Protestantism is drifting under a Nazi commissionership.

This was further indicated in the fact that Lutherans in Norway were collecting funds for the support of German ministers dismissed for insisting on freedom of conscience.

Three Points Stressed.

Preliminary negotiations between Ludwig Mueller, head of the German Evangelical Church Union, and church factions indicate that adherents of Dr. Friedrich von Bodelschwingh, chosen recently as the first evangelical reichsbishop, demand three points: Restitution of suspended church officials, freedom of the church press and use of the broadcast by non-Nazis also.

It was recalled that the Nazis seized the church press and the broadcast.

Dr. von Bodelschwingh was elected reichsbishop by the representatives of all the 29 Protetsant churches in Germany over the strenuous opposition of the German Christians (Nazis), who supported Mueller as their candidate.

Arrests Reported.

Reports reaching followers of Dr. von Bodelschwingh from various parts of the Reich indicated arrests in a number of localities last Sunday of pastors who refused to fly the flag and conduct services of thanksgiving instead of devoting the day to meditation and prayer as originally planned.

Upon the personal intervention of President von Hindenburg those arrested were released.

Count Eugen Quadt-Isny, who was empowered to act for the party, issued a statement reading:

"Through the revolution, there is no possibility offered for activity outside the National Socialist party. Every member, therefore, is free to help the reconstruction of Germany through the direct leadership of Chancellor Hitler."

The Bavarian Populists held 19 Reichstag mandates.

Men Beauty Conscious?

Joan Blondell, Frances Ingram (center), and James Cagney.

Hollywood, Calif., July 5 (Special)—"We'll see the day when the barber shop and beauty parlor will be merged into a new kind of beauty service station catering to both sexes," says Miss Frances Ingram, beauty consultant, now in Hollwood to make a study of "make-up" trends.

"Men here in Hollywood are as careful about their 'make-up'—even off the lot—as are women," Miss Ingram said. "It is no longer 'sissy' for a man to use cosmetics and take beauty treatments."

"Hollywood Through the Looking Glass," will be the title of a radio program Miss Ingram will put on the air as a feature of her talks so popular with radio listeners.

Coolidge's 61st Birthday Marked by Scout Wreath

Vermont Boys Visit Grave and Join President in Tribute.

Plymouth Notch, Vt., July 4 (A.P.).—Boy Scouts of Vermont paid tribute today to the memory of another son of Vermont who rose to the Presidency of the United States and whose body was laid to rest in Plymouth Notch, his birthplace, early this year.

The occasion was the sixty-first anniversary of the birth of Calvin Coolidge—and the first such anniversary following his death.

Upon the unmarked grave today, when the Boy Scouts came to lay their wreath, there rested two other tributes—a wreath sent by President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and a flower pot containing wild flowers gathered in nearby fields by citizens of Plymouth Notch.

They came to this tiny upland hamlet, ringed round by the Green Mountains, viewed the little room in what is now the general store in which the thirtieth President was born, and then gathered in the small white church to hear Herbert Moore, Plymouth citizen, tell about the community.

Their pilgrimage took them to the Coolidge homestead, where Miss Aurora Pierce, long the Coolidges' housekeeper, showed them the historic room where President Coolidge was given the oath of office by his father after President Harding's death. They saw, too, such homely Coolidge family relics as the kerosene lamp by light of which Plymouth's son was sworn into office.

Then they moved on to the cemetery, where the dead of the hamlet sleep, a cemetery set in a terrace of a sharply sloping grassy hillside.

Speakers eulogized Plymouth's illustrious son, and one of them, Leon S. Gay, of Cavendish, president of the Windham-Windsor Boy Scout Council, reviewing events of the early life of Coolidge, said his career had exemplified in high degree the basic rules of scouting such as loyalty, trustworthiness, honesty, courtesy, and righteousness. The Scouts, and about a hundred tourists listened.

It was quiet in the little cemetery, a warm sun shone and a brisk wind rustled the leaves of the maples. A quarter of a mile distant, in the village, a few firecrackers broke the silence.

Culbertson's Bridge

A DECEPTIVE PLAY.

DECEPTION in real life is not an admirable trait, but in the miniature world of cards it will, if properly employed, greatly increase the effectiveness of the player using it. This is particularly true at the Contract Bridge table. Deception can be used to achieve winning results either in the bidding, during the play of the hand as Declarer, or during the play when on the defense. On the hand below an example of a very clever ruse by the Declarer is shown. This play enabled South to get a clear-cut top score on the board.

South, Dealer.

	♠ 6 4 3 2 ♡ 9 5 3 ◇ A K 10 7 5 4 ♣ —
♠ A 5 ♡ A 6 4 ◇ Q 9 2 ♣ Q 7 5 4 3		♠ K Q 8 7 ♡ 10 8 7 ◇ 8 3 ♣ 10 9 6 2
	♠ J 10 9 ♡ K Q J 2 ◇ J 6 ♣ A K J 8

The bidding: (Figure after bid in table refers to numbered explanatory paragraph.)

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	3◇	Pass
3NT	Pass	3NT(1)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—Although North has a void suit and two suits without a single high card in them, he fears that a three-diamond call by him at this point would be too much in the nature of a sign-off. Knowing South to be a sound player, he feels fairly certain of some sort of diamond fit and sees a very good chance of winning 6 diamond tricks at a notrump call. He therefore decides to contract immediately for game in notrump rather than take the chance that South will pass to a three-diamond call.

West's Opening lead was the club 4. A heart was discarded from Dummy and East quite properly played the 9. South even before playing from Dummy on this trick, immediately took stock. He saw that with the club Opening he was sure of three club tricks and that if the diamond finesse worked and the suit broke, he would have the nine tricks necessary to fulfill his contract without even letting his opponents in. He also knew that a great many other players would reach a contract of three notrump on this hand and that a good many of them would, in addition to trying to set up the diamonds, try to win some heart tricks and thereby get a better score on the board. To make any heart tricks, however, necessitated allowing the opponents in at least once, even assuming that the diamond finesse would work. South further knew that if he won the first club trick with the Knave, either East or West, upon getting in with the Ace of hearts, would realize that a club continuation was hopeless and that the only hope of defeating the contract was to sift to spades. South, aware that he was wide open in this latter suit, knew a shift would be fatal to his interests.

South, therefore, decided to take drastic measures to make sure that the opponents would not shift. On the Opening club he discarded the heart from Dummy and immediately topped East's 9 with the Ace in his own hand. This play turned out even more successfully than he had hoped. West was the player who held the Ace of hearts, and, after winning the first round of hearts with this card, immediately continued with another low club. South, in relating the hand to me afterward, said that he almost repeated his false card on the second round of clubs, as, in case the diamond finesse was wrong, he wanted a third round of clubs to be played rather than the spade shift. A little thought, however, showed him that this policy would not be a wise one at this time East and West were pretty sure to wake up. He therefore won this second round of clubs with the Knave in his own hand, and a look of great astonishment came over poor West's face.

There is nothing to the rest of the play. The diamond finesse worked, fortunately for South, I must admit, and the heart suit broke. Thus, Declarer was able to take the rest of the tricks, making six-odd for an absolute top-score on the board.

Opportunities for plays of this sort come up very rarely, but when they do, one must be alert and be prepared to take advantage of them. It takes a pretty far-sighted defensive player to read a play of this sort and make his proper shift to another suit.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

South, Dealer.

	♠ — ♡ A Q 9 7 5 3 2 ◇ A Q 9 7 5 3 ♣ —
♠ K J 10 8 6 4 ♡ — ◇ — ♣ K J 10 8 6 4 2		♠ A Q 9 7 5 3 2 ♡ — ◇ — ♣ A Q 9 7 5 3
	♠ — ♡ K J 10 8 6 4 ◇ K J 10 8 6 4 2 ♣ —

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

What Today Means

By Mary Blake.

"CANCER."

IT will be difficult on this day for any two minds to come into accord; agreements forced through on this date will be susceptible to violation and even in what appears to be an "air-tight" contract, loopholes may make an appearance. Children should be guarded against injury as a result of overtaxation in athletic games as they will be inclined to strain themselves to the utmost on this date.

The child born on this July 5 will in all probability be a money maker. An acquisitive nature and an eye for making deals will early lead him into bartering ventures. Without taking advantage of the other person, he will get all he is entitled to, and seldom, if ever, will he himself be "gypped." A life in some business enterprise will bring him great returns.

If July 5 is the date of your birth, you are not the type of person who lets himself be bound by past mistakes; you learn from your mistakes and profit accordingly, but you do not worry over them nor fear unforeseen consequences. You are inclined at times to be too trusting and too unsuspecting; others take advantage of you and you are not quick enough in rising to your own defense. Your greatest difficulties in life will come from money matters; you seem not able to save and you are too willing to borrow to meet the emergency. You must learn to be more prompt in meeting your obligations.

Born on July 5, you do not lose your head under any circumstances; when others are at a loss for words or acts, you are able to assume leadership and control the group. This is true whether the situation involves physical dangers or otherwise.

Successful people born on July 5: Isaac Hays, physician.

How to Get Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

WHY A FOUR LEGGED CHICKEN?

RECENTLY the newspapers carried a story about a chicken with four legs and three wings just hatched somewhere. The theory of this story, I presume, is that this is unusual enough to be news. Of course, it is rather stale news because that happens every little while everywhere. Maybe it is the more acceptable as news because most of the readers will find in the item an opportunity to tell about the chicken just like that which he saw once.

How it happens that a chicken gets four legs or three wings or both should be a better story. Not everybody knows about that. After they have read the explanation they can tell it to the other fellow and that makes the story better news—for the man who has the floor.

In the chicken's egg there is an embryo which, when everything is right, can be expected to grow into a chicken. This embryo is commonly invisible. It is, in fact, a single cell. Fertilization consists in the the addition to this cell of another cell, but the two fuse and the result is one cell. It is this one cell that counts in the formation of the chicken. All the remainder of the egg—the white and the yellow—is merely food stored there for nourishment of the young chick.

Development starts in the embryo by this one cell dividing into two. These divide into four and so on ad infinitum. Presently these cells begin to arrange themselves to make legs and wings and other structures. Development of the embryo into a chick proceeds in accordance with an inherited plan, everything working out with clock-like precision.

Occasionally, instead of one chick, there are two. We say there are twins. If twin chickens are developing from either one or two embryos in the same egg they are sure to be crowded. An egg was not built for two, but in some cases there are twins nevertheless. As the two developing embryos grow in the crowded space they jam each other. One is liable to overgrow the other, destroying the parts that are overgrown. That is just what happened in the case the telegraph notice told of. This was not one chicken. It was two or, more accurately, one and a part of another. This chicken was a twin. The embryo of the surviving bird had overgrown that of the twin, destroying all of the visible parts except two legs and one wing. Those extra two legs and one wing is all that is left of the second bird. When careful dissection of monstrosities of this type is made, other parts of the cannibalized twin are found imbedded in the surviving brother. However, might has made right, and most of the acquired brother has been liquidated—to borrow a phrase used by world economists and politicians. And that's the whole story. The surviving bird—the conqueror—pays for his success by being fastened to the surviving parts of the dear departed. In most of the battles of the world the victor is chained to the vanquished. In that way he pays the penalty of his victory. Which is news to a chicken.

Honey.

J. S. writes: Will you please write something on the benefits derived from honey?

Reply.

Honey is very palatable and wholesome form of sugar. Its use as a food is very old. It was the savage's principal source of food sugar thousands of years ago. The Bible refers to milk and honey as the favored foods of the early days of Bible history. It has the virtues and disadvantages of other forms of food sugar. The claim that it can be used with entire safety by diabetics has not been established.

Institute Told Consumer Big Recovery Need

Deane Plan to Sustain U. S. Income as Workers' Aid Explained.

Charlottesville, Va., July 4 (A.P.). Workers must be provided with sufficient purchasing power to raise the total consumption of the United States to the level of the total producing capacity, Dr. Henry Kittredge Norton, author, said here tonight in an address before the University Institute of Public Affairs.

Dr. Norton explained to his hearers the proposals of the "Deane plan," progressive expansion of consumption through the use of funds which would otherwise go into excess producing capacity.

This is to be accomplished, he continued, by means of a revolving fund which contributes to consumption whenever necessary to sustain the income and value of the national wealth. This fund is replenished by a fractional contribution from the additional income thus assured.

Plan Is Explained.

He explained the plan for giving supplemental compensation to all workers whose employment falls below regional averages based on the average weekly hours of employment for the preceding month.

Funds for the supplemental compensation would be collected from workers whose hours of employment exceeded regional averages, from equal amounts to be collected from their employers, and from special surtaxes levied on higher incomes.

The prediction that next year would see the elimination of the fee system from Virginia was voiced this afternoon before the county government round table of the institute by Fred T. Prufer, former executive clerk of Augusta County.

"The fee system is a source of great dissatisfaction and has been for many years," Mr. Prufer said. "This is the most opportune time in the history of the Commonwealth to abolish this unscientific and unfair means of compensating public officials."

Strong Opposition Seen.

The speaker based his prediction on the fact that all three Democratic candidates for governor have expressed definite desire to abolish the system, and that candidates for the next House of Delegates seem almost unanimously opposed.

South and Central American nations that have defaulted on their bonds should not be more severely criticized than cities, counties and States in this country that have adopted the same procedure. Walter M. Van Dusen, former banking adviser for South American countries, said here today in an address before the Latin-American Round Table of the institute.

Mr. Van Dusen told the group how holders of Latin-American bonds can proceed to secure the best settlement of their claims. It was suggested that Latin-American governments, when in difficulties over foreign debt service, might well invite a mission of foreign financial experts to appraise their capacity to pay and to recommend a scheme of arrangement with foreign bondholders.

Dr. John M. Chapman, associate professor of banking at Columbia University, in an address before the round table on money, banking and the financial situation, said that the bank failure movement is not yet ended, asserting that "too many banks have been reopened since the bank holiday."

College Girls' Boy Friends Assume Role as Confidants

Shift From Mother Takes Place in Coed Days, Educators Told.

Chicago, July 4 (U.P.).—When a girl enters college her trusted confidant is her mother, but by the time she has finished it's usually her boy friend, the Nation's teachers were told at their annual convention today.

Opal Lynn, a research worker of Iowa State College, told the sociological section of the National Education Association of her efforts to discover how a girl's ideals and attitudes change during college life. The study was made at Iowa State.

"Freshman girls confide most often in their girl friends," said Miss Lynn, "but they prefer their mother as a confidant. When they are seniors, however, the boy friend tends to be the recipient of their confidences."

She told of other changes that four years of college life bring. Freshmen girls wanted to have a career followed by marriage. Senior girls had dropped the career idea and wanted marriage most of all. However, half the older girls believed that a career and marriage could be carried on successfully at the same time, whereas the percentage for younger girls was smaller.

One of the most marked changes was in respect to their homes. Senior girls wanted to make twice as many changes in their homes as did freshman girls.

Frederick to Ask School Aid of U. S.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 4.—Frederick County school authorities stated today that they were hopeful of receiving a portion of the Federal funds to be spent in Virginia for the erection of school buildings.

Division Superintendent of Schools Leslie D. Kline declared that if Frederick County received some of the money that same would be spent for the erection of a new Frederick County High School Building in Winchester and several smaller buildings at advantageous places in the county in order to further carry out consolidation plans.

Mr. Kline said he understood that Virginia was to receive between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 from the Federal Government, about 30 per cent of which, he understood, would be an outright gift to the State and the balance to be repaid over a period of 20 years.

C. camp on the Tieton River, applied at police headquarters here for permission to carry rifles. The boys told Sergt. Ray Derby an officer told them the tribesmen were planning to go on the warpath.

Sirens screamed and the motors of 20 fire engines roared in the streets of Kensington, Md., yesterday afternoon. But there was no fire, except, perhaps in the hearts of the citizens that watched the parade of fire engines that had been gathered from Bethesda, Glen Echo, Hyattstown, Rockville, Sandy Spring, Gaithersburg, Takoma Park, Silver Spring and Mount Rainier as part of the Independence Day celebration.

Yesterday also was known as "Raney Day" in Kensington in honor of Eugene J. C. Raney, fire chief of that city, who was recently elected president of the Maryland State Firemen's Association. In this contest the crew of 10 men must run 25 feet to their engine, clamber aboard, drive 100 feet to a fire plug, connect their hose and turn on the water.

Bethesda finished first in 34 3-5 seconds, and Glen Echo was second in 42 3-5 seconds. Kensington, Hyattstown and Gaithersberg did not finish. Alfred L. Geiger, former mayor of Kensington, acted as judge in the contest. Bernie Cassell, of Chevy Chase was, timekeeper, Lieut. Clarendon, Va., Tel. Clar. 309.

Indorsing plans for a county-wide, Arlington, sewerage system, Harry C. Saffell, of Clarendon, set forth in a letter to the board, which he made public yesterday, the following suggestions:

"As I have always had a great interest in the development of the sanitary conditions of Arlington County, it is with satisfaction that I note the board are looking forward to obtaining from the government $2,200,000 for installation of a sewer system for Arlington County.

"It seems to me before a loan can be obtained, there must be a complete layout of the trunk line sewers that will drain all portions of the county when the different sections are built up.

"In order to create, build and maintain a sewer system that will function the cooperation of the different sections now poluting the Potomac River must be brought into the project.

"It is absolutely necessary that a proficient commission composed of competent sanitary engineers, with proven experience be selected from the District of Columbia, Maryland, Alexandria and Arlington County; also representatives of the United States Public Health Service and the Public Health Service of the State of Virginia be created and a thorough study be made with the object of bringing the sewerage from Maryland, District of Columbia, Arlington County and Alexandria into one system and drain to some point south of Alexandria along the Potomac River and erect and maintain an up-to-date sewerage disposal plant that will discharge the effluent into the river absolutely free from all bacteria.

Firemen Fete's Features Told At Orange Fair

Bearing first hand facts on the firemen's annual Labor Day parade, Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, of the District Fire Department and C. L. Carroll, of Sandy Spring, Md., visited the firemen's fair at Orange, Va., yesterday.

At the firefighter's get-together, they ballyhooed the coming Capital parade and urged Virginia firemen to attend and to enter floats. This followed day of watching events otherwise participating in the gala happenings.

The Orange volunteer department appeared to be one of the best organized units Sergt. Bargagni has ever visited, he said, and the Sergeant has seen most of them. He is an honorary member of forty-two.

Approximately $25,000 worth of fire equipment is owned by the Orange firefighters. This, they point out, has been purchased by the department, without the financial assistance of the city or county. The money has been raised by proceeds from fairs.

Rescue Truck Is Feature.

The rescue truck is the pride of the Orange men. It is said to be one of the most modern types of apparatus owned by volunteer companies. The two other pieces are a ladder truck and hose truck.

E. H. Rouse as chief of the Orange department has largely been responsible for its success.

This company, in a city of 1,400, also boasts an excellent band. M. F. Perry is the leader. Mrs. O. T. Herndon, of Orange, is president of the ladies auxiliary of the Virginia State Fire Association and has assisted the local department for several years.

Participating in the fair, were companies from Alexandria, Manassas and Charlottesville. Charlottesville, with Chief Laurie Payne in command, carried off three first places out of four events.

Manassas Wins Contest.

The one-man hose coupling contest was won by Manassas, with a record of 13 seconds. Alexandria was second, with 19 seconds, and Charlottesville third, with 20.2 seconds.

Charlottesville won first place in the four-man hose coupling event, with time of 25 seconds. Alexandria tied Manassas for second, with 26 seconds.

The six-man ladder-raising contest went to Charlottesville, as did the six-man ladder contest. It was pointed out that Alexandria made a splendid showing, considering the fact that they were not trained for the events and had not expected to enter. They were called on when a company from Gordonsville failed to appear.

Arlington Fourth Proves Quiet Day

With the fireworks ban lifted in Arlington County yesterday, a record was foreseen at a late hour last night as not a call had reached the courthouse for medical aid resulting from fireworks injuries.

From early morning to late last night there was a continuous sound throughout the county from explosion of fireworks. Hundreds of residents, taking advantage of the clear weather, left their homes early yesterday morning for resorts along the Potomac, where a quiet day was spent.

But one call for police was recorded at the office of the sheriff. Milton L. Oliver, a taxicab driver, was arrested on charges of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Alexandria Bar to Meet.

A meeting of the Alexandria Bar Association will be held at 12:30 o'clock today at the George Mason Hotel.

Wheat's March To Dollar Value Makes History

Rise From 43 3-8 Cents to $1.08 Cited as Proof of Prosperity.

Chicago, July 4 (A.P.).—At this midyear date there is one thing certain. Conditions are immensely better.

Six months ago, the Nation was sinking into the most desperate financial and economic muck of its history. Today it is moving swiftly to a new prosperity. Doubters may call it a dangerous prosperity, but evidence is lacking. The old flame of determination has been kindled anew; confidence has returned at a startling rate under the courageous Roosevelt leadership.

Collapse of agriculture and finance went hand in hand, the former being due in large measure to blunders of the old Farm Board in walling up our surpluses at home. Grain prices, and all farm prices, began moving up instantly upon assurance of the new administration that farm manipulation was over.

Here is the indisputable evidence of revival:

On December 28, last, July wheat sold in the central market at Chicago for 43⅜ cents a bushel, hardly half of production cost to most farmers. Recently it has sold above $1 for deliveries, with May contracts at $1.08.

Corn on that date sold for 25 cents a bushel, and recently at around 56½ cents to 70⅞ cents. July oats sold then at 16 cents, and recently at 48 cents, with May 55⅛ cents.

Owing to natural conditions, a very short wheat crop is now a certainty, so that a part of the United States carryover will be used to feed our own Nation, and as a result grain prices are likely to find levels quite profitable to the grower.

Wool Price Gains Please Virginians

Page County Sheep Men to Receive 20 Cents More for Clip.

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., July 4.—Sheep growers in Page County are elated at the increase in prices they are receiving for wool. The growers in Page County who market their wool in the pool conducted by the Virginia Farm Bureau, in cooperation with the national wool marketing organizations in New England, will receive an increase of 20 cents a pound for their wool. This advance is approximately 76 per cent of the market price, while the present advance exceeds the whole price usually paid.

Wool prices have shown a greater advance than prices of any other farm product in this section. Indications are that wool prices will continue to advance and the growers who market their wool through the Virginia wool pool will receive their share of any increase in prices that may prevail when their wool is sold to the trade.

Sheep growers, who have been losing money on wool for the last 15 years, are beginning to pool their product, with the result that they are getting better prices each year.

Trends of Industry.

New York, July 4 (A.P.).—Still far from prosperity levels, most lines of business enter the last half of the year in stronger positions both from the statistical standpoint and from the less tangible aspect of confidence.

Here's a bird's-eye view of progress taken from reports of the conference of statisticians in industry and other sources:

Public Utilities—Despite agitation for rate cuts in many parts of the Nation, increased sales of power seemed likely to improve earnings. Especially noteworthy is the fact that the increase in electric output has been in wholesale industrial power, indicating increased factory work.

Automobiles—New car registrations in May, 1933, in 11 States gained 16 per cent over registration in May, 1932. Continued increases in retail sales indicate that the usual summer slump will be of minimum proportions.

Building and construction—Unusual gains in private building, as distinguished from public construction, indicate private building is off to a spurt in its own right, forming a somewhat unexpected addition to the Federal program.

Lumber—Unshipped orders formed the largest backlog at sawmills since May, 1930. Gross stocks of soft-wood mills in May were 24 per cent under the same date in 1932.

Steel—Steel operations were running at 50 per cent of capacity, and unfilled orders were increasing. Noteworthy was a rise in machine tool orders, indicating industrial demands for retooling.

Coal—Bituminous coal production in May was 12½ per cent over April this year and 21½ per cent over May last year, while larger summer gains were in the offing.

Textiles—Activity in the textile industry in May approximated 1932, while preliminary figures showed activity in June exceeding last year. Employment in woolen and worsted textiles advanced at a greater rate than in other branches.

Hide and leathers—Prices of these staples have advanced more than in most lines. Shoe production for May and June is expected to show gains over last year.

Railroads—While carloadings for the first half of year were under the same period last year, gains in recent months were expected to improve the situation markedly, especially since current months are running ahead of last year.

Retail trade—Dollar value of department store sales increased more than seasonally in May, and department store managers are placing orders heavily.

Employment—The number of workers in manufacturing industry increased 5 per cent in May over April, but is still under 1932. Hourly wages in May showed a decline under April, says the National Industrial Conference board, although total earnings improved, due to increased hours.

Rail Workers Call Halt on Wage Cuts

Montreal, July 4 (A.P.).—The Canadian branch of the Railroad Employes Department of the American Federation of Labor, Division No. 4, comprising 35,000 shop tradesmen, has informed the Railway Association of Canada, representing all Canadian railroads, that its members have undergone enough salary sacrifices in point of reductions, in layoff, and reduction in working hours, and will not accept the proposed additional 10 per cent cut in basic rates, it was learned today.

The workers announced their willingness to continue working for another year under the 10 per cent cut now in force, but stressed the fact that any new wage cuts are not justified.

No statement could be obtained from the Railway Association of Canada except the announcement the decision of the men had been submitted to the different railroads affected.

U. S. Stops Cotton Reduction Reports

Raleigh, N. C., July 4 (A.P.).—With only 6 per cent of North Carolina's quota in the cotton acreage reduction program signed up, the Federal Government today ordered that no further summaries of the campaign's progress be made public.

The last report, issued yesterday by I. O. Schaub, State director, showed that 4,438 growers, cultivating 66,323 acres of cotton, had agreed to retire 22,594 acres. North Carolina's quota is 363,000 acres, with the campaign scheduled to end July 8.

C. A. Cobb, in charge of the Federal cotton reduction program, notified Schaub to stop the daily reports on progress "in the interest of the farmer and success of the plan." Mr. Cobb said further data on the campaign's progress at this time may create a price situation which will endanger the success of the program.

Idle Fund Head Adopts Garden Slogan as Aid

(Associated Press.)

"No garden, no relief" is a slogan that has begun to spread through the relief agencies distributing Federal funds to unemployed.

A statement yesterday by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, said he expected the garden program to result in sizable contributions to relief food needs this summer and next winter. Wherever possible families are being urged to plant gardens.

Bond Advances Laid to Steady Trade Revival

First Six Months of 1933 Turned With Prices Still Climbing.

New York, July 4 (A.P.).—Bonds generally failed to confirm the inflationary aspects of markets during the first half of 1933 and the improvement in trade apparently was the most important factor in the substantial upturn of senior security prices.

While it is true that many of the more speculative railroads and utility issues were inclined to follow stocks most of the time, with inflation as a part of the motivating power, the highest grade categories that might conceivably be affected by dollar depreciation because of their low yield bases displayed sound, if not buoyant, gains.

At the beginning of the year the Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate bonds stood at 68.1, against 72.3 at the start of 1932 and 96.8 at the same time in 1931. On July 1, this average had advanced to 78.9.

Rail Loans Lead.

With freight car loadings going forward by leaps and bounds, carrier liens made the best showing of all listed loans. The average for 20 selected rails was at the low point of 59.2 at the start of the year.

On July 1, this average had climbed to 78.5. The average for 20 utilities was at 82.3 at the beginning of January and on the 1st of July stood at 85.5. The industrial average advanced from 63 to 73.7.

Steady gains in steel production, electric power output and retail sales were highly encouraging to most bondholders, the implication being that the tremendous powers for inflation granted President Roosevelt by Congress would not be used if business continued to hold its forward momentum and reemployment of millions of the idle became an established fact.

Federal Issues Firm.

United States Government securities held to a firm level as the Federal Reserve System began its open market purchases of Government obligations at the rate of around $21,000,000 weekly. New York State placed a $25,000,000 issue at the record low-cost-interest rate of less than 3 per cent, and Canada floated a $60,000,000 note offering on a basis of about 4 per cent.

Foreign bonds as a whole did not quite follow the domestic groups, owing largely to European economic and political complications. The Germans were especially heavy, due to the declaration of a transfer moratorium by the Reich.

British and French issues, however, maintained firm positions, while the Japanese and some South American groups recovered substantially.

Stocks Rise to Peaks As Recovery Widens

Half-Year Mark Is Passed With Buyers Pushing Prices to Record High Levels; 16 Billion Added to Values.

New York, July 4 (A.P.).—The magic of Midas, almost forgotten during more than three years of deflation, reappeared in the stock market this spring.

An appreciation of around $16,000,000,000 in quoted values of shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange over a four-month period measured the transformation wrought by the Government's program of price lifting and the sweeping business recovery.

For so short a time, the advance was the largest on record. The Associated Press-Standard Statistics composite of 90 issues appreciated almost exactly 100 per cent from late February to late June. The low for the year in this average was 43.9, made February 27; the high of 1933's first half was 87.2 on June 27, since which date there has been a further rise. The market closed the first half year at the highest level since the fall of 1931.

With characteristic readiness to discount the future and to change its mind overnight, Wall Street swung abruptly from bear market psychology to such enthusiasms as attend a bull market cycle. The turning point, of course, came after the banking holiday when it appeared that the new government had inflationary ideas and that Washington's "New Deal" was to have very practical manifestations.

Moving up first on the theory that the country was to have a liberal dose of inflation, the market later was prompted to further gains by the boom in industry, and trading became very heavy.

January saw irregular price movements in a very narrow range and light volume. In February the market, alarmed by the banking holidays declared by various States and localities, drifted lower, losing some eight points in that month. With March came the national banking moratorium and the closing of the stock exchange from March 4 to 15. On the latter day there was a big rally, but the market later subsided into dullness.

The first half of April was fairly quiet, but departure of the country from the gold standard on the 19th brought another outburst of speculative enthusiasm which with only minor interruptions has since continued.

Committee Organized To Fight Gold Default

Basel, Switzerland, July 4 (A.P.). An international committee against repudiation of the gold clause was founded here today by representatives of Dutch, Belgium, French and Swiss holders of govies.

The purpose of the organization is to protect the members' interests from the results of "repudiation of the gold clause by numerous debtors."

American Dollar Bows Again to British Pound

London, July 4 (A.P.). — The Amerian dollar closed on the London exhange market today at $4.49½ in relation to the pound, a drop of 6½ cents from Monday. The opening was $4.48½.

10,629 Bales of Wool Are Sold in London

London, July 4 (A.P.).—At the opening of the fourth wool auction sales today 11,102 bales were offered of which 4,537 were South American. Of the total offered 10,629 bales were sold. The opening buying came principally from the home trade and the continent, and occasionally there was some demand from Americans. Merinos sold 20 per cent higher. Crossbreds 15 to 20 per cent and slipped 10 to 25 per cent over the closing prices of the last series.

Capes were 20 per cent dearer while Punta Arenas sold 10 to 15 per cent higher.

Curb's Dealings Join Inflation's Upturn Drives

Gains Follow Big Board; Commodity Shares in First Rank.

New York, July 4 (A.P.).—Finding a potent tonic in the inflation movement, the curb market recovered swiftly from the enfeeblement which gripped it in the early months of 1933 to round out the first half with values at their highest levels for more than a year.

Speculative enthusiasm spread from group to group as traders registered bullish appraisal of commodity price advances or potential gains in company profits from the succession of political and economic events following the original disclosure of inflation purpose in April.

In the first stage of the transition, speculative interest converged on stocks which could be readily classified as "commodity" securities, namely those representing mining, rubber, petroleum, textile, manufacturing and other like interests. Issues of such groups acquired an aspect of scarcity as traders engaged in a wild scramble for their purchase.

The buying movement, given fresh impetus by the removal of the dollar from the gold base, became something of a frenzied operation to exchange dollars for equities, but with the appearance of tangible indications of industrial recovery, the trading fraternity began to show interest in certain groups outside the so-called commodity category.

This was reflected in a return of buoyancy in utility shares for the first time in many months, and in wide advances in air transportation and miscellaneous classifications.

Because of the sensational proportions of the climb in many of the leaders, sharp corrective movements punctuated the upward swing. On the whole, however, realizing sales were absorbed in a way to indicate a steady broadening of the buying base.

The market's rejuvenation in the second quarter had a natural accompaniment in a great increase in trading volume, and in several sessions turnover was close to record figures.

Daily Output of Oil Up 23,200 Barrels

Tulsa, Okla., July 4 (A.P.).—The free flowing of Oklahoma wells was the chief reason for an increase of 23,200 barrels in the daily average crude oil production of the United States last week, the Oil and Gas Journal reports. Production rose from 2,738,020 to 2,761,220 barrels daily.

Oklahoma output advanced from 556,265 to 613,940 barrels daily, with the Oklahoma City field supplying almost half this amount. East Texas production fell still further, from 756,255 to 701,340 barrels, while the output of the entire State of Texas decreased from 1,310,040 to 1,271,337 barrels a day.

California production was down from 482,000 to 474,500 barrels. Kansas showed another advance, from 110,620 to 116,580 barrels daily. Production in Eastern fields was up 2,000 to 112,000 barrels daily, while in the Rocky Mountain region output rose from 73,790 to 75,550 barrels a day.

1700 Indian Trade Shown in Accounts

Greenwood, S. C., July 4 (A.P.).—A fox skin for 18 cents, both an otter and a beaver skin for less than 75 cents and three and a half pints of rum for half a dollar are some of the items recorded in the accounts of a man who traded with the Indians in early 1700's.

The old book came to light here this year among debris of an abandoned cabin on the farm of Mrs. Mary W. Wells. It belonged to one Capt. John Evans, licensed Indian trader of Virginia and Carolina.

Although two centuries have elapsed since the entries were made, the ink writing is still legible, although mixed with many odd symbols, some of them akin to the Indian sign language.

Trade Pact Proposed By Canada and Austria

Ottawa, Ontario, July 4 (A.P.).—It was learned from a reliable source today that a trade agreement has been practically concluded between Canada and Austria, to become effective within a few days.

The agreement, it was said, would place Austrian imports under the Canadian intermediate tariff instead of the general tariff which now applies to all entries from that country.

Cotton in Dixie Brings 10 Cents As Clouds Shift

Two-Year Pull for Better Prices Is Rewarded; Higher Goal Set.

(Associated Press.)

Dixie is stirring to the impulse of 10-cent cotton for the first time in two years.

It has been a long pull up from the bottom. Before President Roosevelt declared a national banking holiday the staple had been idling half-heartedly around 6.00 cents a pound at the ten principal spot markets. When the speculative markets reopened cash cotton started up with futures and by March 16 was quoted at 6.65 cents.

Five days later the market underwent a technical readjustment and cotton sold off to 6.07. Since then the general trend of prices has been upward, middling ⅞-inch commanding 10.23 cents a pound on June 27. It was the first time since March 30, 1931, the average had hit a dime a pound.

The extreme low between that date and June 27 was 4.76, paid June 9, 1932. It was practically the all-record bottom. The cheapest cotton the United States ever saw brought a price of 4.7 cents a pound in November, 1898.

Although .12 cents on the farm, the prewar average, is the goal set by the agricultural readjustment administration, cotton claimed several hundred points advantage over that during the "boom years." The average reached 21½ cents in March, 1929.

An extreme top of 42 cents a pound was paid for cotton in July, 1920, the highest price in modern times. The all-time high was $1.75 a pound, the market's response to acres laid barren by the Civil War.

England Silent on Gold Link of Future Pound

London, July 4 (A.P.).—A government spokesman would not give a direct answer when asked in the House of Commons today if he would promise that sterling would not be linked to gold in advance of the American dollar being so linked.

Maj. Leslie Hore-Belisha, financial secretary of the treasury, speaking for Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, said the chancellor on a number of occasions had expressed the government's view "that return to the gold standard might be our ultimate objective when proper conditions were assured. We must observe complete liberty to choose both our own time and parity." He added that the chancellor did not think he could usefully add anything to that statement now.

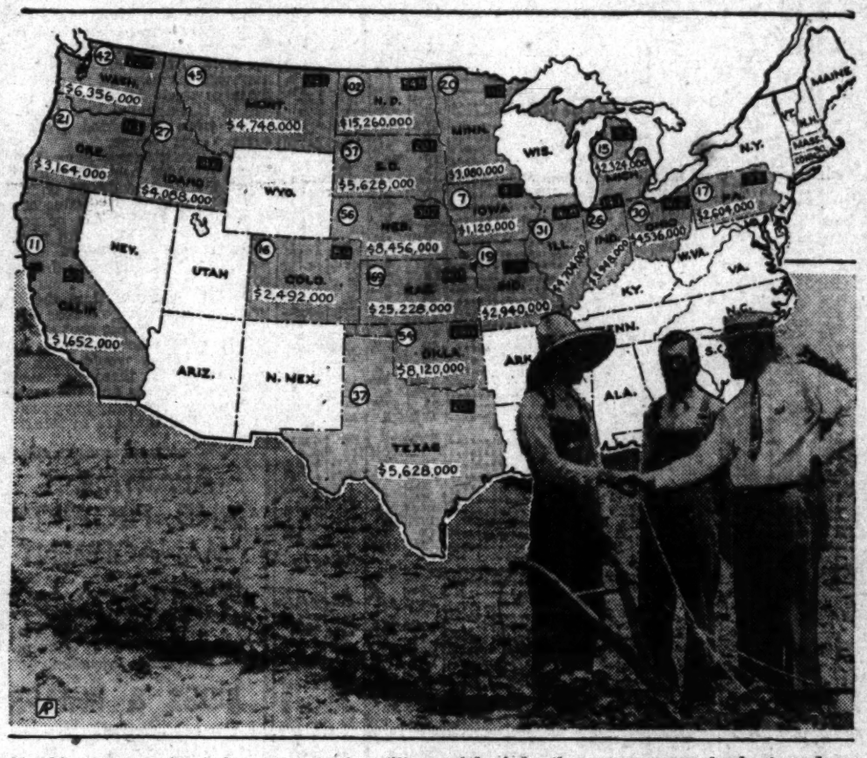
Wallace Aims to Bolster Prices



The black figures in circles represent, in millions of bushels, the average annual wheat production during the past five years. The white figures in squares show, in millions of bushels, the crop on which benefit payments would be made by the Federal Government under the new farm act, based on an estimated total domestic consumption for food of 450,000,000 bushels. The third figures show the benefit payments, estimated at 28 cents a bushel and on a basis of a 100 per cent agreement to reduce acreage, to be made from a processing tax. Left to right, below, are James Allen, Georgia farmer who claims the distinction of being the first person to plow up cotton under the Federal cotton control plan; W. G. Thomason, chairman of the cotton committee of Newtown community, and County Agent S. D. Pruitt.

(Associated Press.)

Placing a processing tax on wheat and cotton is Farm Secretary Wallace's way of building a foundation under the spectacular price rises which have added millions to the potential worth of those commodities.

"If we want these prices to stay up and to go higher," he said, "we must put a firm base under them."

The secretary declared that even if wheat and cotton prices were in sight of the parity level sought in the agricultural readjustment act they would be found to have been built on sand unless acreage were reduced and supply adjusted to demand.

This country has been producing around 850,000,000 bushels of wheat annually and using about 450,000,000 bushels for food purposes.

Purpose of Plan.

1. Collect a tax of 30 cents a bushel on all wheat processed for human consumption within the United States.

2. Allot to each wheat State on the basis of its average production a definite number of bushels it may contribute to domestic consumption.

3. Determine from the State's quota the individual farmer's share of the allotment on the basis of his average production.

4. On his voluntary contract to reduce his acreage (probably 20 per cent) pay him out of the fund accumulated from the processing tax a cash benefit of 28 cents a bushel on his domestic allotment.

Not Limited.

While there will be no limit on production, there will be no benefit payments for wheat not to be used as food in this country.

Kansas, biggest producer among the 20 main wheat States, had an average harvest of 128,000,000 bushels during the 1919-23 period.

It had been stepped up to 169,000,000 bushels during the 1928-32 period. Assuming 450,000,000 bushels to be set as the domestic consumption total, Kansas would be entitled to an allotment of 90,100,000 bushels on the basis of her last five-year average production.

Production of Wheat.

The following table shows the average annual production of wheat, in millions of bushels, during the past five years; the number of bushels, in millions, on which benefit payments would be made, based on an estimate of 450,000,000 bushels as the total annual domestic consumption for food; and the amount to be paid farmers in each State, estimated at the rate of 28 cents a bushel and on the basis of a 100 per cent agreement to reduce acreage:

STATE	Aver. Prod'n 1928-32	Domestic Allotment	Benefits
Penn.	17	8.3	$2,604,000
Ohio	30	16.2	4,536,000
Indiana	26	14.1	3,948,000
Illinois	31	16.8	4,704,000
Michigan	15	8.3	2,324,000
Iowa	7	4.0	1,120,000
Missouri	19	10.5	2,940,000
Minnesota	20	11.0	3,080,000
No. Dak.	102	54.5	15,260,000
So. Dak.	37	20.1	5,628,000
Montana	46	24.1	4,748,000
Nebraska	56	30.2	8,456,000
Kansas	169	90.1	25,228,000
Oklahoma	54	29.0	8,120,000
Texas	37	20.1	5,628,000
Colorado	16	8.9	2,492,000
Idaho	27	14.6	4,088,000
Washington	42	22.7	6,356,000
Oregon	21	11.3	3,164,000
California	11	5.9	1,652,000

It is assumed 2 cents of the processing tax would be used for administrative purposes. Thus, at 28 cents a bushel, Kansas' share in benefit payments would be $25,228,000.

How much of that would get to the individual farmer depends on the number of farmers intending to raise wheat in Kansas in 1934-35, each farmer's average production for the last five years, his willingness to reduce acreage the specified amount and his share of the State's domestic allotment quota.

In advance of the "sign-up campaign," August 1 to September 15, the farmer's participation in benefits can be figured only in a hypothetical sense.

If one of the 1,200,000 growing wheat has been seeding 100 acres to wheat and averaging 1,000 bushels his contract might call for 80 acres and a presumptive yield of 800 bushels. His fair share of contribution to the food needs of the nation might be found to be 400 bushels, entitling him to benefit payments of $112. He would be handed two-thirds of it, or approximately $75, in cash at once.

Whereas his income was $600 at an average of 60 cents a bushel when he grew 1,000 bushels, he would have $112 in benefits for growing only 800 and if the reduction influenced prices as anticipated, possibly $800 for his wheat at $1 a bushel, or a total of $912.

Cotton Control Plan.

The cotton control plan is a straight acreage rental proposition, the Government to pay farmers a fee to be determined on the average production of their land.

This reduction, too, is a voluntary obligation and may be undertaken by any of 2,000,000 farmers. They would be paid out of funds accruing from a processing tax on cotton manufactured for domestic use.

While the amount of this tax has not been announced, it has been discussed unofficially as 4 cents a pound. This amount collected on an average of 6,500,000 bales for domestic use would provide $130,000,000.

The rental payments would vary widely, depending on the fertility of the land and the nature of the farmer's contract, but $8 an acre represents an average taken from official figures.

At this figure the $130,000,000 would retire approximately 16,000,000 of the 36 to 39 million acres normally in production in the cotton belt.

Railroads Paid $74,744,279 on Rates Returns

Credit Corporation Issues Report to I. C. C. on Operations.

Net revenues derived from the emergency rates granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission under ex parte 103 and received by the roads participating in the marshaling and distributing plan administered by the Railroad Credit Corporation amounted to $74,744,279 in the 15 months ended on March 31, 1933, that the plan was in operation, according to a report submitted recently by the Railroad Credit Corporation to the commission.

The carriers participating in the plan included all eligible class I railroads, with one exception. Those class I railroads which were in receivership were not eligible to participate.

For the 15-month period which terminated on March 31, 1933, the railroads paid to the Railroad Credit Corporation revenues derived from the emergency rates and from these revenues loans were made by the corporation to prevent defaults in fixed interest obligations.

Roads Retain Revenues.

Beginning on April 1, 1933, however, the railroads are retaining such revenue, and are to continue to do so until September 30, 1933, when the emergency rates terminate.

Of the $74,744,279 received in the 15-month period, the Railroad Credit Corporation made loans amounting to $73,691,368, of which $1,472,339 has been repaid. This leaves outstanding loans amounting to $72,219,029.

The period in which loans could be made by the Railroad Credit Corporation terminated on May 31, 1933, and its activities after that date are limited to liquidation. As borrowing roads repay their loans to the Railroad Credit Corporation, this money will be distributed from time to time to member lines.

Distribution on July 15.

The first distribution to the participating carriers will be made on July 15, 1933, at which time they will receive 4 per cent of the amounts they have paid into the corporation. Further repayments to the participating carriers will depend on receipts from liquidation.

In a letter addressed to the chief executives of the participating carriers and accompanying the report, E. G. Buckland, president of the Railroad Central Corporation, said:

"At a meeting held on June 30 the board of directors authorized a distribution to the participating carriers of 4 per cent of their respective earnings contributed, or due to be contributed to the fund created by the marshaling and distributing plan, 1931, as adjusted in accordance with the conditions of paragraph 14 of said plan. This distribution will be made on July 15, 1933, based on the fund of record June 30, 1933, and will be made in cash to carriers which are not indebted to the fund for loans or otherwise, and by credits on the obligations of other carriers."

Many Nations Begin to Reap Upturn Fruits

Substantial Gains Reported as Unemployment Drops; Latins Hopeful.

(Associated Press.)

World business moves into the fourth midsummer of the depression with Uncle Sam's drive for recovery sharing the spotlight with efforts toward international cooperation at the economic conference in London.

Some of the important commercial indicators in various nations register substantial advances from the low levels of 1932 and early 1933. These improvements, however, are highly nationalistic and have been the result to a large degree, Government economists say, of drastic governmental measures designed to aid individual countries.

Most notable example of this improvement has been in the United States, where rises in major indexes of business activity were in response to unprecedented administration policies and plans as well as basic betterment of some trade conditions.

World Unemployment Drops.

Definitely favorable factors in the world business outlook were unemployment decreases this spring in the United States, England, Germany, France, Italy and Australia, industrial production gains in the United States, France and Italy, a general firming of commodity prices and improved retail demand in many countries.

Factors continuing unfavorable were the great debt burdens, governmental and private, millions still unemployed, low purchasing power, an international trade throttled by what observers term nationalistic restrictions and the frozen condition of private capital said to be due to lack of national and international confidence.

In the United Kingdom, which in 1932 was our best customer, there was little change in the economic conditions since the beginning of the year. The British seemed encouraged, however, by reciprocal trade agreements with the Scandinavian countries, Argentina and Germany and there was improvement in building construction and the unemployment situation.

Canada Shows Gains.

In Canada, our second best customer, the trade trend was upward this spring, particularly in the western provinces where higher wheat prices helped farmer and merchant.

In Germany the general business situation showed only scant improvement, although employment increased and the government's ambitious public works program was expected to stimulate industrial activity.

An increase in the domestic demand for goods this spring was reported to have been offset largely by a decrease in foreign orders due in considerable measure to boycott of German products because of Nazi activities. The production index, however, was about 10 points above the low of January, 1932.

Latin America Hopeful.

In Latin America the general situation has undergone no change of note since a year ago, say Commerce Department observers. Small price increases in several of the commodities produced and sold by Latin Americans in the world market, however, have created a feeling of hopefulness which heretofore has not been in evidence.

From Italy comes word of improvement in general business conditions, a slump in unemployment, an advance in industrial production and an increase in exports this spring over the corresponding period a year ago.

Many of the industrial and commercial indicators in highly self-sufficient France were favorable. Unemployment, never as acute a problem there as in the heavy industry countries, was decreasing, and there was evidence of definite revival in many important industries.

Depreciation of the dollar in terms of the previously depreciated yen has reduced Japanese advantage in some markets, and the Chinese boycotts have been detrimental to the island empire.

Back-to-Farm Move Reaches Peak in Ohio

Columbus, Ohio, July 4 (A.P.).—Last year saw the three-year back-to-the-farm movement apparently near its peak in Ohio, says P. G. Beck, Ohio State university rural economist. He estimates the Ohio farm population at 1,085,000, a figure which does not include the migration of families to vacant houses in the open country, the number who have moved to small villages, or those who have taken to subsistence gardening in rural areas.

The increase in 1930 was 15,500, in 1931 it was 21,000 and in 1932 47,000. Unless migration begins the other way, Beck predicts by 1935 a 50 per cent increase in number of men and women between the ages of 20 and 24 on farms.

Wheat at Winnipeg Is Driven Lower

Profit-Selling and Rains Push Grains Off High Perch.

Winnipeg, July 4 (A.P.).—Profit selling and widespread rainfalls combined today to force wheat prices on the local grain exchange off the lofty perch they attained yesterday but the setback was comparatively slight. At 9:30 a futures ranged between ⅞ and 1⅛ lower.

Early selling, spurred by expectation of further moisture in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, sent values skidding as much as two cents but buying was forthcoming to stem the fall. July was 1 lower at 78⅛, October ⅞ to 70⅞, December at 82½ had lost 1 while May stood at 85⅝ for a loss of 1⅛.

Liverpool failed to move up in tune with Monday's sensational climb here and closed 1@1⅛ down. Coarse grains developed mixed fluctuations, with flax, the most active preformer, 1½ lower.

Notes on Grains.

Chicago, July 4 (A.P.).—Almost uninterrupted bullish news continues to push grain prices upward. President Roosevelt's refusal to abandon his inflation plans, under European pressure for immediate stabilization of currencies, and estimates of the smallest wheat crop since 1896, have sent grains to new high marks for several years.

Estimates of leading crop statisticians suggest the North American yield of wheat, oats, rye and barley has probably been reduced 1,000,000,000 bushels from the outlook which prevailed June 1.

While the estimated wheat crop of more than 500,000,000 bushels, 323,000,000 winter and 196,000,000 spring, is somewhat below private figures on Saturday, it nevertheless showed the smallest since 1896.

The corn crop, generally considered to be in better condition than the other grains, nevertheless will be the smallest, with two exceptions, since 1913, according to private reports, which show an average of 2,489,000,000 bushels. Last year the yield was 2,908,000,000 bushels.

Open interest in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade: Wheat, Saturday, 162,981,000 bushels; Friday, 164,609,000; week ago, 160,372,000. Corn, Saturday, 98,968,000 bushels; Friday, 90,387,000; week ago, 88,682,000.

Doherty Ends License Fight in West Virginia

Charleston, W. Va., July 4 (A.P.).—Declining to comply in full with new State securities regulations, the Henry L. Doherty Company, which sells Cities Service Company Securities, has withdrawn its application for a new license to do business in West Virginia.

Announcing that the Doherty Company will cease business in the State, for the present at least, Harold K. Bradford, deputy securities commissioner, said representatives had asked him to liberalize the restrictions and he had refused. He told them he did not think it would be fair to grant any exceptions "after failure of your firm to comply with the requirements that are being met by other dealers."

Dollar in France Scores Recovery

Drop to 19.09 Is Replaced by Gain to 19.25 in Late Trading.

Paris, July 4 (A.P.).—After falling to a new low level of 19.09 francs (5.23 cents to the franc), the American dollar closed today at 19.25 francs to the dollar (5.19 cents to the franc). This represented a loss of six centimes from the final price in bourse trading Monday.

Meanwhile, the expectation was held that the chiefs of the six European "gold bloc" countries would meet here shortly to consider moves in the currency situation. It was understood that governors of the banks of issue of Holland, France, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium and Poland had agreed to confer, possibly Saturday.

100 Cities Improve In Trade Activities

New York, July 4 (A.P.).—American business has taken a decidedly upward trend, the New York Board of Trade reported today on the basis of a survey of conditions in 100 representative cities. Increases in employment, pay rolls, wages, industrial production, wholesale and retail sales, postal receipts, bank clearances, gas consumption and telephones justify the conclusion, the board said.

"The conclusion is inescapable that the depression is over and that we are well on the road to recovery," said Percy C. Magnus, president of the board.

"Business is now in the convalescence stage," he continued. "There may be some setbacks; we all sincerely hope not. If we have them, we believe they will not be serious. We are now probably well on the way to one of the greatest periods of stabilized prosperity in the whole business history of the country."

Freight Loadings Increase 10 Per Cent Over '32 Period

Freight car loadings in the third quarter of 1933 will be approximately 10 per cent above actual loading in the same quarter in 1932, according to estimates just compiled by the thirteen Shippers' Regional Advisory Boards and made public yesterday.

This estimate, which is the first to show an increase in any quarter since the fourth quarter of 1929, is based on reports received from approximately 20,000 shippers as the result of a questionnaire sent to them by the boards.

Of the thirteen Shippers' Regional Advisory Boards, the territories of which cover the entire United States, twelve reported an increase in the estimated car loadings for the third quarter of this year compared with the same period in 1932, and only one, the Trans-Missouri-Kansas Board, reported a decrease due to reduction in the grain crop in that territory.

Each of the thirteen Shippers' Advisory Boards prepares car loading estimates covering 29 principal commodities, which constitute over 90 per cent of the total carload traffic. The tabulation below shows the total loadings for each district for the third quarter of 1932, the estimated loadings for the third quarter of 1933 and the percentage of increase or decrease:

Allegheny	456,998	533,441
Atlantic States	437,561	461,356
Central West	165,364	178,398
Great Lakes	219,129	284,500
Mid-West	570,661	611,513
New England	82,459	85,879
Northwest	195,138	262,779
Ohio Valley	493,560	554,743
Pacific Coast	173,954	185,494
Pacific Northwest	121,439	131,927
Southeast	332,921	356,523
Southwest	294,311	304,011
Trans-Missouri-Kans	298,982	273,283
Total	3,841,768	4,224,077

Of the 29 commodities covered in the forecast, it is anticipated that 23 will show an increase in loadings in the third quarter of 1933 compared with the same period in 1932. They are flour, meal and other mill products; cotton; cottonseed and products, except oil; citrus; other fresh fruits; fresh vegetables other than potatoes; live stock; poultry and dairy products; coal and coke; ore and concentrates; salt; lumber and lumber products; sugar, sirup and molasses; iron and steel; machinery and boilers; brick and clay products; lime and plaster; agricultural implements and vehicles other than automobiles; automobiles, trucks and parts; fertilizers; paper, paperboard and prepared roofing; chemicals and explosives, and canned goods, which include all canned food products.

The six commodities for which reductions are estimated are all grain, hay, straw and alfalfa; potatoes; gravel, sand and stone; petroleum and petroleum products, and cement.

Of the commodities for which increases are estimated in the third quarter, compared with the same period last year, those showing the largest increases are ore and concentrates, with 92.5 per cent; automobiles, trucks and parts, with 49.1 per cent; iron and steel, with 47.1 per cent; cotton, with 45.5 per cent; machinery and boilers, 22.9 per cent, and coal and coke, 11.7 per cent.

Harvard to Give Planning Course

Cambridge, Mass., July 4 (A.P.).—Harvard University believes national planning is so much the need of the hour that it is going to give a course in that subject as one of the features of next year's curriculum. The course, initiated by the university's school of city planning, will be designed to acquaint students with the changing social and economic needs of American life and to show the importance of long-range planning in the physical development of the Nation, Prof. Henry V. Hubbard, chairman of the school, said today.

Hubbard said that the Tennessee Valley project, now in the state of development, would serve as a valuable, "laboratory," for the course, while special attention also would be directed to the Federal program of public works under the national recovery act.

The course will be given by Assistant Prof. Arthur C. Comey, who served as town planner for the United States Housing Corporation during the World War and has been consulted in city planning by such cities as Boston, Milwaukee, Utica, N. Y.; Houston, Tex.; Manchester, N. H., and Portland, Me.

"Midsummer Festival" of De Luxe Films Begins at RKO-Keith's

By Nelson B. Bell.

There is more, it seems, than casually meets the eye in the determination of Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's, to bring Constance Bennett to his screen in "Bed of Roses" tomorrow, one day ahead of the customary—or comparatively so—Friday opening.

A part of the idea, at least, is to attract attention to what is announced as only the first of a notable succession of feature releases of such superlative excellence as to prompt Manager Meakin to designate his hot-weather season RKO's "Midsummer Festival."

This denomination of certain months, or periods of the year, as special "seasons," "festivals," "frolics," "jamborees," "joy jags" and whatnot is, in essence, merely another manifestation of concentrated press-agent ballyhoo, but usually there is some basis in fact for the presumption that prompts all the extravagances, exaggeration and hyperbole that accompany the tub-thumping. It is so in this case.

Following the most orchidaceous of the Bennetts in "Bed of Roses"—if you can handle such horticultural confusion—RKO-Keith's has in early prospect such other eminent stars and distinguished vehicles as Richard Dix in "No Marriage Ties," John Barrymore in "Fugitive from Glory," Ann Harding in "Prelude to Love" and Dolores Del Rio in "La Modesta." These will not necessarily come along in the order named, but they must, necessarily, come along.

Then at possibly a slightly more remote time, there will be the camera and microphone versions of Sinclair Lewis' "Ann Vickers," Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage" and Frank Buck's sequel to "Bring 'em Back Alive."

But without all this particularization, those who rely upon RKO-Radio for an appreciable part of their cinematographic entertainment may look forward with confidence to a succession of releases picturing personalities of the first rank in filmdom, among them Lionel and John Barrymore, Katharine Hepburn, Constance and Joan Bennett, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Leslie Howard, Irene Dunne, Dolores Del Rio, Francis Lederer, Wheeler & Woolsey, Walter Huston, Ginger Rogers, and scores more.

It is the company's plan, as has been previously intimated here, to produce and distribute fifty-two feature pictures for the 1933-34 trade, by which is meant a flow of product at the rate of one first-class feature a week—a good trick, even if you can't do it!

It is typical of Katharine Cornell's love of the theater and her regard for her contemporary artistes that, unlike other managements that have made every effort to circumvent the plans of rival producers by gobbling up their prospective routes and beating them into profitable territory, she will arrange her own route for next winter with the express purpose of not conflicting with the tour of Eva Le Gallienne, who also plans a revival of "Romeo and Juliet" in her road repertory for fall.

The few cities where both actresses will appear are so booked that there will be an interval of from one to three months between the two Juliets.

It is important at this time to note that the first and only actor so far engaged for Miss Cornell's company next year, according to these late advices from the erudite Mr. Ray Henderson, is Flush, the spaniel, who will have his original role in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Flush, I believe, since his appearance in Washington with Miss Cornell during her record engagement at the Belasco, has become the father of a family of understudies. It seems to me, too, that he has received an honorary doctorate of something or other from one of our institutions of higher learning in recognition of his high attainment and perfect deportment in the theater. "The Barretts," literally, was Flushed with success.

Have you observed with what zeal the Loew interests are going in for admonitory titles on their screens? Currently at the Palace, Jean Harlow and Clark Gable are salvaging what started out to be a very rowdy love in "Hold Your Man," and next week, at Loew's Fox, Jimmy Dunn and Sally Eilers will see what they can do about acceding to the urgent behest of "Hold Me Tight." All of which may be said to serve only to perpetuate the popular tradition of such fictional tenacities as "Hold 'em, Yale!" "Hold 'er, Newt!" and "Holed Out in One!"

Reverting momentarily to Constance Bennett and "Her Bed of Roses," this subject will mark the seventh time Joel McCrea has appeared opposite the eldest of Richard Bennett's talented daughters. Strangely enough, however, they have never been thought of, or alluded to, as a "team" or permanent screen partnership. Not that it especially matters.

Charles Laughton, the English actor whose fame in America rests principally upon his fine screen performances with Tallulah Bankhead in "Devil and the Deep," in "Payment Deferred" and as Nero in Cecil B. DeMille's "Sign of the Cross," arrived in New York last Sunday from a spring and early summer devoted to stage and screen work in London. He is en route to Hollywood to assume a principal role opposite Dorothea Wieck, star of "Maedchen in Uniform," in her first production in America, Paramount's "White Woman."

Another popular Britisher who has just finished an engagement on the London stage sails from England today, also to assume a prominent role with Fraulein Wieck in "White Woman." That would be Herbert Marshall, foremost of the naturalistic actors.

Final preparations are being perfected for the performance by the Pierce Hall Players next Wednesday and Thursday evenings, July 12 and 13, of the new three-act comedy, "Little White Mice," by Edward de Selding Melcher, dramatic editor of our afternoon contemporary.

Miss Ina Hawes is technical director of the production and has been assisted in its preparation by Mary Foley Benson, George Farrington, former director of the Little Theater in Charlotte, N. C.; Edmund Evans, chairman of the Players; Charlotte Tilley, Richard Harr and Marvin Downey.

Mr. Melcher, as was announced here weeks ago, is assuming the leading role in his own play, his lines expounding the philosophy of the piece and his character of Smith affording the comedy both its motif and its motivation.

Eddie has viewed the footlights from behind more than once before, so don't pin your hopes upon a too flagrant amateurishness!

An event of more than ordinary interest is scheduled for Glen Echo Park's Crystal Pool tomorrow night at 7 o'clock sharp, when the first novice swimming meet sponsored by the American Legion, Department of the District of Columbia, for the Junior Baseball Players will be held.

Low-board diving and 60-yard free-style swimming races will be the feature events, with appropriate medal awards for the winners. It is the plan to make this meet an annual fixture at the pool, which, by the way, is inspiring further enthusiasm this month by affording beginners a free course of swimming instruction.

Mr. Anderson, author of the year's Pulitzer Prize winner, "Both Your Houses," will begin work immediately on an adaptation of "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," from Francis Yeats Brown's novel.

Miss Fuller, whisked from Broadway to Hollywood to appear opposite Gary Cooper, in "One Sunday Afternoon," will appear next in the screen version of "Chrysalis," with Fredric March and Miriam Hopkins.

If it is celebrities in the news that you are after, the gelatinized events now occupying the local silver-sheets will supply them in abundant measure. Maybe what we mean is superabundant measure.

At any rate, these are to be glimpsed in activities of varying degrees of interest and importance:

Auguste and Jean Piccard, the Belgian twins who have gone ga-ga over the stratosphere.

His Holiness Pope Pius XI, reviving the impressive ceremonials of "Corpus Domini."

Jouett Shouse, ditto.

F. Scott McBride, anything else but!

Otto H. Kahn, giving the banking and finance committee of the Senate a lesson in banking and finance.

Secretary of Commerce Roper, guessing that industry has started up the hill.

Jimmy Mattern in Moscow, probably the last time he ever was photographed.

Well, a dash of good Bourbon is not so bad once in a while!

And how, pray, do you expect to stare at fireworks all evening and NOT have green spots before your eyes?

Catapulted to Local Screen

The young woman peeping over the chicken feathers, as, of course, you know, is Miss Constance Bennett, one of the most luminous of the cinema's stars, whose new picture, "Bed of Roses," is being rushed to the screen at RKO-Keith's tomorrow—one day ahead of schedule—so excellent a magic lantern show does the management deem it.

"No Garden—No Relief!"

Welfare Agencies Adopting Slogan in Distribution of Federal Funds to Unemployed and Requiring Planting by Jobless Families Where Possible.

(Associated Press.)

"No garden, no relief," is a slogan that has begun to spread through the relief agencies distributing Federal funds to unemployed.

A statement yesterday by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal emergency relief administrator, said he expected the garden program to result in sizable contributions to relief foods needs this summer and next winter. Wherever possible families are being urged to plant gardens.

The garden programs, Hopkins said, are being followed up by food-preservation schedules. They are being carried out by cooperation between local relief agencies and the agricultural and home demonstration services.

At least one State has adopted the "no garden, no relief" slogan, he said.

"The benefits of this immense amount of subsistence gardening are manifold," said Hopkins. "Besides the actual reduction in the cost of caring for these gardening families that have made themselves at least partly self-sustaining, there are health benefits.

"The work of gardening is healthful and the fruits of their labor give them a better balanced diet. That cuts out a lot of medical bills. This aspect is especially important in areas where pellagra has required the giving of yeast and cod liver oil.

"Besides the gardens raised by persons on relief rolls, many families that might otherwise be dependent are getting a large part of their emergency living out of the soil. Communities have provided for acreages divided into individual plots, industries have plowed up idle land around factories and helped their part-time or laid-off employes with seeds and instruction. The whole movement is resulting in real benefits on a large scale."

Relief agencies in many cities have arranged for large plots in the suburbs.

Officer Shoots Man in Leg.

James George, 25, colored, of Reidsville, N. C., was shot in the left leg yesterday morning by Southern Railway Policeman Rose, after he is alleged to have attacked the officer when arrested for trespassing.

Traveling

Australian Rotarian Here En Route Home After 17,000-Mile Trip.

Washington Rotarians, Rotarians everywhere, may point with pride to the record of the Hon. A. J. Pittard.

Mr. Pittard is a Rotary governor in the province of Victoria, Australia. He represents the Ballarat district, near Melbourne, in Victoria's legislative council, which corresponds to an American state senate.

Last February, while the Australian summer was in full heat, he journeyed to England, and visited his ancestral home in Devonshire. Last week after traveling some 17,000 miles Mr. Pittard reached his destination, Boston, and achieved his purpose of attending Rotary's international convention. Mr. Pittard passed last night in the Willard Hotel after a day of sightseeing in the Nation's Capital.

Some time in August, one of the coldest months in the Australian year, Mr. Pittard expects to be home still about 13,000 miles away, where he may tell other Rotarians of "Americans, fine and generous."

Postal Records To Be Released By Miss Sayre

Fairfax Postmaster, Back From Visit, to Close Affairs Today.

The postal affairs of Miss Lurema Sayre, schoolmate of Mrs. Herbert Hoover, and until Friday postmaster at Fairfax, Va., are expected to be concluded today, when she is scheduled to meet postoffice inspectors in Fairfax.

An intimate friend of Miss Sayre, Miss Gladys Winfield, yesterday notified Postoffice Inspector Hugh E. Alford that Miss Sayre would meet him at 10 a. m. today at the Fairfax postoffice.

"I have been informed that Miss Sayre was visiting friends since Monday," Mr. Alford said, "and she is to meet me and turn over to the postoffice the books which she had taken home with her on Saturday."

It was the absence of these books, which are the keys of the postoffice accounts, which started postoffice inspectors on a close scrutiny of Miss Sayre's accounts.

"I have been told that Miss Sayre took these books home to complete her quarterly account," said Mr. Alford.

Miss Sayre, who was a frequent visitor at the White House during the Hoover administration, did not appear at the Fairfax Postoffice on Monday, when she was scheduled to transfer formally the affairs of the office to L. M. Coyner, who was appointed postmaster on Friday by First Assistant Postmaster General Joseph C. O'Mahoney.

"The audit of Miss Sayre's accounts," Mr. Alford said, "will continue as a routine matter, which is always done when a new postmaster is appointed." Miss Sayre communicated with Miss Winfield, according to Mr. Alford, when she read a story in The Post which said the Postoffice inspectors were anxious to get in touch with her.

Rescuers Hunting For 3 Fishermen

Ocean View Trio Believed Lost in Severe Storm; Traffic Paralyzed.

Norfolk, Va., July 4 (A.P.).—Under cloudless skies, search was being continued today for three men reported lost off Ocean View yesterday afternoon when their fishing boat was capsized a mile off shore by the sudden northeast gale that lashed this section of the coast, paralyzed traffic in the city for several hours and sent giant waves crashing over the boardwalks at Ocean View and Virginia Beach.

Unusually cool weather followed the storm, an official temperature of 61 degrees, the lowest for July 4 in 41 years, being recorded at 6 p. m. this morning.

Coast Guard vessels that braved the raging seas and driving rain yesterday afternoon to comb the area where watchers ashore had seen the three ill-fated fishermen clinging to fish pound poles a mile off shore resumed their search today, while along shore volunteer searchers were patrolling the beach for any bodies that might have been washed ashore.

Barrymores Take Off For Cruise on Yacht

San Francisco, July 4 (A.P.).—John Barrymore and his wife, formerly Dolores Costello, sailed for Seattle today aboard the S. S. Ruth Alexander with their two children, Dolores, 3, and John, jr., 1.

Pickford Reno Report Denied by McCarran

Reno, Nev., July 4 (A.P.).—United States Senator P. A. McCarran arrived here by airplane from the East today and promptly denied reports his visit was in connection with possible divorce proceedings by Mary Pickford, who has announced her separation from Douglas Fairbanks.

Senator McCarran was Miss Pickford's attorney when she was divorced at Minden in 1920 from Owen Moore.

Big Rum Raid

Invading the confines of the Bowie race track property, Prince Georges County police yesterday dynamited a 1,200-gallon whisky still. No arrests were made.

Besides the distillery the officers found 20,000 gallons of mash ready for use. One-half gallon of whisky, a 25-horsepower boiler, 300-gallon doubler, and other equipment was also confiscated. The raid was made by Sergt. A. W. Hepburn, Oscar Beall, R. A. Naylor and E. A. Turner.

Schools' Head To Meet Board In Alexandria

T. C. Williams, Successor to Bowton, to Attend Session Tonight.

T. C. Williams, new superintendent of the Alexandria public schools, tonight will attend the first meeting of the school board since he took over his new duties. He comes to this city from Chester, Va., where he has been superintendent of schools for several years. He succeeds R. C. Bowton, who had held the position for ten years.

In the past few years a number of mass meetings of school patrons and citizens were held in protest over school conditions, and considerable dissatisfaction over the methods employed by Mr. Bowton in handling school matters had been expressed. As a result strong opposition to his reelection by the school board developed when his term expired on June 30.

Mr. Williams was chosen on April 12 from a long list of applicants, and arrived in Alexandria on July 1.

Five teachers are to be chosen tonight to fill vacancies, the majority of the former teachers renewing their contracts. A definite date for reopening the schools will also be decided upon.

Telephone Service Cut Off.

Telephone service along the Glebe road in the vicinity of Ballston and Livingstone Heights was cut off for a short period yesterday as a result of the burning of an underground cable crossing the Old Dominion Railway tracks at Lacey Station. The service was soon restored.

81st Division Parley Elects 1934 Officers

Carolinian Will Command Veterans; Capital Man Renamed Adjutant.

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 4 (A.P.).—Approximately 1,000 delegates to the Eighty-first Division's annual convention here today elected Col. J. M. Little, of Winston-Salem, national commander, chose Birmingham over twenty other cities for the next meeting place and raised annual dues from fifty cents to one dollar.

The convention will end tomorrow.

Capt. W. J. Cofdes, of Braintree, Mass., was elected senior vice commander and James E. Cahall, of Washington, D. C., was reelected national adjutant. Mr. Cahall will select his headquarters later and the location probably will be in the South.

H. K. Grantham, of Martin, Tenn., was elected first vice commander; H. S. Seargent, of Tuscumbia, Ala., second vice commander; E. A. Keoster, of Jacksonville, Fla., third vice commander, and E. S. Grambell, of Atlanta, fourth vice commander.

Col. Little succeeds Maj. Gen. Charles J. Bailey, of Jamestown, N. Y., who was given the honorary office of national commander-in-chief of the association for life.

The new commander was elected overwhelmingly over Henry I. Stevens, of Warsaw, past national commander of the American Legion, and R. M. Carter, of Winston-Salem.

NATS DEAL YANKS 6-5, 3-2 DEFEATS BEFORE 77,365;

13 AMERICANS QUALIFY BEHIND NOLAN'S RECORD 67

Smith Trails Medalist by 4 Strokes

By Frank H. King

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 4 (A.P.).—Thirteen Americans, including the defending champion, Stocky Gene Sarazen, and one amateur, George T. Dunlap, jr., of New York, celebrated a sizzling Fourth of July in Scotland today by qualifying for the British open golf championship.

But the fireworks for the occasion were touched off by a smiling Dublin Irishman, Pat Nolan, who came steaming in over the old course to shoot the final 18 holes of the 36 hole qualifying trials in just 67 strokes, shattering all the centuries of St. Andrews records and giving him the medal with a total of 71-67-138.

Cheers for the feat of the Irish professional echoed over the town clear to the old Cathedral where monuments to famous golfers stand. The 68's of Bob Jones and George Duncan in former years were eclipsed, and even though the championship itself may cross the seas to America again for the tenth straight year, the hoary Scots of St. Andrews feel that British golf at least can lift its head again.

Horton Smith Is Close.

Hard on the trail of Nolan, though distanced by four strokes in the first clash that will mean nothing when the 72 holes of championship play proper start tomorrow, came Horton Smith, Chicago professional, in second place with 71—71—142, but leading the American contingent.

Billy Burke, who landed the last place on the American Ryder Cup team after a storm of protest at his original exclusion, was lodged in the third bracket with Syd Fairweather and E. W. K. Kenyon, British professionals, all grouped with 146s, Burke's by reason of a 72 and a 74. Behind him were scattered the rest of the field all the way down to the 158-stroke limit that left 117 players in the title hunt—18 holes tomorrow, another 18 Thursday, and a final 36 Friday.

Misfortune visited only two Americans in the field that started yesterday, Joe Ezar, the wild Texan from Waco, landing outside the qualifying rail with 81—77—158, while Robert Sweeny, an American student living abroad, finished far over the line with 86—78—164.

Ryder Cup Team Qualifies.

Every member of the Ryder Cup team that lost to the British professionals by a point at Hoylake qualified, Sarazen and Olin Dutra shooting identical rounds of 73—75 for 151, and Leo Diegel put two 75s together for 150.

Dunlap, whose 71 yesterday equaled the best of the day, faded off today with a 79, but his 150 kept pace with Diegel. C. Ross Somerville, Canadian, who holds the United States amateur title, carded 79—75 for 154 to match the total Johnny Farrell achieved with a pair of 77s. Paul Runyan came in with 77—76 for 153, while Denny Shute and Craig Wood just made the grade with 156 each. Wood made a splendid comeback to get his place with

Giants Lose Twice to Braves

National League Leaders Humbled by 3 to 0 and 8 to 5.

BOSTON, July 4 (A.P.).—The Boston Braves twice scalped the league-leading New York Giants today, 3 to 0, and 8 to 5, in a double-header featured by the hitting of Wally Berger and the pitching of Ben Cantwell.

The defeats cost the Giants a full game lead in the league race as the St. Louis Cardinals broke even in two games with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Eleventh for Cantwell.

Helen Jacobs in Victory; Vines Plays Cochet Today

WIMBLEDON, England, July 4 (A.P.).—An all-America final in the women's singles, featuring two rivals of many years from Berkeley, Calif., Helen Jacobs and Helen Wills Moody, loomed tonight after a day in which the feminine contingent held the center of the stage in the annual Wimbledon tennis championship play.

With Mrs. Moody already qualified for the semifinals, Miss Jacobs won her way into the same round today by defeating the best of the continental players, Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, 6—1, 1—6, 6—2. Mrs. Moody heads the upper bracket, Miss Jacobs the lower.

Their rivals in the next round were decided as Fraulein H. Krahwinkel, tall, powerful German girl, eliminated Miss Margaret Scriven, of England, 6—4, 3—6, 6—1, while Miss Dorothy Round, another Eng-

Stewart and Cronin Are Heroes

Manager's Single Wins Opener; Hurler Gives 5 Hits in Second.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

They summoned the pitching and they summoned the hitting to shade the Yankees, 6 to 5, after 10 innings of toil in the opening battle, and they were blessed again in the second game with some five-hit twirling by Walter Stewart which subdued the Yankees by the equally close, but equally sufficient, score of 3 to 2.

And the result of their efforts of Independence Day is a 2½-game lead in the pennant race and in their battle to throw off the yoke of Yankee leadership in the American League. Tonight they returned to Washington to receive the plaudits of a joyous Capital.

Send Game Into Overtime.

They came from behind to win that first game with three runs in the eighth and ninth to send the battle into extra innings at a time when unbelieving New York was sensing the return of the Yankees to the league leadership on the strength of a 5-2 lead going into the eighth.

And it was proper and fitting that in the tenth it was the bat of Manager Joe Cronin that sealed the Nats' uphill struggle with a base hit that scored Heinie Manush from second base with the run that yanked the ball game from the clutches of the Yankees.

Before the day's proceedings were over, Babe Ruth, as is his custom, treated the record crowd to a home run in the ninth inning of the second game, his eighteenth of the season, a soaring clout that almost cleared the right field bleachers, but later events proved it to be for entertainment purposes only, as Walter Stewart nursed his slender one-run lead through the remainder of the ninth with the same careful and clever pitching that had earned him a no-hit, no-run, no-man-reach-first game for the first five innings when only 15 batters faced the skinny southpaw veteran.

Washington's chances of winning that first game were as dark as a moonless midnight for seven innings with Lefty Gomez, the Yankee southpaw, reaching out for a new and staggering strike-out record with nine to his credit after four innings had been played, but they fell upon Gomez in the late innings to rescue the ball game with a resounding echo of the batting attack that carried them

Rich Contest Decided by a Neck

Watch Him Gets Third; Head Play Never in the Running.

By Charles Dunkley.

CHICAGO, July 4 (A.P.).—A record breaking crowd of 35,000 spectators saw Indian Runner, surprise thoroughbred of the American turf, score a smashing victory over Gallant Sir in the $40,000 added Stars and Stripes Handicap at Arlington Park today. Indian Runner, bred in Illinois, and owned by D. A. Wood, of Benton, Ill., conquered Gallant Sir, considered the second best handicap star in America, by a neck. Watch Him, owned by Mrs. John D. Hertz, of Chicago, was third and Big Brand fourth, in a field of twelve starters.

The winner ran the mile and a furlong in 1:15 2-5, rewarding owner Wood with $10,440 for his victory. Indian Runner paid $11.36 to win; $4.70 to place and $4.04 to show. The place price on Gallant Sir, heavily played favorite, was $4.50 and $3.50 to show, while Watch Him paid $7.08 to show.

Equipoise Scratched.

When the barrier was sprung, Equipoise, handicap champion of America, was missing from the starters. The thoroughbred, owned by Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, was scratched by Trainer Tom Healey, because he was not satisfied with Equipoise's condition and ability to carry 136 pounds against the outstanding performers he was to meet. Owner Whitney did not want to take unnecessary chances of having Equipoise, a great public favorite, defeated.

Jockey George Woolf, who rode Gallant Sir, charged into the stewards' stand immediately after the race to lodge a claim of foul. He declared Jockey Tipton, astride the winner, interfered with Gallant Sir at the head of the stretch. The claim was disallowed, however, and Woolf suspended for 10 days for striking Tipton over the head with his whip. Woolf, fighting mad, attacked Tipton in the jockeys' room after the race.

Head Play Disappoints.

The biggest disappointment was Head Play, second in the Kentucky Derby and winner of the Preakness. The big red horse from Kentucky never was a factor in the race, finishing eleventh.

Indian Runner, the 4-year-old son of Dis Donc—Indian Maiden, first came into prominence this year by winning the Arlington Inaugural Handicap, defeating the best field to face the barrier in a race of that kind this season.

Dark Secret Victor.

Aqueduct Race Track, New York, July 4 (A.P.).—Dark Secret, 4-year-old son of Flying Ebony, owned by the Wheatley Stable of Mrs. H. C. Phipps and her brother, Ogden Mills, proved the equine hero of the holiday program offered here this afternoon. As so many of the horses trained by "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons have been doing on their "home grounds," Dark Secret ran to his best form to record a thrilling victory in the forty-fifth running of the Brooklyn Handicap of a mile and a furlong, with the popular Hank Mills guiding the colt home for his second triumph in the saddle during the afternoon.

Lee Rosenberg's Kerry Patch, which has a habit of making trouble when least expected, was beaten a scant neck for the $3,380 winner's share of the purse. James Butler's apprentice was third, three lengths behind and two spans before the favorite, War Glory, winner of the Dwyer.

Dark Secret, coupled with Blenheim, and held at 11 to 5, second choice in the betting, ran the nine furlongs in 151 1-5 over a dried-out track.

Outsider Latonia Winner.

Latonia, Ky., July 4 (A.P.).—The favorite and the rated second best tired badly in the stretch today, and Cousin Jo, of the stable of Charles Nuckols passed them to win the $2,500 added Independence Handicap, feature at Latonia.

Victory came by a neck over Wotan, the hope of M. Goldblatt, with Sam Furst's Bright Bubble, the favorite, pressing closely to show third. The win brought Nuckols $2,235, and Cousin Jo paid her backers $39.08 for $2.

The race, the thirty-first running, was at a mile and an eighth, with Cousin Jo making the distance in 1:51 1-5, three seconds above the record for the event.

For a time, the race was all Bright Bubble, with Wotan and Cousin Jo trailing. But approaching the mile, Bright Bubble began to falter and Wotan surged to the front, Cousin Jo still laying back. In the stretch, with Wotan and Bright Bubble both wearying, Jockey G. South on Cousin Jo opened up a drive that barely won.

Arlingtons Triumph.

ARLINGTON PARK, JULY 4.

DEAR AL:

Well, friend, C. V. Whitney refused to allow Equipoise to carry that 136 pounds and the Big Train was scratched. But not before thousands of race fans were drawn to this park to get a look at the star in action. But that's another of the many things the man who pays his way in racing has to grin and bear. There was oodles of good racing, however. The Bennings' nags had a bad day of it, doing a little of everything but little money running. But just string along, as my old friend Harry Stringer used to say.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—BUSY SPAIN gets an opportunity to jump away from the rail position tomorrow and may graduate from the maiden ranks. This one has had some education and works well. COOLEY and LEGAL GAMBLE may make trouble, if any materializes.

SECOND RACE—TIMOROUS is asked to tote only 100 pounds in this sprint and is dangerous at the shift in weights. LERACK and ROYAL TREASURE are fit and ready to battle it out if the top one makes too many mistakes.

THIRD RACE—LAMP BLACK won a heat here and I understand the works will be shot tomorrow. Gets in with only a steadying impost. SONG HIT has speedy race as recommendation and should be second. I'm giving the show to LOUISE DEAR.

FOURTH RACE—ONDOTT'S last was a beaut and I can't see the stable passing up an opportunity of this kind. THREAT is what his name implies. DAMASCENE just can't be as terrible as that last effort.

FIFTH RACE—These fillies offer a problem. At least a half-dozen have good chances SPOILT BEAUTY gets the edge in my book. EARLY LIGHT and MISS PATIENCE for the rest.

SIXTH RACE—KNIGHT'S GAL came through with a smashing race and that one repeated here will bring another victory. BOILERMAKER set a fast pace last out, but weakened. Might improve off that race and give the top one a real battle. POMPOLEON wants mud, but could take third on a fast course.

SEVENTH RACE—STREET SINGER is my good thing for tomorrow. Ask no questions. ISLAM and MARCH KING seem to hold the others safe.

EIGHTH RACE—HELEN BAB, one that I tried to put over the other day, will like this distance and field. She has ENGLEWOOD to beat. TRYANDAGAIN is the probable show horse.

Fort Myer Poloists Score in Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore Md., July 4.—A four goal handicap looked very comfortable to the Maryland Polo Club riders, when they took the field against the Sixteenth Field Artillery horsemen, of Fort Myer, Va., this noon at Stevenson Field. But the visitors evidently thought their touch of generosity should stop there, as the Fort Myer squad proceeded to romp off with a 10 to 4 victory.

Umpire's Son Suicide

Horse Cave, Ky., July 4 (A.P.),—Tom Moran, 33, former Centre College football player and son of "Uncle Charley" Moran, major league umpire, shot himself with a shotgun at the Moran home here today. His condition was critical tonight. A tobacco buyer, he has been in ill health for two years, and relatives said he several times threatened to end his life.

Former Chisox Pilot Extends Police Force

Chicago, July 4 (A.P.).—James Callahan, manager of the 1913-14 Chicago White Sox baseball team, was taken to a hospital for treatment and observation today after he had staged a lively battle with a police squad. The officers found it necessary to use tear gas to subdue the 60-year-old former ball player.

Neighbors called the police after Callahan had broken a number of windows, and had destroyed part of the furnishings in his 14-room home. He barricaded himself in an upstairs room and threatened to shoot the officers. However, two tear gas bombs quelled him and he was removed to Mercy Hospital.

D. C. Paddlers Captures Two Met Titles

Shorb-Long Win Senior and Junior Tandem Events in New York.

NEW YORK, July 4.—George Shorb and John Long of the Potomac Boat Club of Washington, D. C., captured two titles in the seventh annual Metropolitan Canoeing championships on Central Park Lake here today. The Potomac entries first paddled off with the tandem single blade senior title and a few hours later won the tandem double blade race in the junior division.

D. C. Pair Beats Good Field.

In the double-blade junior event, the Washington pair bested a field headed by Al Gottlieb and Ed Guthorne, of the Takahan Canoe Club of New York City. The clocking of the D. C. paddlers in this instance was one-fifth of a second slower than they turned in, winning the senior contest over the same course of 230 meters.

Long later tested his blades in the intermediate double-blade race and succeeded in placing third. George Biss, of the Knickerbocker Canoe Club of New York City, won the contest in 1:01 3-5.

The Potomac Boat Club placed third in the team point scoring with 11 points. The Knickerbocker Canoe Club broke the five-year reign of the Pendleton Canoe Club when they took first place and the Sir Thomas Lipton trophy with 33 points. The Pendletons captured second place with 25.

BILL AGEE WINS A. A. U. 10-MILE RUN FOR FIFTH STRAIGHT TIME

Greiner First District Man to Finish

Cece, Newark, Beaten by 100 Yards; Porter in Third Position.

Lynch, Capital Veteran, Is Forced Out; Irish-Americans Win.

By Lewis F. Achison.

GALLOPING placidly along in the same stride that has carried him to victory in scores of marathons, Bill Agee, lean-limbed Baltimore veteran, carrying the colors of the Stonewall Democratic Club, added the District A. A. U. 10-mile run to his long list of achievements yesterday. Agee led his nearest competitor, Larry Gece, of the Irish-American A. C., Newark, N. J., by nearly 100 yards, while Mel Porter, Gece's teammate, finished 50 yards behind to take third place. It was Agee's fifth consecutive victory.

Bill Greiner, of the newly organized Washington Track and Field Club, was the first District man to finish, thereby winning the District A. A. U. championship. He was eighth in the field of 48 runners, 46 of whom finished the grind.

Race Close at Five Miles.

Agee, Gece and Porter waged a stirring and grueling duel for the lead from the start until the 5-mile point hove in view. At this juncture his smooth, even pace gradually began to leave his rivals behind.

As the eventual winner turned into the home stretch amid sidewalks lined with applauding spectators, he boasted a lead of yards, and a final sprint into the tape increased this margin to at least 100-yards.

Washington's veteran and popular distance runner, Mike Lynch, celebrated his fifty-second birthday by running the first 6 miles of the course. At this point he dropped out on the advice of Dr. Aloysius B. Connolly, official physician of the race. But he gave many of the young upstarts endeavoring to get a foothold in the profession a lesson in marathon running before consenting to pull up.

Jerry Looney and Haskell Clark, both Washington Track nad Field representatives, were second and third on the District list. They were rewarded with handsome A. A. U. championship medals.

Win Playground Medals.

A new local club started yesterday when the colors of the Merrick A. C., of Northeast, were carried by two youthful representatives, Jack Assetta and Edward J. Peruzzi. Both completed the grind to win playground medals.

The Irish-American A. C. won the team trophy with a score of 10 points, nosing out the Stonewall Democratic Club by a single point. The race for the trophy was the occasion for a brilliant duel between Jimmy Delesio, of the Newark team, and Mike Kaitis, of Baltimore. For 9½ miles miles they battled neck and neck, only to have Delesio forge ahead in the last few yards.

Park police, Metropolitan police and Red Cross rendered valuable assistance to the athletes. Officials of the Playground Department, who handled the race proper, and of the Takoma Park Citizens Asociation, cosponsor of the affair, pronounced it one of the most successful ever staged.

Landers Battles Burl Tonight at Laurel

Dougan-Von Reeden and Manley-Raymond in Other 8-Rounders.

BLOND BILLY LANDERS and Eddie Burl, who has no fancy nickname but can throw fists just as hard despite this handicap, will resume their ring rivalry tonight in the feature eight-round bout on Promoter Charley Cornell's weekly card. The pair fight at Twin City Arena, Laurel.

Two eight rounders, featuring Leroy Dougan vs. Charlie von Reeden, and Roy Manley vs. Phil Raymond; a six-rounder with Maxie Koshover pitted against Glenn Morgan, and a four which brings Sailor Leonard up against the tough dukes of Johnny Larkin, complete the bill.

Landers and Burl are itching to get at one another to settle once and for all the question of which is the better man. Last May they fought a bristling ten-round draw that saw them still wading into one another at the final bell.

Rivals Have Their Backers.

Both have their followers among local boxing fans, and if they put up the same rugged fronts they have exhibited before it will be a real battle.

No less interesting will be the tiff between Leroy Dougan and Charley von Reeden. Both are hankering for a shot at Petey Sarron, and there is no better way of doing it than by winning tonight. Von Reeden held the Syrian battler to a draw in Florida, and all he wants is another chance at Sarron to prove his superiority.

But it is hard to find a dull-looking bout on the card. Roy Manley and Phil Raymond supply the action in the third eight and the talk around the gym is that it will be a bruiser. Manley is a slight favorite, but the odds are so small as to be hardly noticeable. All Raymond needs is one opportunity to throw his left to win by a kayo. Both are southpaws.

Koshover Facing Test.

Maxie Koshover, the little Cleveland boy who scored a hit with the fans and a decisive victory over Bobby Burns last week, is in for a real fight with Glenn Morgan, a hard-hitting lad from Chris Dundee's Norfolk establishment. But the fight that may steal the show is the opening preliminary.

Sailor Leonard hails from the Mohawk Club over Southeast way, and his opponent, Johnny Larkin, comes from the opposite side of the city, bearing the colors of the Georgetown A. C. Although the two clubs no longer meet in football and other sports, the old rivalry between its members remains just as keen.

Buses will leave the Annapolis Hotel for the arena at 7:30 o'clock, transporting fans both ways for 50 cents.

Golfers Make Divots Fly In Eleven Holiday Events

By Dave Herman.

DIVOTS were flying in all directions yesterday on eleven different fronts as hundreds of golfers, champions and dubs alike, attacked par and partners in a medley of events in celebration of Independence Day.

An exhibition match, tombstone, flag, match play against par and handicap tournaments, driving, pitching, approaching and putting contests—they were some of the events on the attractive holiday menu.

Goodwin Breaks Tradition.

Here's a medalist who won a championship. It's Frank M. Goodwin, jr., young college student, who defeated Jack (All Weather) McCarron by 3 and 1 in the finals of the miniature tournament at Congressional. Goodwin whipped B. A. Clerk in his semifinal match, 2 and 1, while McCarron won his by default.

Second flight honors went to C. A. Girous, who beat F. L. Yates, 1 up.

In the holiday driving contest James A. Maloney, with clouts of 205, 215 and 220, won first prize, with Andy Walker, who averaged 200 yards, second. Dr. J. L. Barnhard took the pitching-putting event after being tied at eight shots for three balls with Mrs. H. A. Knox, Billy Shea, G. L. Moorman, J. F. Meegan and W. F. Abell. In the play-off Barnhard got down in two shots from 40 yards.

Houghton-Fitzgerald Win.

Al Houghton and his amateur partner, Maury Fitzgerald, won from Walter (Red) Cunningham, of Burning Tree, and A. B. Thorn, driving range instructor, by 2 up in a special exhibition match at Kenwood. Houghton and Fitzgerald were 2 up at the turn, and 3 up and 3 to go when the opposition shot birdies on the sixteenth and seventeenth to win both holes. Houghton's par 4 settled the issue on the eighteenth. Cunningham almost "aced" the sixteenth, his being 12 inches from the pin. Houghton had a 73; Fitzgerald a 77; Cunningham, a 76, and Thorn, a 74.

Dr. Louis L. Williams, with 88—22—66, finished 2 feet from the nineteenth pin to capture top honors in the flag tournament at Argyle. E. S. Cassidy, 84—14—70, was second, being 400 feet down the nineteenth fairway. A. E. Willmeet, 80—10, was 350 yards down the nineteenth, to bag third prize, while William P. Dieste, cross-handed expert, planted his flag 250 yards down the nineteenth, for fourth prize. Incidentally, DiEste's 77 was low for the day. His 6 handicap gave him a 71 net.

Golf Tie at Columbia

W. J. Dilliard and Edward Walsh, jr., posted a net of 60 to tie with Frank Perley and his brother, Allen, for the plum in the best-ball two-ball tournament with half handicap at Columbia Country Club. J. B. Morrison and D. W. Daisley were second with 62, while Dr. F. E. Ganez and Dr. W. J. McNulty tied with E. H. McLachlen and D. F. Hewett for third honors, with a 63 for each combination.

W. J. Dilliard's 77-12—65 gave him a tie for first prize with McLachlen in the handicap tournament. A. Perley was next with 67, while E. B. Olds finished with 68, and L. S. Jullien, 69, to qualify as other prize winners.

Dr. G. R. Huffman, with a 14 handicap, ended his jaunt 18 inches from the nineteenth hole to capture the first prize in the tombstone competition at Washington Golf and Country Club. Second went to T. M. Mather, 12 handicap, who was 18 yards from the nineteenth cup; third to J. M. Barker, 18 handicap, who was 60 yards from the nineteenth cup, and fourth to John F. Meyers, 18 handicap, who finished 65 yards from the same hole.

Harris Woodmont Victor.

In the battle for the Mark Goldnamer Trophy, Howard Nordlinger, club champion, who turned in a scintillating 38—35—73, had an 8 handicap for a 65 net to carry off the title. Nordlinger also added to his laurels by winning the sweepstakes prize. Dr. Dewey Gottlieb, with 81—15—66, was second and W. R. Flepian, 90—22—68, third.

In the nine-hole mixed foursome event Miss Vera Reifkin and Frank Luchs emerged first with 51—14—37; Miss Bertha Israel and Dr. Gottlieb second, with 49—7—42, and Mr. and Mrs. William Illch third, with 55—12—43.

Finishing on the edge of the nineteenth cup, Leonard Thrasher triumphed in the tombstone event at Army and Navy. Robert Bruce, winding up on the edge of the nineteenth green, was second, and Commander M. C. Robertson, with a drive off the nineteenth tee, was third.

Danny Burton, Army and Navy pro, will team with Maj. R. K. Sutherland, club champion, in an exhibition match at 2:30 Sunday against Gene Larkin and Louis (Bunny) Mackall, of Chevy Chase.

Hamilton Wins at Chevy Chase.

George E. Hamilton, with a 14 handicap, finished 3 up on the par to win the Hungarian Cup, donated by Laszlo Szechenyi, former Hungarian Minister, at Chevy Chase yesterday in the match play against par tournament.

In the seniors' special medal play full handicap tournament, Eakin set the pace with his 80—6—74. Admiral Charles B. McVay, jr., was second with 87—7—80, and E. K. Campbell third with 101—16—85.

In the flag tournament for men at Indian Spring, George Gist, with a 79 total, finished in the nineteenth cup for first prize. A. Pratt, with 98, was 3 feet from the nineteenth cup to place second. J. A. Pratt, with 83, was third, being 200 yards from the nineteenth hole; R. V. Brownell, jr., with 85, finished in the eighteenth cup, and H. N. Graves, with 92, also in the eighteenth cup, to win prizes.

Miss Margaret Barnard, planting her flag in the seventeenth cup, won top honors among the women. Mrs. J. V. Brownell, 4 inches from the seventeenth hole, was second; Miss Grace Trageser, 18 inches away, third, and Mrs. J. F. Cross, finishing in the trap on the seventeenth, fourth.

George McGehee, a 7-handicap golfer, shot fourteen pars to annex the handicap tournament with most pars at Manor. Four tied for second with thirteen pars each. They were H. K. Beck, 13 handicap; M. J. Irvine, 10 handicap; H. G. Wood, 5 handicap, and Harry Grier, 11 handicap.

J. T. McCarthy, averaging 250 yards in three drives, won the driving contest. George F. Miller tied for second with T. O. Nichols, each totaling 700 yards on three clouts down the fairway.

Mrs. Stone Victorious.

The nine-hole flag tournament went to Mrs. H. B. Stone, who finished 2 feet from the tenth cup. Mrs. J. P. Saffell was second, being 50 yards down No. 10 fairway, and Mrs. H. J. Simons, third, being on No. 9 green.

The putting contest was won by Mrs. H. D. Hird, who had 38 putts. Mrs. L. G. Pray was second with 39 and Mrs. Mack Myers, third with 40.

Beaver Dam put on a varied program and it remained for C. E. Purdy to bag the President's Cup, feature event of the day. It is an event in honor of E. S. Brashears. Purdy shot 87—20—67.

Results in the other flights:

Second flight—F. D. Hessler, 82—14—68; L. W. Strassburger, 89—18—71; A. V. Smith, 90—19—71, and Carl Witcher, 88—17—71.

Third flight—R. E. Kelly, 92—23—69; W. E. Bell, 91—21—70; Dr. J. Freidman, 92—22—70, and J. Ford, 90—20—70.

Frank M. Baggett, jr., laced out a screaming 265-yarder to win the men's driving contest at Beaver Dam. Martin F. McCarthy, with 250 yards, was second.

E. G. Morris captured the approach contest, his shot finishing 6 inches from the cup from 150 yards. L. C. Hogg was second, being 5 feet from the pin. Frank Baggett also took the putting contest, canning his putt from 20 feet from a play-off with 25. W. T. Henderson beat Russell Brown out for second honors.

Among the women Mrs. L. Strassburger won the driving event with a 160-yarder, and Mrs. C. Purdy was second with a 150-yarder. Mrs. Ora Emge, club champion, fired her approach shot from 75 yards to within 6 feet of the pin for first prize in the approaching contest. Mrs. Purdy was second, finishing 12 feet away. The putting was won by Mrs. D. W. Smith.

DERWOOD COPS PAIR.

Derwood took both ends of its twin-bill with the Swannee A. C. yesterday, winning by scores of 12-5 and 10-5. A large crowd turned out for the contests.

Nolan's 67 Sets British Open Record

Joe Kirkwood, Australian trick-shot star, who campaigns seriously now from New York, was only a stroke back of Burke, 73—74—147, locked with Archie Compston, giant British professional, who had similar rounds, and a stroke ahead of the veteran George Duncan and George Gadd, all British hopes. Henry Cotton, considered the best of the British pros, qualified comfortably with 74—77—151. Duncan had two 74s, for 148, Gadd a 78 and 70.

There was nothing in today's round that even remotely approached the brilliance of Nolan's great score that wiped out the standard Jones set here in 1927. Nolan's total of 138 could not match the two rounds the Georgian shot in the qualifying rounds at Sunningdale in 1926, when he put a 68 and 66 together for 134.

He shot three birdies going out and three more coming back. A 5 on the "road" hole seventeenth cost him a stroke to par and a 66.

Mitchell Takes Finals From Mangan

Retains District Title by 6—3, 3—6, 6—4, 6—2; Win Over Rival.

THE magic that lies in Dooly Mitchell's tennis racket again casts its spell over Tom Mangan yesterday morning at Army and Navy Country Club's courts in the finals of the District of Columbia tournament, and propelled the ranking local star to his second important championship of the season.

Pounding the ball over the net with the same brilliance that marked his play in this tournament and other titular matches, Mitchell conquered the veteran finalist by scores of 6—3, 3—6, 6—4, 6—2.

Before Mangan left the scent of battle late yesterday evening he had reason to feel consoled. True he had bowed to Mitchell for the second time in two months, In the afternoon, however, Mangan demonstrated his versatility as a doubles player by teaming with Axel Gravem to turn back the young pair of Frank Shore and Anthony Latona, 6—3, 5—7, 2—6, 8—6, 6—2, in a grueling championship match.

Thus Mitchell, Mangan and Gravem continued to dominate the District tennis ranks for the current season. Mitchell won the City of Washington championship, and the latter two captured the doubles crown.

Mitchell Held Advantage.

Rain forced Mitchell and Mangan to quit play in their finals Sunday afternoon. Mitchell was out in front. He had won the first set, 6—3, and had a 2—1 lead in the second set.

When play was resumed yesterday morning Mitchell appeared slow in warming up. Mangan, in the meantime, was making the most of his opportunities, firing the cannon-ball service effectively and flashing sound tennis to permit Mitchell to take but one more game of the second set, while he (Mangan) was winning five games and the set at 6—3.

Mitchell began to hit his old-time stride in the third set. He shot into the lead, unleashed his drop and chop shots with remarkable consistency and took the set, 6—4.

The third set saw Mitchell the master as Mangan, tiring, failed to keep pace with his younger foe's rock-steady playing. Mitchell took the fourth set, that went to eight games at 6—2.

About the same time Mitchell was smearing defeat over Mangan, Shore and Latona were brushing aside Gilbert Hunt and Jock McLean in the semifinals of the doubles. The scores were 6—3, 3—6, 6—4. Hunt and McLean were the kids who rudely beat the big favorites, Mitchell and Gwyn King Monday.

Shore and Latona Bow.

Arrayed against Mangan and Gravem in the finals, Shore and Latona fought valiantly, at one stage of the match coming within a game of victory.

After dropping the first set, Shore and Latona fought back, delivering their answer in the form of two smashing straight set triumphs, 7—5

Visitors Win 19th Game in a Row

Watt No Puzzle to Visiting Cops, Who Pound Out 11 Safeties.

BALTIMORE'S finest were too good for the local Bluecoats yesterday, and extracted a 4-to-1 victory from the latter at Griffith Stadium. A crowd of approximately 2,000 fans, including several groups of orphans, saw Maj. Brown's men humbled by the heavy-hitting visitors.

It was the Monumental City team's nineteenth consecutive victory, but the fact that it has yet to meet defeat was little balm for the injured feelings and damaged reputation of the locals. Washington made a gallant stand against the invaders, but the better team won, as better teams have a habit of doing.

Things wouldn't have been so bad, in fact Washington might have won the game, but for the presence of Eddie Schroll at second base in the Baltimore line-up. He was a quiet chap, but his big bat spoke an ominous message as it drove out two doubles for three runs. Leave Schroll out and it would have been close.

Watt Becomes Old Pal.

The visitors greeted Frank Watt like a 10 per cent raise in salary. They picked up eleven safeties during the fray, never failing to get at least one man on base every inning. On the other hand Baltimore's moundman, Mel Sherry, was decidedly hostile to the home team. It was a celebration; but he failed to catch the spirit of the thing, holding his opponents to six measly bingles.

Washington grabbed the lead in the second inning on Smith's hit scoring Campbell, who had singled previously. That one little flare-up was the closest it came to winning.

District stock boomed in the ninth inning, which Gill opened with a lusty double to center field. Hiser drew a free ticket but was pinched at second not long after when Campbell hit to the shortstop and beat the attempted double-play throw at first.

But hope subsided like a punctured tire when Smith ingloriously fanned and Hoffman, pinch-hitting for Rinker, followed suit.

Schroll's first double of the game scored Lyston for Baltimore's first run in the third inning. His second two-bagger brought home Zukas and Hammen with enough runs to win the decision. Both previously had singled.

The teams will meet in a second game at Baltimore the latter part of this month.

Cards and Pirates Share in Twin Bill

Bucs Win in Afternoon, 4-2 After Bowing, 5-1, in Morning Contest.

Pittsburgh, July 4 (A.P.).—Showing at Forbes Field for the first time in weeks, the Pittsburgh Pirates sent the local fans home happy by downing the St. Louis Cardinals, 4 to 2, in the afternoon encounter of today's holiday bill, after bowing to the Westerners, 5 to 1, in the morning game.

French outpitched Mooney in the southpaw battle of the afternoon. Mooney made way for Hornsby at the plate in the fifth inning, the Pirates being three runs out in front at the time. Johnson finished for the visitors. French yielded seven hits. Swetonic held the Cards to four hits in the seven frames he worked in the morning game but his mates blew up in the fourth and St. Louis registered four runs. Medwick's triple ignited the scoring fuse.

Browns, Tigers Share Double Bill

Campbell's Homer in 10th Gives St. Louis 6-5 Win; Detroit Cops First.

St. Louis, July 4 (A.P.).—The Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Browns split the holiday double-header today, Detroit slugging freely to win the first game, 7 to 4, and Campbell hitting a homer in the tenth to give the Browns a 6-to-5 victory.

The Tigers made fourteen hits in the first game, which was featured by Stone's hitting. He scored three runs and drove in three additional runs with two singles and a homer.

Hebert was knocked out in the second inning and Rowe in the fifth inning of the second game. Neither Hadley nor Sorrell, who replaced them, allowed a run until the tenth when Campbell hit for the circuit.

PHILADELPHIA, July 4 (A.P.).—The Red Sox exploded plenty Fourth of July fireworks at Shibe Park today, trimming the Athletics handily in both ends of the holiday bill.

Aided by the A's eight errors in the morning game, the Sox accounted for that one 14 to 4. In the afternoon encounter, the Boston Sluggers were busy on two Athletic hurlers, connecting for 15 hits and a 9 to 1 victory.

Radio Dial Flashes

By Robert D. Heinl.

AS Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian air minister, leads the squadron of sea planes on their flight by stages to the Chicago Exposition, he has the satisfaction of knowing that his ships are equipped with what is the very latest apparatus in airplane communication. Marconi, the inventor of radio, is said to have supervised the installation.

The first radio message which Gen. Balbo sent to Premier Mussolini as they passed the Italo-Swiss frontier read:

"At the moment of crossing the frontier of the motherland, whose pride and dignity have been reawakened by you, Il Duce, the members of the transatlantic squadron salute you and promise to fulfill to the utmost their duty as soldiers and Fascists."

Because of the radio installation the people in Rome knew about the accident at Amsterdam causing the loss of life of a mechanician before the people of Amsterdam, where it actually happened, did.

The Italian fliers are relying on radio compass bearings in case of adverse visibility and astronomical observations for fixes in good weather. Each plane is equipped with three antennae in addition to the radiocompass coil.

One antenna is rigged permanently between the wing tips and the tail surfaces; another antenna is within the wings and is for short wave. The third antenna is a trailing type.

Relatively new Marconi types of transmitters and receivers are to be used. A 500-watt wind-driven generator will furnish the power supply plus storage batteries. The transmitter is capable of telegraphic and telephonic transmission.

It is expected that the receiving range of the Italian planes will be about 2,000 miles over water under favorable conditions for short waves, and from 400 to 500 miles for long waves.

THOSE noisy macaws, the parrots at the Pan-American Union, having carefully been kept out of microphone range, everything is all set for the broadcast of Latin-American music from there tonight. The macaws a year or so ago created a sensation by interrupting a network broadcast. Listeners on the West Coast thought someone was being murdered.

On subsequent broadcasts precautions were taken against a repetition of the incident, but the macaws had the last laugh when at a recent concert they came back through having a piece dedicated to them called "The Macaw," in which they were gloriously imitated by Flutist Luis Guzman of the Marine Band. However, tonight the macaws will be out of the picture.

The Army Band, under the direction of Capt. William J. Stannard, will furnish the music, with the Chilean barytone, Senor Gutierrez, as soloist. NAA, the naval station in Washington, will broadcast the entire program, beginning at 9 p. m., excepting for an intermission at 10 p. m. for ten minutes for the time signal. NAA broadcasts on a frequency of 690 kilocycles (434.5 meters) and may be found on the dial between WMAL, Washington, and WLW, Cincinnati.

The portion of the program from 9 to 10 p. m. will be heard over WMAL, Pittsburgh and Schenectady will pick up the concert by short-wave for the Latin-American countries. By means of amplifiers the concert will be heard at the Century of Progress grounds in Chicago.

CHEERIO has his own solution of the war debts problem. He thinks defaulting nations might pay America in what they have the most of—armaments.

An additional symphony concert will be broadcast tonight direct from the Lewisohn Stadium in the series heard regularly Tuesdays and Saturdays. The feature will be "Brahms' Symphony No. 2, in D Major." Willem Van Hoogstraten will conduct.

Milton J. Cross is doing the concerts from the stadium and as usual is making a great success of it.

The broadcast tonight will begin at 8 o'clock over WMAL and excepting for a five minutes' interruption at 8:30 will continue until 9 o'clock. The program includes Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" and Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks."

The All-Star Dinner Club will make merry as usual over WJSV at 9:30 p. m.

During the program of Radio Joe tonight L. P. Steuart will announce the name of the winner of the automobile in the popularity contest. (WMAL, 6:30 o'clock).

Harry Salter, who puts the music in the Musical Grocery Store, says that the theme song for the London Economic Conference should be, "My Money Lies Over the Ocean."

TRIBUTE will be paid to the memory of Stephen Foster, one of America's best-loved composers, during a new series of broadcasts starting tonight at 7:30 o'clock over WRC networks. John Tasker Howard, an authority on American music and now engaged in writing the official biography of Foster, will act as narrator. The story of Foster's life and work will be developed through dramatic and musical treatment of episodes in his career.

"One Man's Family" will be back on WRC at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

The National Education Convention from Chicago will come in through WJSV at 3:30 o'clock and WMAL at 5 this afternoon. Some of the outstanding educators of the South will be heard on the latter program.

Bob Trout, one of the presidential announcers, will tell of his experiences in introducing Chief Executives on the air in the "Meet the Artist" broadcast on WJSV at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Carrie Jacobs Bond will be heard on Kate Smith's broadcast over WJSV at 7 p. m. when the latter sings the composer's most famous work, "At the End of a Perfect Day." Mrs. Bond will tell the story of the song.

Ferde Grofe, composer, will lead his band in "The Gold Diggers' Song" from "Gold Diggers of 1933" (WRC—8 p. m.).

Selections from "Chimes of Normandy" will be offered by Rhoda Arnold, soprano; Charles Carlile, tenor, and the Four Clubmen in "Curtain Calls" over WJSV at 7:15.

WATER supplies and their relation to health will be discussed in the National Farm and Home Hour. George W. Fuller, internationally known sanitary engineer, of New York, will point out the tremendous value of water supplies and will tell what happens when wells and city resevoirs become contaminated. (WMAL—12:30 p. m.).

Just before leaving for his vacation Ed Wynn was asked how he liked broadcasting. "I don't like it," he replied.

Gabrilowitsch Returns Improved.

New York, July 4 (A.P.).—Ossip Gabrilowitsch, director of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, returned to the United States today on the Italian liner Conte di Savoia after spending several weeks at Monte Caitini, Italy, where he took the water cure. He said that his health was much improved.

Mrs. Anna Slanner Honored at Picnic

Mrs. Anna Slanner, 233 Second street northwest, who has won the name "Angel of the Poor" in recognition of her long service in charity work here and in New York, was the guest of honor yesterday at the annual picnic of the Gospel Mission at Rock Creek Park.

More than 250 children and their parents attended the picnic, which was arranged and supervised by Mrs. Harvey V. Prentice, wife of the superintendent of the mission.

OWEN KEARNEY AND THOS. DOUDICAN, BORN IN THE SAME TOWN, HELD THE SAME JOB WITH THE SAME RAILROAD FROM THE SAME DAY — WERE PENSIONED AT THE SAME TIME, DIED THE SAME DAY AND WERE BURIED FROM THE SAME CHURCH.... Dunmore, Pa., April 13, 1929

OWEN F. KEARNEY and Thomas J. Doudican were both born in Dunmore, Pa. As young men they were employed on the same date by the Lackawanna Railroad. They both were advanced from position to position until, at the end of their service, both were conductors. They were retired at the same time after nearly 50 years with the railroad.

Mr. Kearney and Mr. Doudican both died the same day, April 13, 1929, and funeral rites for them were conducted in the same church, St. Mary's.

Gathering 500 four-leaf clovers is no easy task—persons who have spent an unsuccessful hour looking for just one will bear that out. Charles Springfield, whose hobby is gathering the lucky clovers, spent 23 years picking his way through clover patches before he found his 500th four-leaf clover.

A strange habit of some varieties of the vast family of tropical ferns is the habit of "birdnesting," as it is sometimes called. The fern, instead of growing on the ground like its more orthodox brothers, takes root high up in a convenient tree, where it thrives, massing its roots into a shape quite similar to a bird nest.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York.—Turning through the pages of an old magazine, I came onto a critical essay I wrote some years ago extolling Paul Green and Lynn Riggs as the only dramatists of any definite promise the American theater had produced since Eugene O'Neill.

One of the points emphasized was that Riggs was distinctly a poet, and therefore Hollywood would never steal him away from the stage because his lyrical moods were hardly suited to the cinematic medium.

A few weeks after that, conversing over a spot of tiffin, I suggested to Green that he should take advantage of his Pulitzer prize reputation and gather in some of the lucrative rewards he could lure from the movie studios.

"I wouldn't know how to get a job on the movie lots," this shy gifted Southerner replied. "Besides, I wouldn't write pictures, no more than I would write a play designed solely to make money."

So what? So only a fortnight or so later Riggs embarked for the West Coast armed with a contract that spoke high figures. And today Green is one of the most sought-after writers you can find in the realm of Klieg lights.

Bright Candles.

It's just about time that Edna St. Vincent Millay should descend from her farm in the Berkshires with a new volume of poetry.

There was a time when Miss Millay belonged distinctly to this town. Those were the days when she frequented Greenwich Village, when you could walk into almost any Washington Square rendezvous and hear some sad-eyed individual recite that famous quatrain:

"My candle burns at both ends,
It will not last the night.
But ah, my foes, and oh, my friends,
It gives a lovely light."

Edna in Wonderland

Today she doesn't care for the Village. In fact, she doesn't like New York except as a thrilling and tumultuous place to visit. When she does come here, she buys immense volumes of stylish dresses, hats and other finery, takes them back to her farm, locks them in a closet and goes on wearing her usual costume of tweed skirt and sweater.

The one time she changes is at dinner. No matter if they are the only ones on the place, she and her husband, Eugene Boissevain, dress formally every night for dinner.

Her husband is her own special hero. Once, attired in evening dress and top hat, he leaped into the Seine and rescued a girl attempting suicide. After the rescue he disappeared in the crowd, and it was only by accident that his identity was learned.

Walt Mason, Himself

The World's Most Famous Rhymster

Feet of Clay.

INVESTIGATORS toil along, exposing combines, cliques and rings, exposing folly, graft and wrong, and forty thousand other things. And in the public prints we find some new sensation every day; it is disturbing to the mind, to see so many feet of clay. We thought one man was truly good, an ornament to State and kirk, but find that he's been sawing wood where crooks get in their dirty work. For years he bore a high renown, our idol of an elder day; but now his fame is battered down, and we behold his feet of clay. And there are statesmen everywhere who seem to have the mouth disease; we once believed they had their share of all the higher qualities. We thought them equal to their task, we thought them men of hero size, and so they were while they could bask on padded chairs and just look wise. But when emergencies arose, when seasons came of dread and doubt, they all caved in beneath the blows, and looked as silly as get out. We always thought our financiers were giants of a noble mould, and so they were in happy years, when they were raking in the gold. But when depression hit the land, reducing everything to scraps, we saw our money monarchs stand, a lot of sickly, helpless saps.

Montgomery Prepares To Collect Tax Bills

Approximately 50,000 bills for State and county taxes for the fiscal year which began July 1 will be in the mails by August 15, J. Forest Walker, treasurer of Montgomery County, said yesterday as his clerical force at Rockville prepared to issue the bills.

Automobile owners in the county will not receive bills for taxes until late in the fall, it was announced. An interest rate of 6 per cent will be charged on all except automobile bills after September 1. All real property on which taxes are not paid by January 1 will be advertised for sale at public auction.

Processing Tax Plan for Hogs Being Drafted

(Asspciated Press.)

Farm administrators have drafted tentative plans calling for a processing tax on hogs by October 1 to provide up to $150,000,000 to finance application of the farm act to corn and swine.

The plans will not take final form until after a meeting of corn and hog producers and their representatives which Secretary Wallace has suggested be called in mid-July to obtain a cross-section of sentiment regarding the employment of the act to the two related products of the corn belt that have suffered from low prices in recent years.

If the levy is approved in connection with a corn-hog program to be worked out by August 1, it would be the fourth processing tax to go into effect before winter sets in.

Tax to Be 30 Cents on Bushel.

The 30-cent-a-bushel wheat tax will become effective at midnight, July 8; a maximum processing tax on cotton, probably 4 cents, is to become effective on August 1 if the acreage reduction campaign now under way in the cotton belt succeeds, and a processing tax of about 6 cents a pound is to be levied on cigar leaf type tobaccos by October 1.

Farm administrators will concentrate this month on devising the corn-hog program which Secretary Wallace regards as presenting some of the most difficult questions of any of the basic commodities listed in the farm act.

He has suggested that a program be worked out to obtain agreements this fall from farmers to reduce their acreage next spring. Cash benefits would be paid in return for these pledges, the funds to be supplied by a tax on hogs.

In addition to providing revenue, plans for the tax would be aimed to reduce the tonnage marketed annually. This would be accomplished by putting the tax on a graduated basis—the rate to increase in proportion to the weight of the hog in order to encourage the marketing of younger and lighter swine.

Decrease in Production Seen.

A substantial reduction in hog production could be brought about, administrators believe, by reducing the average weight of hogs sent to market by 50 pounds or more, thus cutting down supplies of lard and other products which have met increased tariff resistance in export movements on which packers have long depended for an important outlet for their product.

The processing tax would be collected at packing plants. At least $150,000,000 in revenue would be required to carry out a comprehensive acreage reduction plan. About 9 per cent of the corn grown is used in plants manufacturing human food, starch, alcohol and other materials. A levy on this type of processing might also be provided.

Meanwhile, negotiations for a trade agreement among packers are being continued. Earlier administrators held some hope that an agreement of this kind might be all that would be necessary to curtail production of hogs if packers would agree to a price scale calling for higher prices for medium weight swine. Confidence that an agreement could be drafted which would achieve the aim of the act, however, has faded in recent weeks.

Steel Swinging Ahead to Stage Activity Gains

Cleveland, July 4 (A.P.).—Mile-long sheds that were dark and rows of material that was gathering rust as 1933 dawned are alive with fire and acrid smoke and hurrying men as the Nation's steel industry, ordinarily a major barometer of business, reaches the midyear.

The industry, which in the fourth week of December reached the low point of 12 per cent of capacity operations, is now pouring steel at approximately 50 per cent of capacity, and a large portion of the 800,000 wage earners employed in 1929 are back to work, records show.

In pursuing the definite upward trend that began in April, the industry has crossed the line representing the level of 1932 activity, and in June reached the level of 1931. Fifty per cent is the busiest the industry has been since May, 1931.

Increase Is Predicted.

Moreover, it is estimated by E. C. Barringer, managing editor of the magazine Steel, that total production the past six months will exceed that of the same period in 1932 by about 1,200,000 tons.

The present upward trend in regarded by veteran steel men as especially significant because it reverses the usual seasonal slump. For several years, May, June and July have shown a progressive slump, but this year June was better than May and July is expected to beat June.

Improvement has been in the absence of buying from two of steel's four largest markets, the railroads and the building industry.

Auto Industry Helps.

Orders at first were from miscellaneous small accounts, while the automobile industry has been furnishing the backlog of the demand. The oil industry, too, has been contributing to the revival.

Tin mills have been leading all departments in the upward procession, beginning the year with operations at 40 per cent and forging ahead to 90 to 95 per cent of capacity now.

Huge appropriations in the national recovery act are counted upon to boost structural steel demands. The $400,000,000 sum for highways alone probably will call for nearly 400,000 tons of reinforcing and bridge steel and large quantities of pipe, culvert, cable and woven wire, industrial leaders estimate.

Tool Equipment Ordered.

Usually among the last to feel a revival, the machine tool industry has been stirring to reports of irregular but improving demand for new equipments as manufacturers swing idle plants into action. But there are few orders for "heavy" equipment.

Road Building To Help Many In Industries

(Associated Press.)

The public works administration predicted yesterday that more men would be needed in mines and industry to supply the needs of road workers than will be used in the actual work of building the roads. They estimated pay rolls for indirect work from the expenditure of the $400,000,000 allocated for roads would exceed by $200,000,000 the pay rolls of the road builders actually carrying on the construction—with labor accounting for approximately 65 per cent of the cost of a highway.

Col. Donald H. Sawyer, temporary administrator of public works, after studying highway construction records of the past three years, said that less than 11,000 man-hours a mile are required in actual road construction.

Numerous Indirect Jobs.

As against this, the total man-hours of work to build a mile of roadway reaches 30,000, the 19,000 increase developing from jobs created indirectly in agencies mining, making, selling and shipping the materials.

With the road program already turned over to the Federal Bureau of Public Roads and the money allocated among the States, the public works administration is pushing ahead its plans for speeding out as quickly as feasible other construction money from its $3,300,000,000 fund.

A list of nominees for State administrators—through whom will be handled applications for all city, county, State and other non-Federal projects—will be in President Roosevelt's hands in a day or two.

Big Task in States.

As soon as the State administrators are functioning, with State advisory boards and technical aids from Washington, the public works administration bill will be ready for its task of putting hundreds of thousands back to work.

The board expects to take up on Thursday a list of Federal projects, proposed by 60 or 70 Federal agencies and costing approximately $400,000,000, on which work can be started immediately in different sections of the country.

Once the State administrations are set up, their recommendations will start pouring in for consideration by the board, which in turn will send its recommendations along to President Roosevelt for approval.

Straus Bond Body Issues First Plan

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, July 4.—The Independent Bondholders Committee for certain defaulted S. W. Straus & Co. bond issues which is headed by Lewis H. Pounds as chairman, today made public its first plan for acquisition, in the interest of first mortgage bondholders, of an important New York City apartment house property since its court victory of last week.

The court victory was achieved last Friday when a majority opinion of the appellate division was handed down which reversed an earlier decision of Supreme Court Justice McCook, who had ordered the removal of the Independent Bondholders Committee and had appointed receivers to act in their stead. As a result of the appellate division ruling, the Independent Bondholders Committee was reinstated and now may represent the bondholders. In handing down the majority opinion, Justice Martin of the appellate division said that "we have reached the conclusion that the order should be reversed. The bondholders committees represented by Lewis H. Pounds, George Gordon Battle, Frank J. Murphy, Simon Newman, George W. Retz, John D. Reilly, George U. Tompers and A. L. Werner should be permitted to continue their work of solving the problems they have encountered by reason of the default in the payments due on the respective bond issues. Their work should not be hampered by injunctions or appointments of receivers."

The new plan is in the interest of holders of first mortgage serial 6 per cent coupon gold bonds, dated September 25, 1924, of the Wellston Apartments (161 West Seventy-fifth Street Corporation) of New York City. The committee states that pursuant to authority conferred by the Wellston Apartment bondholders' deposit agreement dated as of April 4, 1932, it has formulated and adopted a plan for the acquisition of the mortgaged property at foreclosure sale and placing a new first mortgage thereon. A copy of the plan has been deposited with the Continental Bank & Trust Co., as depositary, and also has been mailed to the bondholders. Holders of certificates of deposit issued under the deposit agreement who assent to the plan are advised that they need take no action. Until notified to the contrary their rights will continue to be represented by their certificates of deposit.

Hodge Urges Citizens To Boost Washington

Boost the city and your community, Curtis Hodges, executive director of the Greater National Capital committee, urged Washingtonians in a radio address last night.

"The attitude of the people of Washington is an important factor in the business of bringing visitors to this city," he pointed out. The number of visitors each year has a strong bearing on the prosperity of each citizen, he asserted.

P. U. C. to Aid U. S. Employes In Rent Fight

The Public Utilities Commission will turn its attention soon to the problem of adjusting rents for District and Federal employes and others in the salaried class who have experienced serious reductions in income through the economy act and administrative furloughs.

James Ring, special investigator, said yesterday many of the complaints he has received have come from the salaried class, which is trying to readjust its scale of living. Its complaint is that it is paying too much for apartments and the landlords refuse to cancel leases or reduce the rent.

"Many people who leased their apartments in good faith several months ago now find that the amount of rent they pay is out of proportion to their income," Mr. Ring said. "I intend to take the worthy complaints of this sort to the commission at once."

William A. Roberts, special assistant counsel of the commission, said that the commission already has considered in general what steps it will take in such cases.

"Where the rents are obviously too high, the commission will use every means at its disposal to bring about reductions, even to summoning the landlord to a public hearing," he said.

"But in cases where the rent is admittedly fair despite the hardship on the tenant because of his reduced income, we will try to reason with the landlord and persuade him to terminate the lease or set up some credit arrangement with the tenant."

The commission also has warned Mr. Ring to be on the lookout for tenants who have been theatened with being black-listed if they complain of high rents. At the same time the commission has made it clear that it will not be used as a tool by unscrupulous tenants who wish to evade payment of rent or to break leases without just cause.

"We are getting a number of such unjust complaints," Mr. Ring said. "Some people seem to think that the rent inquiry is a weapon which they can use to force their landlords to any terms, regardless of their justificaton. We obviously are not going to follow up such complaints and persecute the landlord without cause."

So far Mr. Ring's time has been consumed in gathering data, drafting complaint forms, and in receiving complaints. He expects to assemble some of the more flagrant cases and report them to the commission very shortly, however. While handicapped by a lack of funds or unusual authority, the commission expects to resort to public hearings in the cases of landlords who stubbornly resist its attempts to effect adjustments.

Holdup in Willard Nets 2 Men $125

When Charles Bryon Spofford, head of the foreign service division of the Department of Commerce, opened the door to his room in the Willard Hotel in response to a knock early yesterday, instead of a friend, he found himself confronted by two armed holdup men.

At gun-point Spofford was forced into the bathroom by one man while the other ransacked his room, taking $125 in bills from a dresser drawer. The men dashed from the room and down the hallway, escaping before Spofford spread the alarm.

Musician in Capital To Tour Virgin Isles

Mrs. Elizabeth Sinkford Thornton, who for the past year has been engaged in teaching music in the Robert H. Terrell Junior High School, went to New York yesterday to sail for the Virgin Islands, where she will make a concert tour in connection with an institute program as the guest of Gov. Pearson.

A graduate of the Oberlin Conservatory, Mrs. Thornton studied for two years in various New York schools of music subsequently. She was accompanied to New York by her husband, Alvin Thornton, of 1515 First street northwest.

Father Saves Children In Fire of Pender Home

The home of J. D. Denny near Pender, in Fairfax County, Va., was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. The Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department were called, but the house was razed before they could reach the place. The loss was estimated at $4,000.

Handy Men

Forestry Workers Prove Versatility in Doing Varied Chores.

Versatile fellows, these reforestation workers.

Duties assigned to them range from killing prairie dogs to fighting underground coal fires. One company in North Dakota is carrying on the slaughter of the prairie dogs which burrow into fertile land, spoiling it for cultivation. The dogs, actually rodents about the size of large rats, are killed by poison spread out in their villages.

The subterranean firemen are located in a camp near Gillette, Wyo. Under the General Land Office, they will attempt to put out more than 12 fires which have been burning for years in coal deposits under public lands. Then there are three more companies which are clearing out migratory bird refuges, and any number that are building forest trails and fire-lookout telephone lines.

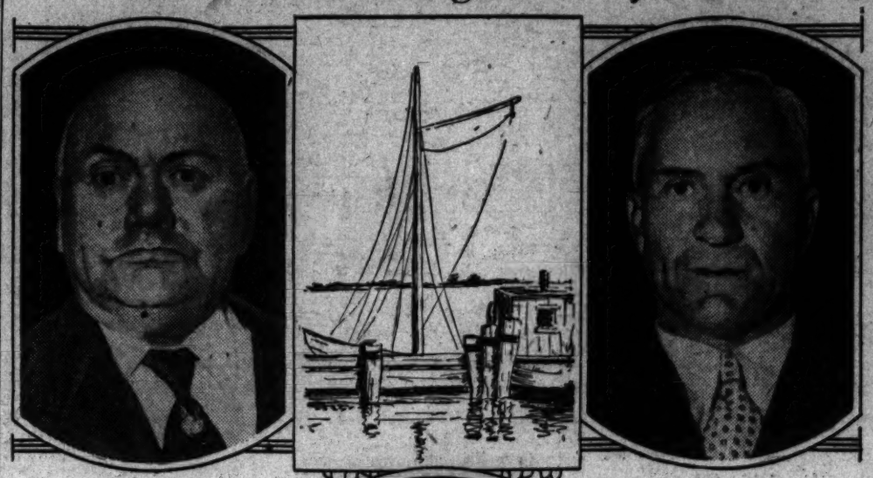
Harbor Precinct Brown Triumvirate Retires Following Century of Service



Brown is the name—Frank S., left, former Mayor of the Fish Market; Coleman R., below, for almost 30 years a policeman, and Ambrose E., right, cyclist de luxe. Drawing was sketched at the waterfront where Hizzoner was virtual dictator.

Waterfront Band Is Minus That Surname First Time in Decade.

Harbor Precinct, whose little band of 23 policemen covers the waterfront, is without a Brown for the first time in more than ten years.

The other day there were three of them—Sergt. Coleman R. Brown and Pvts. Ambrose E. Brown and Frank S. Brown. Now there are none, a novelty to Water street's fish dealers and commission merchants and the commercial and pleasure craft that come and go.

Coleman, whose boast is that he never had to use his revolver in almost 30 years with the department; Ambrose, bodyguard to Presidents, and Frank, Mayor of the Fish Market—the triumvirate is no more. The Browns have retired, writing finis to a century, minus a whisker, of service in uniform.

"I was proud to give up my gun." The sergeant lolled in the parlor of his home at 150 F street southeast. "Never got into trouble and never shot at anybody nor did anyone shoot at me. Maybe that's why I feel as good now as the day I was appointed."

21 Years on One Beat.

Pvt. Coleman R. Brown was written on the rolls of the Metropolitan department November 13, 1903.

"They sent me to No. 1 first," he said, "and from there I went to what is now No. 11, in Anacostia. A pretty tough neighborhood in those days, but I lasted 21½ years on one beat."

When scout cars came in they tried to put this foot-pounder at a wheel, but he balked, asking rather to be transferred to a precinct where he could have a beat to walk. So Brown was sent to No. 9, became a sergeant and remained at the northeast precinct until July 1, 1931, when he moved down to Harbor.

"That man is a diplomat," says Lieut. Edward T. Harney, C. R. Brown's superior officer. "Folks would come to Harbor with imaginary grievances and Coleman talked them back to their senses like no one else around here could."

Presidential Bodyguard.

Perhaps a wife, eight children and 18 grandchildren are largely responsible for the sergeant's diplomatic tactics. The whole family lives in Washington.

Ambrose Brown, protector of the persons of Presidents Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft and champion bicycle rider in his day, already is restless after scarcely a month of inactivity. Sworn in October 9, 1901, he took to duty at the Third Precinct and almost immediately was assigned as bodyguard to Roosevelt. McKinley had been assassinated the previous month.

Brown—A. E. now—chuckled as he lived again the days when Teddy led him and Eugene Davis, now a member of the check squad, a merry chase through and over the gullies, hills, creeks and paths that are Rock Creek Park.

"We (the two policemen) were many years his juior," laughed Brown, "but the President fagged us out during those hikes. And we weren't allowed to let him out of our sight."

Meanwhile Brown was winning prestige as a bicycle racer, keeping the legs in trim by pedaling wherever Roosevelt went in his carriage. In 1905 he won the championship of the Police Department in a hard race at the old Benning track. A. E. still has his trophy, which was presented by the late Maj. Gen. George Herbert Harries.

As an outdoorsman, Taft was no Roosevelt so Brown's White House duties were less arduous after the Ohioan was inaugurated. The bicycle was discarded for a glistening motorcycle that he might keep pace with the President's motor car.

After 17 years at the Third Precinct, Brown was transferred to the Eighth, becoming one of the department's first motorcycle men. About a year and a half ago he joined Frank and Coleman at Harbor.

Mayor of Fish Market.

Oldest in point of service is Frank S., who was driving a horse-drawn patrol wagon at No. 3 when Ambrose was detailed to that precinct. Patrol drivers weren't really cops in those days, just "special officers." F. S. claims to be the first man to drive a two-horse patrol for the department and the first to operate a Cadillac patrol car.

Joining the force May 10, 1899, the senior of the Browns served at the Third, First and Sixth Precincts before going to Harbor, where he won waterfront fame as Mayor of the Fish Market. He was ten years on duty on the Capital's Battery and undisputed "mayor" the last six.

Assigned to patrol the fish and produce district, Brown lost no time in exercising his authority to settle business feuds, truck smash-ups, petty arguments, sneak thievery and a myriad other varieties of breaches of the peace. "Hizzoner, the Mayor of the Fish Market," was coined and the title, bestowed with genuine seriousness, stuck.

Advocated Arbitration.

"Those guys really didn't want to go to court," says the late mayor. "I gave them plenty of chance to arbitrate. If they wouldn't do that I'd say let them litigate."

Boarding big boats and little boats, smelly boats and scented boats, to inspect shipping licenses or warn the skipper that one must be obtained was another of Frank's duties. They miss him along the channel. The mayor's successor stayed on only a few weeks. A second policeman now has the beat.

F. S. lives at 1214 Thirtieth street northwest and is glad for the rest, he says.

Long Awaited Distribution of Patronage Due

President Expected to Start on Farley's List for D. C. Immediately.

By J. Bernard McDonnell.

Fresh from a three weeks' vacation, President Roosevelt is expected immediately to begin unraveling the tangled skein of political appointments, not only in the National Capital but throughout the country.

Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the national Democratic committee, and reputed dispenser of patronage, has announced he has prepared a list of 10,000 names for submission to the President for appointment to a wide range of jobs.

Among these are said to be the names of the new District Commissioners, with a secondary local list of those who have been tentatively selected for other jobs which still are being held by hold-over Republican appointees.

When the President will act on local appointments has not been stated. Although action is expected soon, it is thought likely that he will dispose first of others for decisions on which there is greater pressure. These include the naming of those who are to carry out the public works, farm relief and home loan acts, and other thousands who must be named to bring about the full functioning of the gigantic economic recovery machinery.

It may be that the President will spring a surprise on Washington in the naming of local officials. Local Democratic party leaders are said to have been confronted by the determination of the powerful "social lobby" called the invisible but nonetheless genuine "invisible government" of the National Capital. Most every one in town has had a more or less effective hand in the fight over District Commissioners.

So far as has become public knowledge or widespread political gossip, the list of likely candidates hasn't changed recently. The names most prominently mentioned include those of Ernest G. Walker, Malcolm S. McConihe, Melvin C. Hazen, Joseph J. Cotter, George Allen, John B. Colpoys and Harry King, with others still kept in the talk by their hopeful supporters. Obviously many are going to be disappointed because only two civilian commissioners are to be named. They will receive recess appointments with the idea that they may not serve out the full three-year term prescribed by existing law because President Roosevelt and his uncle, Frederic A. Delano, believe the present municipal government should be changed radically.

Both Scheuer and Casey escaped with only minor hurts, as did also Thomas McEneany, 66, 3160 Otis place northwest, and his son, Joseph, of Brooklyn, N. Y., riding with Casey.

Refrigerator Men Plan Campaign

Meeting Tomorrow to Tell Dealers How to Beat Seasonal Slump.

Selling and advertising plans for the summer will be discussed at a meeting of Frigidaire Corporation sales managers and dealers in this territory at Washington tomorrow. A group of factory officials, headed by T. A. Farrell, manager of the Southeastern region, will attend.

At the conference here, according to H. W. Newell, vice president in charge of sales, dealers and managers will be told how they can increase their volume of business in the period in which sales usually decrease.

He said: "The exceptional improvement in business generally in the last 90 days has proved that sales volume is there for retailers and salesmen who go after it. Frigidaire is confident that the extraordinary buying of its products in this period is merely the beginning of the improvement that will be shown this year."

Water Varies

Science makes "some subtle difference in the molecular compositions" the cause of a peculiar phenomenon, recently discovered.

The discovery is that two types of water turn to ice at widely different rates. In fact one freezes three times as fast as the other. The observations were announced by the National Academy of Sciences.

The ice water and the steam water, each at 10 degrees centigrade, were placed in a temperature of 5 degrees centigrade below zero. The result was that the water, the origin of which was ice, froze the quicker. In the same experiment, with the freezing temperature 8 degrees below zero, there was little difference.

Jail Breakers Sought Here as Hunt Broadens

Convicts May Have Escaped Lorton Dogs, But Watch Is Kept on Woods.

The hunt for the two desperadoes who escaped from the Lorton (Va.) Reformatory centered in the Capital last night as orders were issued to all policemen to be on the alert for the fugitives.

The possibility that the two convicts had eluded the bloodhounds and the guards, who had been stalking them since their flight, caused the scope of the search to be broadened to include the Capital, where both criminals have many acquaintances.

The fugitives are John M. Kendrick, 36, once an accomplice of Micky Duffy, slain south Jersey beer baron, and Robert E. Gayles, 41, a dangerous narcotic addict.

Vigil was still being kept by a group of guards, who surrounded a heavy wood near Pohick, Va., where the men where believed to be cornered early yesterday. Some of the guards believe that the men are still in the woods. "When they get hungry, they will come out," they said.

After an almost constant search for the fugitives, Capt. Barnard last night ordered the original posse relieved by a new detail of guards, who were to continue the sentry around the Pohick woods.

Capt. Barnard is of the opinion that the men are still in the woods and will be recaptured.

One of the bloodhounds, which had pursued the fugitives, was badly cut up after a venture into the woods. At first it was thought the dog had been injured by the convicts, but closer scrutiny indicated that it had run into a barbed wire fence.

Officials of the institution attributed Gayles' flight to a newspaper report that all dope addicts were to be transferred to Leavenworth. Capt. M. M. Barnard branded the report as absolutely unfounded.

The reformatory was quiet yesterday after protests had been lodged over the week-end because of the food. Delegations of prisoners from the dormitories yesterday called on A. C. Tawse, aid of Capt. Barnard, and expressed satisfaction with the food.

Victim of Knife Fight In Serious Condition

More than 100 stitches were required to close long gashes across his chest and arms. He was also stabbed through the left lung and in the back of the head.

Auto Crash Kills Capital Salesman

Ernest R. Neptune, 42, 1405 Newton street northwest, and Jack Thornton, 50, of West View, Va., near Staunton, were killed almost instantly as their car overturned on a steep hill on Walker's Creek Road about 15 miles from Lexington, Va., shortly before noon yesterday.

Mr. Neptune, with his wife, was visiting at Rockbridge Baths, Va., the home of Mrs. Neptune's family. Mr. Neptune was employed as a salesman with the Trew Motor Co. here.

Restaurant Ransacked While Employes Picnic

While managers and employes of the Sholl restaurants were on a picnic yesterday, burglars entered and ransacked the restaurant at 1219 G street northwest, but apparently took nothing.

Alfred Garneghy, manager, told police papers were strewn about the office, and an attempt had been made to remove a wall safe. A large office safe was unmolested.

Aged Man Injures Self As He Faints at Parade

States' Flags Will Be Hung In Cathedral

Heroes Are to Be Honored by Plan; 12 Banners Have Arrived.

Flags of the 48 States, given for the most part in memory of America's great and good, are to hang from the triforium gallery of the Great Choir and Sanctuary of Washington Cathedral, according to an announcement made by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, yesterday.

Twelve of the flags have arrived at the Cathedral, and it is expected that the entire 48 flags will be assembled in time for their dedication and placing in the Great Choir at a patriotic service next autumn.

New Jersey State flag, given by the State of New Jersey.

Missouri State flag, given by Mrs. James M. Thomson, of New Orleans, in honor of her father, the late Speaker Champ Clark.

The State flag of Connecticut was presented by the Church Club of that State.

The flag of Vermont was placed in honor of George Dewey, admiral of the Navy, who is buried in Washington Cathedral, by his godson and grandnephew, John R. McLean 2d.

The Woman's Naval Service gave the flag to Wisconsin in memory of a member of its advisory board, the late Maj. Gen. George Barnett, World War commandant of the United States Marine Corps.

Miss Emily Beale McLean, daughter of Edward B. and Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, presented the flag of Colorado in memory of her grandfather, Thomas F. Walsh. Her brother, Edward Beale McLean, jr., gave the flag of Ohio in memory of their paternal great grandfather, Washington McLean, one of the founders of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

The flags of Delaware, Florida and Mississippi were given by those States through their governors. The flag of North Carolina was presented to Washington Cathedral by Mrs. Peter Arrington, chairman of its national woman's committee for that State.

Florida Clews In Aiken Hunt Speed Search

Doubts concerning the suicide of Wilfred E. Aiken, missing teller of the Perpetual Building Association, were increased yesterday with a report that he and his younger brother, Gordon, were at Jacksonville, Fla. Police have launched an investigation to establish the authenticity of the report, which grew out of the alleged reception of a message from the brothers by persons in Washington.

Wilfred Aiken's car was found last Saturday abandoned near the Potomac River. A note inside the machine, addressed to his wife, said he was "taking the easiest way out."

Later it was learned that Gordon also had been missing since Friday.

Dispatches from Jacksonville last night stated that police there knew nothing of the case and were making no efforts to find either of the men.

Girl Is Recovering From Park Beating

Definite improvement was reported last night in the condition of Miss Helen Victoria Mahan, who was beaten in Rock Creek Park last Saturday. Meanwhile, police are continuing their efforts to learn the exact circumstances surrounding the attack.

The woman told police at the time that she had been attacked by a colored man after she had been left alone by a friend who had gone to make a telephone call. She was beaten on the head with a cement tube or iron pipe, suffering severe lacerations to her scalp, mashed fingers and a fractured arm.

Milo D. Heath's Rites Are Set for Friday

Heath, an invalid for more than 12 years and bed-ridden most of the time, was found with his wrists slashed by Charles H. Alder, an orderly.

Firecrackers' Blast Kills 1, Hurts Several

J. L. Simmons Is Dead and Brother Loses Arm in Generally Quiet Day.

This was the hospitals' conclusion when the smoke and din of yesterday's fireworks had cleared. Emergency, Georgetown, George Washington, Providence, Casualty, Sibley, Children's and Garfield—all were unusually quiet, some of them having no 'cracker cases whatever. The fire department's two rescue squads reported the dullest day in weeks.

A check late last night showed that there had been only 151 police radio calls during the day; 12 fire alarms, most of them false; 14 Rescue Squad calls, and 15 automobile accidents. These totals are slightly higher than during a usual day, but low for a holiday.

The one fatality attributed to celebration by noise occurred late Monday night when Joseph L. Simmons, 26, suffered injuries which resulted in his death yesterday morning. Both arms were blown off when a home-made "firecracker," consisting of a pipe filled with dynamite, according to police, exploded prematurely.

Little hope for the life of Lyle L. Simmons, twin brother of Joseph, hurt in the same explosion at Mitchellville, Md., was held out by Sibley Hospital physicians last night. Lyle Simmons' right arm was amputated. He also is in danger of losing an eye.

Was Law Student.

According to county police, a large steel tube was filled with dynamite and plugged at both ends. The explosion was successful several times, blowing one of the plugs out. With the final attempt to light the "firecracker" there was only a sizzle.

The twin brothers and Bernard Tydings, Mitchellville, started forward to examine the contraption. The explosion that followed mangled the brothers and inflicted severe injuries to Mr. Tydings, who is at Casualty Hospital.

Treated for Injuries.

Eight-year-old Rosemary Lamb, of 710 Virginia avenue southeast, was seriously burned in the right eye when a firecracker exploded in her face in the Mounment Grounds while the pyrotechnic display was in progress. She was admitted to Emergency Hospital.

Walter Johnson, 3, 2521 I street northwest; burns under right arm. Robert Wilson, 16, 1408 V street northwest; burns on hand and wrist. Ida Bell, 6, colored, 1418 Sixth street northwest, burns on leg.

Firemen's Generosity Hits Them on Rebound

It's one risk after another with District firemen these days. Even giving blood for transfusions is done at their own risk, if they should become sick as a result and have to take time off.

Through a purely charitable arrangement, the firemen are called upon for transfusions at local hospitals. This they have been doing for some time. And now, it is learned, that owing to economy legislation, firemen who become sick from the loss of blood, given for transfusions, must take annual leave instead of sick leave.

"All Quiet"

Judge Clears 48 Cases of Holiday Rowdyism in Hour and Half.

The quietest "Fourth" in the memory of court attaches was held yesterday in District Court, with the hearing of only 48 drunk and disorderly cases by Judge Ralph M. Given.

A few pleas for leniency in recognition of the holiday were laughed off by the judge, who said, "We'll save that for Christmas."

The docket was cleared in less than an hour and a half, as was the case in Traffic Court. U. S. Court was not in session.
